"Wild Bill" Calls Out 2 Companies to Save Prisoner.

Soldiers, Crowd Race for Quarry

Ranch Hand Held as Triple Slayer Leads Hunt for Body.

Oklahoma City, Dec. 10 (U.P.).—Gov. W. H. Murray tonight ordered out two companies of the National Guard to protect Jack Wisdom, suspected slayer of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Pitchard, of Wichita, Kans. A mob was reported en route from Wichita to Kingfisher, where Wisdom was held.

Murray ordered the troops to shoot to kill if necessary to protect the prisoner.

Hearing that the Wichita mob was on its way to lynch Wisdom, the governor, who has repeatedly said there would be no mob violence in Oklahoma during his term, went into instant action.

Wires Commander.

He wired Col. Graves at Enid to call out the troops and proceed to Kingfisher.

Murray then telephoned Adjt. Gen. Charles F. Barrett, instructing him to order out the Kingfisher Battery of the National Guard.

Both companies were instructed to go to Okarche, 16 miles south of Kingfisher, where Wisdom was helping officers search for Pritchard's body, and protect the officers and their prisoner.

Murray's telegram to Graves read: "Mob on way from Wichita, presumbably on highway 81. Collect entire force to go down to Kingfisher to protect jailer and prisoner. Kingfisher Battalion has been ordered out. You cooperate with them. Shoot to kill if necessary. Unable to reach Gen. Barrett, hence this order direct to you."

The order was signed "William H Murray, commander in chief."

When the San Jose, Calif., double lynching took place, Murray severely criticized California authorities, declaring that officials themselves were often responsible for mob action.

Tonight's mobilization was the twentieth time "Alfalfa Bill" had resorted to military action to enforce State laws.

Mob Races for Prey.

Wichita, Kans., Dec. 10 (U.P.).—A Kansas mob raced into Oklahoma tonight determined to wrest Jack Wisdom, a ranch hand, from officers he was directing in a search for the body of one of three persons he is suspected of slaying.

The threat of mob violence, manifesting itself for the sixth time in the Nation within a month, was in-

Abductor Slain By Patrolman

Columbus, Ohio, Dec. 10 (AP).—Held prisoner on the running board of a careening taxicab by a burglary suspect, a Columbus patrolman risked his life today to thrust his own gun behind himself and fatally wound his captor.

The mortally wounded suspect fired one shot in return, and the patrolman, Eitel Hoffman, fell with a bullet in his thigh. The suspect was unidentified.

Hoffman and a fellow patrolman came upon the suspect when he entered an auto bearing Indiana license plates which had been reported in a robbery at London, Ohio.

Locking the doors after he entered, he refused to admit the officers. Hoffman then fired a shot through a window, and the suspect fled. Commandeering the taxicab, Hoffman overtook the man at a filling station. Pointing a pistol at the patrolman, the bandit forced him to stand in front of him on the running board.

Later detectives searched the suspect's car and found another revolver and a large quantity of clothing. Indianapolis authorities reported the auto had been stolen at Anderson, Ind., Saturday.

Italy Sends Envoy For Hitler Talk

Suvich to Discuss Move for League Reform.

A rumor that Suvich would invite Hitler to Rome to confer with Premier Mussolini was not confirmed.

Royal Nazi Captives Give Slip to Austria

Princess Escapes Castle Prison With Dogs That Made Life Miserable for Guards; Prince Talks Self Out of Jail.

Klagenfurt, Austria, Dec. 10 (AP).—Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss' captive Nazi princess is no longer a captive. Her escape to Italy was officialy confirmed today.

Her husband, Prince Bernhard von Sachsen-Meiningen, also disappeared from his Castle Pitzelstaeten near here. He was smuggled across the border by friends.

It was reported that even the five dogs who made life miserable for detectives assigne dto guard the castle, also had escaped to Italy.

The prince was recently ordered transferred from the Klagenfurt Jail—where he was incarcerated for a Nazi conspiracy—to a concentration camp near Vienna.

Through the intervention of the German Legation at Vienna, he was granted permission to wind up his personal affairs at the castle, where Princess Margot was already cooped up under guard of six detectives.

Cooping up six detectives with a pretty princess, however, proved a tactical error. The detectives were soon as tame as Saxon household pets, and the rest was easy.

The police official responsible for the castle guard was immediately discharged on orders from Vienna, and Chancellor Dollfuss dispatched a special representative to Klagenfurt.

Five dogs complicated the task of the detectives by racing wildly about the premises, howling, barking, upsetting suits of armor and generally making life unpleasant for the castle guards.

Although those immediately responsible for the safekeeping of the Nazi prince and princess had reason to quake in their boots for not preventing the escape, minor officialdom in this locality imaginably heaved a sigh of relief at being rid of their royal responsibilities.

Lindberghs Span Jungle Despite Rain

Manaos, Brazil, Dec. 10 (AP).—Completing a 932-mile hop from Para, part of it in a tropical rain, Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh landed here at 2:32 p. m. (E. S. T.) today.

The flying couple plan to leave Manaos tomorrow by way of Trinidad and Puerto Rico, arriving home before Christmas.

Their arrival here in the heart of Brazil's equatorial jungle was the signal for a demonstration from an enthusiastic populace which crowded the dock to watch them swoop down from the sky.

Canoes Surround Plane.

Bulletins in the newspaper journal announced their approach and as they came into view sirens from river steamers sounded a welcome. They made a perfect landing in the broad harbor. Canoes immediately surrounded the plane.

The route from Para to Manaos carried the Lindberghs over the majestic Amazon with its hundreds of tributaries and small islands, the most beautiful tropical scenery in Brazil.

The couple, after expressing their thanks to American Consul George E. Seltzer and other Americans and airway officials at Para, took off and headed west.

Delayed By Rainstorms.

They reported losing some time in low clouds and rainstorms, but passed Port Moz with an "O. K." from Anne at the wireless.

By noon they had passed Obidos, flying at an altitude of 1,800 feet. Below them was an area containing the richest plant life on the globe, the home of the Waiwai Indians and of jaguars, pumas tapirs, peccaries, armadillos and anteaters.

The route from Para to Manaos lay over an experimental line, which Pan-American Airways has been testing to link Manaos, commercial capital of the upper Amazon and interior Brazil, with the coast. Eight important interior cities lie along the route.

N. Y. Broker Found Dead.

New York, Dec. 10 (AP).—William R. Foley, 38, a broker, was found dead in bed today. A physician said heart disease apparently was the cause. Foley, a wartime aviator, will be buried in San Francisco.

Three Perish As Fire Razes Dancing Hall

Blizzard Hampers Rescue of Six Other Victims in Maine Blaze.

Hampden, Me., Dec. 10 (AP).—At least three marathon dancers were burned to death and many others injured in a fire which destroyed a dance hall here tonight at the height of a northeast blizzard.

Three bodies were found in the ruins of the wooden structure, and identified as:

John Ryan, New York City.
Emile Pelletier, Waterville, Me.
Gerties Songia, Dracut, Mass.

Most of the dancers were asleep when the fire broke out. Pajama-clad young women and barefoot men fled from their cots and tumbled from the blazing building through windows and doors.

Outside they plunged knee-deep in the swirling snow piled up by the all-day snowstorm. Many of those who escaped suffered frostbites in addition to their burns before they could be removed to a hospital at Bangor.

In the confusion at the scene of the fire, officials were unable to make a complete check.

The injured are:

Mrs. Eleanor Ryan, of New York City, wife of the supposed victim, seriously burned.

Ginger Beck, Portland boxer, burns.

Dorothy Wilson, of Chicago, burns.

The origin of the fire was not determined. Some of the dancers believed the chimney of the hall had been blown over by the high winds and the flames spread from the hot-air heating plant.

Pope Hails Spanish Rightists' Victory

Pilgrims Told "Providence Aiding Spain."

Vatican City, Rome, Dec. 10 (AP).—Providence has come to the aid of Spain, Pope Pius said today, referring to the victory of Rightists in the recent election.

Speaking to Spanish Holy Year pilgrims, the Pope said, "A ray of light seems to have appeared on the horizon, bringing hope for a better future."

He urged Spaniards to renounce their differences for the good of all, and manifested joy in the coming anniversary of the Virgin Guadalupe, patron saint of Mexico.

Nazis Ban Two Papers.

Berlin, Dec. 10 (U.P.).—The Chicago National Free Press and the New York Mirror were banned until further notice by the Nazi authorities today. The order announcing the ban in Germany gave no grounds for the action.

Transplanting Human Glands Successful; Cures Described

Baltimore, Dec. 10 (AP).—The successful transplanting of parts of organs from one person to another was described by Dr. Harvey B. Stone, associate professor of surgery at Johns Hopkins, at a meeting of the Interurban and Cosmopolitan Medical Clubs at the Johns Hopkins Hospital, it was revealed today.

Surgeons, it was explained, have for years been able to transplant skin from one part of the body to another on the same person, but transplantation of tissue from one person to another almost invariably has died within a few weeks.

The method described by Dr. Stone consisted in growing the tissue for a time outside the body in a culture medium made from the blood serum of the prospective recipient of the transplant.

The tissue by this method becomes adapted to its future host, it was stated, and when finally implanted in him grows quite normally and survives for an indefinite time.

Only a few cells from the healthy gland are used, it was said, and in the normal person the missing tissue is readily replaced.

Patients, in whom the thyroid and parathroid glands had been transplanted successfully, were described by Dr. Stone, who said the work had been carried on for some time with the collaboration of Dr. J. C. Owings and Dr. G. O. Guy.

Although Dr. Stone declined to comment on his paper, visiting physicians said this discovery was important as it appears that individuals who have lost some essential gland can now be permanently cured.

Revolt Death Toll in Spain Rises to 78

Labor Meetings Halted; Churches Are Bombed; Over 200 Injured.

Madrid (Monday), Dec. 11 (AP).—The mounting toll in Spain's Anarchist revolt had reached 78 known dead early today, with government claims of victory in three provinces bordering Catalonia, offset by continued fierce fighting in the Pyrenees foothills.

A fierce outbreak at Villaneuva and Laserena contributed heavily to the list of casualties with besieged extremist rebels still holding out against civil guards and well-armed government troops.

Bombing in Madrid, sporadic outbreaks of fighting in Barcelona, sabotage of railways and communications throughout northern and eastern Spain and persistent efforts of extremist political followers to enforce a general strike marked a Sunday of strife in Spain.

Government Claims Victories.

Minister of Interior Rico Avello announced last night the revolt had been definitely suppressed in Alava, Huesca and lower Teruel Provinces. He said the army remained loyal to the government and was under perfect discipline.

The severely wounded and injured exceed 200.

The check-up showed the following deaths in towns and cities: Barcelona, 7; Hospitalet, 2; Logrone, 3; Alava, 1; Zaragoza 8; Baroca, 1; San Sensio, 2 Collblanc, 1; Montserrat, 1; Huesca, 2; Alafar, 7; Silla, 4; Puzol, 10.

The government issued a proclamation prohibiting loitering near railway stations, bridges and tunnels. Possessors of illegal arms were subject to summary arrest.

At La Coruna, a general strike was started after an eventful night during which 10 bombs exploded. One damaged the light plant, leaving most of the city in darkness.

Barcelona Churches Bombed.

A deputy at Valencia reported the number of persons killed last night in the wreck of a fast express train, derailed by extremists, would exceed 30, with two coaches still submerged and relief crews unable to extricate the bodies.

Another bomb exploded in an automobile in front of the Spanish Press Association, the explosion causing near panic in several nearby theaters.

Ten other bombs exploded in various sections of Madrid.

In Barcelona two churches were damaged by bombs and there were three incendiary fires in stores. At a suburban town extremists fired on a street car, wounding three.

Civil guards and infantrymen apparently were in control of the situation in Huesca Province, where, using machine guns, they routed rebels who had seized towns.

Fascists Offer Government Aid.

At Tormos rebels were routed in a fight in which one guard was killed. They fled to Burrea and Del Gallego, where several of their number were reported killed in a sharp encounter.

At Huesca, guards routed 15 extremists who attempted to seize the arsenal, the retreating terrorists firing at the government men and wounding one.

Three extremists were reported killed at Zaragoza when troops stormed a house used as a revolutionary stronghold.

Several towns in the Teruel region declared open revolt, raising the red and black flag of liberal Communism. Civil guards and troops were dispatched to suppress them. This region is covered with snow.

Peek Victor In Disputed Food Codes

3 Agreements Hastily Rewritten to Omit Liberal Views.

AAA Chief's Retirement Expected to Reach Climax Today.

By Leon Dure, Jr.

Jammed for weeks in the raging A. A. A. controversy, the three food industry codes have been hastily rewritten by the NRA to eliminate those provisions for which "Young Liberals" of the Department of Agriculture have waged war against Administrator George N. Peek.

This became known yesterday when officials of the NRA, putting finishing touches to the retail, wholesale and manufacturing food agreements formerly under the A. A. A., said all three drafts would be presented for President Roosevelt's approval today.

Despite the general assumption that Mr. Peek would retire from the A. A. A.—by inference a defeat at the hands of the "left wing" element—a partial victory, at least, was seen for the Agricultural Administrator in that his ideas of code-making were upheld by the NRA.

Drastic Views Deleted.

Intent on doing a good job with all possible speed, as though to demonstrate its superiority over its agricultural counterpart, the recovery administration applied its customary policies to the food code tangle, it was reliably learned, and thus eliminated the more-drastic provisions sponsored by the "Young Liberals."

Since code making is only one of several points of difference between the Peek faction and that headed by Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace, Assistant Secretary Rexford G. Tugwell, and Jerome Frank, A. A. A. counsel, the NRA's action was seen to have slight bearing on the outcome of the controversy itself. In fact, Secretary Wallace has indicated he felt the A. A. A. codes are of minor importance to the farmer they were intended to benefit.

While neither side broke the silence of Sunday, the issue of Mr. Peek's retirement was expected to come to a head today, when it was intimated he may make a statement. He is understood to be considering a proposal that he head another governmental agency — such as promoter of farm exports — in which his ideas would have freer play. It has been his stress of marketing agreements and agricultural exports, as opposed to Secretary Wallace's belief in crop reduction, that is presumed to have touched off the dispute.

Climax in Chicago Possible.

Even if Mr. Peek continues his silence another day, however, tomorrow will find him in Chicago for an address before a Farm Federation Bureau meeting—an occasion which observers believe would almost force him to state his case. Also on the program will be Secretary Wallace. Chicagoans, therefore, may hear what so far Washington has been denied.

What attitude President Roosevelt will assume toward the revised food codes was not known, but it was presumed he would indorse the work of the NRA since he shifted the responsibility to Recovery Administrator Hugh S. Johnson. Hence it was believed his implied support of the "young liberals" in their controversy with Mr. Peek was tempered with a realization that to carry out their ideas in codes would be to discriminate against

Kentucky Gives Ether to Newest Of Its Colonels

Andrew G. Haley, of Tacoma, Wash., assistant counsel to the Federal Radio Commission, has been appointed by Gov. Ruby Laffoon of Kentucky as "colonel of the ether."

Announcement of the appointment was made by Representative Wesley Lloyd, of Washington.

The announcement follows:

"Gov. Ruby Laffoon has created military aids of the grade of colonel to assist him in meeting the most unusual emergencies which might confront the Commonwealth of Kentucky. He has colonels of the land, sea and air on his staff galore. But, sad to state, until now he has had no colonel of the ether. To remedy this sorry condition, the governor has just announced the appointment of Andrew G. Haley, of Tacoma, Wash., assistant counsel to the Federal Radio Commission, as his colonel of the ether, in charge of the Commonwealth's Signal Corps. Col. Haley's first general order will be to abolish static within the confines of the Commonwealth."

President, First Lady Worship at St. Thomas

President and Mrs. Roosevelt, accompanied by their daughter, Mrs. Anna Curtis Dall and her two children, yesterday morning attended services at St. Thomas' Episcopal Church.

During the afternoon the President and Mrs. Roosevelt visited the home of Rear Admiral Cary T. Grayson, who has been in ill health.

Zone Liquor Control Plan Puzzles D. C.

Ban in All Residential Areas Indicated by Civic Groups.

Speculation was rife yesterday as to which sections of Washington would be dry and which wet under a local option plan such as suggested by the District Commissioners.

The proposal was given enthusiastic indorsement by James G. Yaden, president of the Federation of Citizens Associations, but heads of other civic organizations withheld comment until a more definite plan is outlined.

While the general idea of allowing residents to decide whether liquor should be sold in their communities was approved by civic leaders, many were skeptical regarding the practical application of local option. Numerous obstacles were cited.

If the expressed views of citizens' associations may be taken as representative of their communities, residential areas of the Capital would be almost entirely dry.

Yaden said that probably all associations would oppose the sale of liquor by drinks in residential areas and that many would try to bar traffic in bottle goods as well.

Anacostia Rushes Poll.

The Anacostia Citizens Association, taking time by the forelock, will conduct community balloting Friday, open to all residents of Anacostia, to determine whether the community prefers to remain dry, to turn wet, or adopt a compromise plan that would permit sale of liquor in bottles but prohibit sale by drinks.

Ballots are being mailed to all residents by the association, and placards advertising the election have been scattered throughout the section. Voting booths will be opened in grocery stores and other convenient locations.

George W. Offutt, jr., chairman of a special Board of Trade committee which presented a report to the Commissioners favoring the private licensing system, commented that the local option plan is "a good idea if it can be worked." He said that his committee would await a more detailed proposal before taking further action.

"Best Plan Offered."

"I believe the local option plan is the best that has been suggested yet," said Yaden. "I don't see why it can't be worked as well as the zoning law."

Sen. William H. King, chairman of the Senate District Committee, who will conduct public hearings on District liquor legislation some time this month, declined to comment on the Commissioners' plan.

"I want to keep an open mind," he said, "so the Senate committee can consider fairly all proposals."

Commissioner George E. Allen will discuss the plan early this week with Senator King.

Ten Days in Air Goal of 2 Women

Miami, Fla., Dec. 10 (AP).—Two women endurance fliers, Mrs. Frances Marsalis and Viola Gentry, took off here at 2:30 p. m. today in an attempt to break the existing record for women of 8 days, 4 hours and 6 minutes.

The big plane was taken aloft with but a small cargo of gasoline, the flyers depending upon their refueling ship, manned by Jack Loesing and Fred Fetterman, to replenish their supply. They announced intentions of remaining aloft at least ten days.

Snow Hits D. C. As Cold Wave Kills 5 in East

Rain in District Today Will Be Followed by Wintry Blast, Says Bureau.

Snow began to fall here last night as a cold wave in the upper half of the Nation took five lives in the East, according to figures compiled by the Associated Press.

The snowfall began shortly after 10 o'clock last night. Warmer weather today will bring rain, the bureau predicted. The cold will return in full force tomorrow, according to the forecast, and will accompany cloudy skies. Snow also was forecast in western parts of Maryland and Virginia.

Storm warnings were flying on the Maine coast, as a result of a disturbance over eastern Nova Scotia. In the West, according to the Associated Press, floods and snow were prevalent.

Below freezing temperatures in Pennsylvania resulted in three deaths, two in Philadelphia and one at Chester. Temperatures fell after a brief snowstorm.

Mercury Lowest in Vermont.

A cold snap in New York brought death to a man and a woman. A brisk wind intensified the chill which set a minimum for the season at 12. It was 4 above at Albany.

Coldest weather was reported in Vermont, where 10 degrees below zero was registered at Island Pond and Montpelier. Two firemen were overcome by smoke as they fought a blaze. It was generally blustery in New England and a storm warning was issued from Washington that winds of gale intensity were moving on the Northeast coast.

Football Game Called Off.

The Midwest donned overcoats to combat biting cold winds. Chicago, Omaha, St. Paul, Milwaukee and Lincoln, Nebr., had temperatures between 20 and 30, with snow flurries in sections. A heavy snowfall hit Wausau, Wis., and snow fell also near Detroit.

Rising temperatures, however, melted an Indiana snow of the day before and Louisville, Ky., had normal weather with warmer forecast. Baltimore had a low of 20.

Western Washington was besieged by floods tonight which made scores homeless, marooned automobilists and disrupted rail and highway travel following storms which are believed responsible in recent days for at least 16 deaths.

Writer's Vermouth and Gin Drink Wins Experts' Verdict

Delmonte, Calif., Dec. 10 (AP).—Samuel G. Blythe wins the red, white and blue ribbon of the National Association for Advancement of the Fine Art of Drinking with his cocktail recipe.

The political writer calls it "Washington merry-go-round."

Blythe submitted the recipe in a contest here from which bartenders and similar professionals were unostentatiously barred.

Results announced by the contest sponsors last night placed the offering of J. P. McEvoy, humorist, in second place, and the recipe of Gouverneur Morris, author, third.

A plain white ribbon and a pair of spats went to O. O. McIntyre, columnist, for his "old-fashioned odd cocktail." A well-iced milk shake with a generous sprinkling of nutmeg.

Blythe's recipe was made up of one-sixth French vermouth, one-sixth Italian vermouth, two-thirds dry gin, mixed in a tall, ice-filled glass. One large olive and a pinch from a lemon peel completed the mixture.

McEvoy's second-place recipe was for "Applejack, Old-Fashioned:"

Morris' entry called for one-sixth French vermouth, one-sixth Italian vermouth, two-thirds gin; to be shaken with finely crushed ice. "Plenty of it, until there is double the amount of liquor originally poured into the shaker."

Honorable mention went to recipes submitted by Irvin S. Cobb, Bob Davis, John Held, jr., W. C. Fields, Charles Ruggles, Wallace Irwin, Edgar Rice Burroughs, Charles Caldwell Dobie, Sam H. Harris, William MacLeod Raine, Stewart Edward White and Otis Skinner.

Mayor John Catlin of Carmel, charter member of the sponsoring association, presided over the judging. Fifteen experts sampled the drinks.

Administration Swings From Gold-Buying to Tax Program.

Moves to Allay Fears on Money

When and How to Halt Recovery Spending Next Worry.

By Elliott Thurston

Administration emphasis will shift this week to budget-balancing and the tax program for the new session of Congress beginning January 3.

It is shifting away from gold-buying and monetary manipulation as price-raising expedients, in view of the harbingers of better business and the public nervousness over the currency experiments.

By stressing again the objective of a balanced budget, even though accomplished by separately budgeting extraordinary outlays and having income cover only ordinary outlays, plus the carrying charges for the extraordinary budget, the Administration hopes to reassure that portion of the public which has been agitated during the last five weeks by the monetary manipulations.

This does not mean the President is disappointed with or discarding the monetary means of price lifting. The White House reflects an increasing satisfaction with general conditions, regardless of what has produced the accumulating signs of improvement, but evidently does not intend to give fresh alarm to the business world by new bold strokes at this juncture.

Stabilization Waits.

Nor does it mean that Mr. Roosevelt is prepared to stabilize, in the sense of fixing a permanent dollar value in gold or in exchange. His view is that the American dollar is the soundest money in the world—as Gen. Johnson declared—and that the trouble has been and is with the gyrating currencies of other countries. This conception is regarded here as novel, particularly in view of the declared purpose to drive the dollar down. However, it fits in with Administration conjurings with a completely managed domestic economy, in which the dollar's value in goods would be constantly regulated according to a domestic price index. The Administration inclination is to regard foreign trade and hence the exchange value of the dollar as of comparative unimportance.

Domestic Value Uppermost.

Thus the view is advanced that the dollar is not only sound but comparatively stable, and the aim of monetary policy is described as a dollar permanently stable in relation to its domestic purchasing power. At the same time, the

Tax Bill Saves French Cabinet

Paris, Dec. 10 (AP).—The budget-balancing bill of Premier Camille Chautemps, which had threatened his overthrow, was maneuvered over its last big obstacle in the Chamber of Deputies today, when a billion francs increase in taxation (currently about $61,300,000) was approved.

A vote of confidence was given the premier, 292 against 224, and his supporters hailed it as a far-reaching victory.

Earlier today the cabinet won a victory when the chamber by a vote of 282 to 191 refused to eliminate the tax increases, one of which is on employers of foreign labor.

The measures embodying the Chautemps program for balancing the budget and placing the franc on a sound basis have won past obstacles which were fatal to three preceding cabinets.

Employers of foreign labor would be taxed 5 to 10 per cent of their workers' salaries.

Hull Tact Wins Unusual Amity At Montevideo

Quiet, Friendly Attitude Disarms Suspicion and Invites Harmony.

By Kendall Foss.

The "new deal" approach to the Pan-American Conference in Montevideo has served to demonstrate that there is no such thing as anti-Yankee solidarity in Latin-America.

The seventh conference, now in session in the Uruguayan capital, is not running at all true to form. The United States, in the person of Secretary of State Hull, has conveyed a totally new impression. Numerous southern warriors, who had girded for the customary attack upon the "Colossus of the North," have been taken aback by the cordiality, the sympathy, the friendliness of the American chief delegate.

Bitter experience had taught this country to approach Pan-American conferences with ill-concealed dread. They have almost always turned into forums for vigorous denunciations of United States policy. The countries of Central and South America have stood shoulder to shoulder in their common dislike for their Northern neighbor.

Tactful From Start.

Secretary Hull, gifted by nature for the task, stepped off his ship prepared to listen instead of to announce, anxious to comprehend, not set upon making others understand. He has been preceded by statements from Washington declaring the American delegation went South firmly committed to a policy of good neighbors. And American hands were cleaner this year in respect to Caribbean matters than usually has been the case.

Nevertheless, the 20 other American nations were clearly not prepared for the personality of Cordell Hull. According to dispatches, there is something of a scramble going on now among leaders of other delegations to outdo each other in reciprocating Hull's advances.

In the process they have revealed the absence of any real anti-American common front. Mexico produced a plan for an inter-American debt moratorium. The United States, contrary to precedent, said nothing. Argentina side-tracked the Mexican proposal. Cuba wished to incorporate an attack upon Washington in her opening address. Colombia took the lead in requesting all unpleasantness be left out. The North American secretary continued his friendly calls, his earnest efforts to understand Latin-American viewpoints, his obvious desire to be helpful.

Uruguay submitted a plan for a pan-American tariff truce and a return to 1928 tariff levels. Somebody else, not the United States, shoved the proposal into a committee where, it is reported, it may rest for some time. Haiti sought in Montevideo a revision of the new agreement with the United States on financial control as she had sought it in Washington before. The effort fell on barren ground, again without any action by the diplomatic Mr. Hull.

League Crisis Avoided.

Two problems are uppermost in the minds of all delegates: the Chaco war and the economic tangle. They are the points where trouble is most likely to appear. Hull's success in avoiding outbreaks on these scores improves immeasurably the chances of accomplishment in the six noncontroversial fields such as international law, rights of women, social problems, and transportation.

One of the outstanding fruits of the neighborly policy pursued by Secretary Hull is the way the question of League of Nations participation was handled. Had things gone in Montevideo as they went in Havana in 1928 or at earlier pan-American gatherings, the League's suggestion that it be allowed to sit in probably would have had the unanimous support of all Latin-America. Instead, the League will have an observer at plenary sessions and open committee meetings, privileges already granted the press and the public. This compromise solution followed a suggestion by Mr. Hull that the conference ought to remain a purely inter-American regional affair. Clearly he could not have won virtual acceptance for his thesis had he not already effectively allayed traditional anti-American suspicions and the usual desire to find a counterbalance to American influence.

Mrs. Kemp Again Offers to Resign

Proposal Only Tightens Louisiana Deadlock.

Baton Rouge, La., Dec. 10 (AP).—Mrs. Bolivar E. Kemp today renewed her offer to resign from the Sixth District congressional seat which is headed for a contest in Washington in January, but the move merely tightened a deadlock between pro- and anti-Huey P. Long politics of the district.

"If this, my last appeal," said Mrs. Kemp, "is not promptly accepted, I shall go to Washington and if there is a contest I shall present my own case to the assembled House or, whatever committee may investigate."

The vacancy was caused by the death of Representative Kemp, husband of Mrs. Kemp, while in office last June.

Valuable Hunting Dog Is Reported Missing

"Jim," a thoroughbred Black Tick hunting hound, valued at $150, has strayed from Dr. C. Kell's Veterinary Hospital, at 2924 Mills avenue northeast, Ben Roach, of Capitol Heights, Md., reported to police last night.

Kidnap Plot or Just a Joke, Denver Police Take No Risk

Denver, Dec. 10 (AP).—Police guards were placed today about the home of Judge and Mrs. George H. Lerg as detectives investigated what appeared to be a bizarre kidnap plot or a practical joke.

A guard was stationed also at the home of John Dockerty, sr., a Denver business man who told police he had been ordered to kidnap Mrs. Lerg "or take the consequences."

Dockerty said someone called him on the telephone last night and told him they had an "assignment" for him.

"We want you to kidnap Mrs. George Lerg from her home in Lakewood and deliver her to us in an automobile at West Fourteenth avenue and Federal boulevard at 9 p. m., sharp," Dockery said the voice over the telephone told him.

"If you play with us there will be a lot of money in it for you, but if you turn 'stool pigeon' and inform the authorities we will blow your head off in the next few day."

Dockery telephoned Judge Lerg, who called Sheriff James G. Biggins of Golden. Biggins summoned Denver detectives and they decided to capture the "kidnapers" through a ruse.

The sheriff, dressed as a woman, went to the Judge's home. Then a fake kidnaping was staged. The sheriff was "forced" into a car by Dockerty and driven to Fourteenth and Federal boulevard.

Detectives, armed with machine guns had hid near the intersection. Although Dockerty and the sheriff waited at the corner several hours, nobody appeared.

Hearing Today To Test NRA Trade Control

145 Cleaners Cited for Charging Less Than Minimum.

A major test of the ability of NRA to enforce industrial control on small local business concerns is expected to result from the hearing today at which alleged violators of the dry cleaning code will appear.

A total of 145 cleaners from all parts of the country have been ordered to appear to show cause why they should not be prosecuted for violating the code. Most of them are accused of charging less than the minimum price fixed in the code.

Originally 165 cleaners were summoned, but 20 informed Gen. Johnson, NRA administrator, that they would abide by the prices and were excused.

At the opening of the hearing evidence against the cleaners will be presented. The cleaners will then be given an opportunity to show that the prices of 85 cents and 95 cents for cleaning a suit and other prices fixed in the code are too high.

If NRA authorities feel the cleaners have made a case the code prices may be adjusted downward. If they do not, the cleaners will be given an opportunity to show why their cases should not be turned over to the Department of Justice for prosecution.

Such prosecutions undoubtedly would result in a court battle and a test of the right of the Government to regulate local business. A Federal judge in Florida recently ruled that NRA had no right to regulate a business conducted entirely within a State.

More than 100,000 signatures attesting consumer approval of the prices will be turned over to Gen. Johnson by N. J. Harkness, chairman of the Cleaning and Dying Trade Code Authority. The signatures are those of members of cleaners' organizations, civic groups and women's clubs.

Harkness in defending the prices will submit evidence to show that in 1929 the average price in 931 retail plants throughout the country for cleaning and pressing a man's suit was $1.35 and that in that year these same plants showed a loss of $447,000.

Belgrade Hails Boras On Arrival for Parley

Belgrade, Dec. 10 (AP).—Hope for realization of the long-delayed reconciliation between Bulgaria and Yugoslavia brought half of Belgrade outdoors in bitter cold today to greet King Boris and Queen Joanna of Bulgaria when they arrived from Sofia.

It was authoritatively learned that in the conference between the kings Yugoslavia will offer Bulgaria a five-year friendship and nonaggression pact, based on recognition of present conditions.

Turkish Pillager Dies In Battle With Police

Istanbul, Turkey, Dec. 10 (U.P.). Sheik Fahri, known as a sacker of villages and kidnaper of the prettiest women in the neighborhood of Diarbekir, was killed with his bodyguard of 14 men today, after a 24-hour battle with Gendarmes ordered to arrest him on sight.

Cuban Cabinet Is Facing Crisis

Three Secretaries Send Resignations to President.

Havana, Dec. 10 (AP).—An impending cabinet crisis held the center of the political stage today, as the resignations of Secretary of Interior and War and Navy Antonio Guiteras, Secretary of Labor Fernandez Velasco and Secretary of Agriculture Carlos Hevia awaited President Grau San Martin's acceptance.

Secretary Guiteras denied he was conspiring against the Grau San Martin regime, but rumors grew stronger that he is planning to gain control of the government.

Secretaries Fernandez Velasco and Hevia refused to give definite reasons for their resignations, but it is understood their sympathies are with Guiteras.

The decree providing for the minting of $3,000,000 in silver and the issue of $17,000,000 in silver-backed paper currency was published in the official gazette.

The minting and printing will be done by an unnamed American firm, which is to advance the Cuban government $12,000,000 with no interest, as part of the profits derived from the operation.

Employes of the Cuban Electric Light Co., in a letter to Archer K. Jones, general manager, reiterated their intentions to strike if their 41 demands are not met.

The company was given until Friday to accept or reject the demands.

Equal Rights League Urges Anti-Lynch Law

Boston, Dec. 10 (AP).—The National Equal Rights League today sent a telegram to President Roosevelt commending his denunciation of lynching, urged that he recommend Federal antilynching legislation in his message to Congress, and asked for a general audience on this request.

"Because you call it plain murder and condemn all who condone it," said the message, "colored Americans, as chief victims, feel a bit safer."

Uncle Sam Warns Santa Not to Mail Christmas Liquor

The Christmas giver will encounter difficulties if he is caught mailing liquor, according to the Associated Press.

Justice Department officials said last night that a section of the criminal code, in force before the prohibition act was adopted, bars the use of the mails for liquor shipment, even when the package moves entirely in a wet State, or from a wet State into another.

No law bans the movement of liquor by express, however, except into a dry State, officials said.

Gen. Johnson Pleased With Hearst Policy

Publisher's Statement Is Praised by NRA Administrator.

Indorsement of the NRA by William Randolph Hearst, who declared recent modifications now find him in full agreement with Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, yesterday produced a friendly statement of gratitude from the recovery administrator.

In an editorial in Sunday papers, the publisher pointed to Gen. Johnson's Philadelphia speech as evidence of the administrator's "fair-minded recognition of mistakes," such as too drastic application of the NRA. For this Mr. Hearst congratulated the administrator, expressing general approval of his present ideas.

"Naturally, I am gratified that Mr. Hearst, after mature consideration, is convinced that the welfare of the country and the NRA march hand in hand," was Gen. Johnson's reply.

"This organization never has contended that it is always right or that those who differ from it are always wrong. What we have felt is that the principles of NRA represented the only comprehensive plan so far advanced to correct the maladies of the depression; to restore business by increasing employment and wages and reducing hours of labor. I believe it has progressed sufficiently to demonstrate its effectiveness.

"The influence of newspapers reaching a large proportion of our population is a welcome asset; advocacy of our policies by such agencies brings the final success of the plan sooner and time is a vital element in the recovery to which we are aiming."

Mr. Hearst and Henry Ford have been two of the most formidable critics of the NRA. In a recent talk to employes, Mr. Ford was quoted urging support of President Roosevelt and his program. To this, Gen. Johnson expressed pleasure on his recent New York trip.

Leak on Gold Price Plugged

New Method Claimed to Halt Advance News for Brokers.

(Associated Press.)

Treasury officials last night devised new methods for plugging any possible leak by which the daily domestic gold price may have been reaching world financial centers in Europe before its announcement here.

Although not convinced that such breaks occurred last week, the officials did disclose that some 10 days ago they received what appeared to be positive evidence that the quotation was known to New York and London brokers in advance of the time it should properly have reached them. The system of determining and announcing the figure was changed, they said, with apparent successful results.

Peek Wins Food Codes Dispute

business either partially or wholly under the A. A. A.

When Mr. Roosevelt last week broke the agricultural code jam by transferring to NRA all those not involving first processing, a White House statement explained it "for purposes of coordination." Carrying out this injunction, Gen. Johnson and his assistant, A. D. Whiteside, put the food codes through the NRA in usual fashion—in process of which they lost the sterner ideas of agricultural advisers in favor of the more orthodox aspects of the NRA.

Differences Threefold.

The retail trade code was approved more than six weeks ago, but those for the food and grocery industries were sent to the A. A. A. for inclusion of fair practices. There were proposed provisions which carried the recovery act beyond interpretations of the NRA to a point that food associations were reported to have threatened walk-out.

In general, Gen. Johnson has explained, the differences between the two administrations were threefold. The A.A.A. contended for giving the Secretary of Agriculture power to open all books, to supervise the code authority and to prescribe trade practices somewhat similar to the now-pending Tugwell pure food and drug bill, before the latter has been passed on by Congress.

These provisions were stripped from the food codes and in their place are sections allowing the industries to name their own governing body (the Government appointing three nonvoting members), to furnish only such statistical information as necessary, and the usual truthful advertising, abolition of special discounts, &c.

All three food groups now are understood to favor the NRA codes, after long waiting for suitable adjustment of the Agricultural Administration, and almost 100 per cent agreement is foreseen. Among the code provisions, it is understood, is establishment of a coordinating agency to have jurisdiction over related practices of the retail, wholesale and manufacturing industries.

Calls Militia

Soldiers Called To Save Slayer

spired by a series of crimes in which Mr. and Mrs. Harry Pritchard, Wichita couple, and Emory Large, a farm hand, were the victims.

Wisdom led a posse to a place near Kingfisher, Okla., where he confessed, officers said, to hiding Pritchard's body. Earlier in the day, a hunter found Mrs. Pritchard's body under a culvert north of Kingfisher.

With Wisdom directing the search, the hunt for the second body proved successful tonight, officers reported. Details were not given immediately, however, as to where the body of Pritchard was found, except that it was south of Kingfisher.

Missing Three Weeks.

Open threats of a lynching were made by Wichitans after suspicion fastened on Wisdom. The couple had been missing three weeks.

Early today, when Wisdom was arrested at the remote farm home of his brother-in-law near Leach, Okla., the mob began forming. By midafternoon 500 automobiles had assembled and leaders had procured a long rope. The mob formed, the automobiles into procession in the stockyards district of Wichita, where Pritchard, a clthing merchant, was well-known and popular.

Word came that Wisdom himself was with a posse searching for the merchant's body.

Murmers of "let's go and get him" were heard and as night fell the motorcade departed.

20,000 Aided Search.

Earlier officers had planned to remove him to Kansas Penitentiary at Lansing for safe keeping.

Sought by a posse of more than 20,000 Kansans and Oklahomans during a three weeks' period, Wisdom surrendered without resistance when awakened by possemen.

Pritchard had filed a charge accusing Wisdom of passing a $21 worthless check. That, according to officers, was the farm hand's motive for abducting and slaying the couple. The Pritchards were last seen alive on the Wichita-Wellington highway, accompanied by Wisdom, November 23. The couple's bloodstained car was found eight days later near Bristow, Okla., 120 miles south of Wellington.

Ranch Hand Slain.

The body of Large, a coworker with Wisdom on the L. W. Johnson rancs, near Meade, Kans., was found in a dry well on the ranch November 29. Eleven head of Johnson's cattle also had disappeared. Police suspect Wisdom of cattle rustling and killing Large to prevent him from talking.

When taken to Jay, Okla., Wisdom admitted being with the Pritchards the night they disappeared. It was not until after hours of questioning that he blurted out to Capt. Lyle:

"Take me to Kingfisher and I may be able to find their bodies."

The 250-mile dash across the State with the prisoner started shortly after.

Hunter Finds Body.

Meantime, C. C. Cooksey, State highway department employe, his wife and son, were hunting rabbits near Bison, 16 miles southwest of Enid. Pursuing a rabbit into a culvert, Cooksey stepped back aghast when he saw a body under the culvert.

The body was taken to Enid, where Wichita officers identified it as that of Mrs. Pritchard. They said she had been shot through the right side and the Garfield County physician estimated the body had been under the culvert two weeks.

Wisdom, meantime, accompanied by officers, reached Kingfisher. He led a posse to a point 16 miles south of Kingfisher, where he believed, Capt. Lyle said, he had hidden the merchant's body. For two hours the posse, equipped with searchlights, hunted over the area.

Unsuccessful, they returned at 8 p. m., went to a point north of Kingfisher and started retracing the route southward.

The second search was successful, but no details of the finding of Pritchard's body were available.

AAA Maps Cut In Burley Crop

$15,000,000 Will Go to Growers Under Adjustment Plan.

Fifteen million dollars will be distributed among burley tobacco growers under provisions of a crop adjustment program announced yesterday by the Agricultural Adjustment Administration. The plan calls for limiting the 1934 crop to 250,000,000 pounds. The program is similar to the wheat and cotton crop reduction plans.

The A. A. A. announced that farmers taking part in cotton, tobacco and wheat programs have received a total of $114,986,740 from the Government. This was divided into $109,686,526 to the cotton growers, $1,007,978 to tobacco growers and $4,274,236 to wheat growers.

Police made 3,500 arrests, including that of the father of Corneliu Codreanu, leader of the Iron Guards. Codreanu himself escaped and was still being sought.

Administration Starts Budget Balancing Job

President recognizes the desirability of retaining public confidence in Federal credit and will continue to stress his purpose to balance the ordinary budget.

Lewis Douglas, director of the budget, has already spent much time going over preliminary figures with the President. Douglas is to remain in his post. Whatever his uneasiness over the recent gold experimentation, he proposes to stick to his knitting on the budget and apparently feels reassured about monetary prospects.

Observers who perceive a turn to the right in the President's maneuvers to take A. A. A. codes away from the left-wingers like Prof. Tugwell, also think they see a turn to the right now on monetary policy—or at least a standstill for the present and for as long as improving conditions continue to create a more cheerful public psychology.

Douglas has calculated an income for the fiscal year, 1935, of about $3,350,000,000, based upon continuing business improvement, and has been figuring on an ordinary budget outlay of about $2,600,000,000 leaving some $750,000,000 over with which to finance such new undertakings as may be launched, such as the proposed $1,750,000,000 addition to the public works program, some $500,000,000 more for direct relief, and further appropriations for the R. F. C.

However, Douglas has indicated his own disapproval of much more governmental financing of recovery. When and how the outlays to which the Administration already is committed can be ended remains to worry many officials. Thus, the White House wishes to stop the C. W. A. by spring, but much doubt exists over its ability to withdraw these benefits now that they have been established.

How far the public debt might safely rise is another moot question, Douglas, for one, is concerned over the rapidity with which it has been mounting and it is undisputed that a halt has to be called ultimately. However, after deducting Treasury cash, comparative figures do not yet disclose a rise disturbing to most authorities.

Over 22 Billions.

On this basis, the total debt on November 29 was $22,426,000,000, compared with the war expenditure peak of $25,478,000,000 on August 31, 1919. After reaching a postwar low of $16,185,000,000 in 1930 (without deducting Treasury cash), the debt went to $20,216,000,000 (Treasury cash deducted) on November 30, 1932. So the increase since then has been about $2,210,000,000.

The debt is now increasing at an accelerated rate as funds are being more rapidly diffused by the P. W. A. and other agencies. However, Douglas and other officials concerned with the budget see no cause for uneasiness if recovery—now accepted as an accomplished fact by the Administration—sets in sufficiently to diminish the load on the Government. The problem, as they see it, is to stop spending when the proper time arrives. They think it has not yet arrived but that it is not far off.

Meanwhile the problem of balancing an ordinary budget appears to be relatively simple. Calculated in this way, the current ordinary budget is only out of balance by some $45,000,000. Liquor tax hearings are to begin today before a joint Senate and House committee, with the idea of getting back some of the reveune to be lost in automatic voiding of so-called nuisance taxes later.

Tax Dodger Drive Hinted.

Acting Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau and Douglas will discuss these questions in conferences with the President this week. Now that Morgenthau has taken directly under his wing the Internal Revenue Bureau, as well as the Secret Service, the assumption has been that he may launch what would be heralded as a tax-dodger drive to get in more money. What his own tax ideas are, is another unwritten chapter.

The fact that the R. F. C. gold price has been unchanged since December 1 has again given rise to more deductions that the gold-buying is being discarded, or that stabilization impends. Neither assumption is warranted, according to Administration advisers. They agree, however, that another phase may have been reached, in which the gold price will not be advanced further, but the gold buying will go on, covered by secrecy abroad and periodic statements of the amounts taken off the domestic market. That the amounts as yet bought by the R. F. C. are insignificant, so far as affecting world price levels goes, is indicated by the absence of evidence of foreign buying and the R. F. C. statements of the small quantities taken at home.

Scoffs at Alarm.

The Administration view is that the public was unduly upset by the experiment, that the alarm felt was all out of proportion to the operation itself. This, however, does not reckon with psychological effect. In any case, the seeming desire now is to allay further alarm, without at the same time renouncing monetary manipulation as an always available expedient.

Despite Gen. Johnson's warnings of Congressional inflationary perils, there is yet no sign of an organized drive on Congress for printing press money, and Senator Elmer Thomas, leader of the professed inflationists, yesterday disclaimed any intention of demanding inflationary measures that would "set the printing presses in motion." He is still urging that the gold price be raised the full limit under his amendments; that is, to $41.34, and that the President then declare the dollar's gold content to be halved. But neither he nor the other advocates of inflation now have any organized support behind this or other demands, nor are these forces much dissatisfied. They have been applauding the President generally, the more so as Al Smith and other Eastern critics have found fault with him. All of which has had manifest strategic advantages for the President, as his political mentors see it.

Even the Socialists are disavowing inflation, and Norman Thomas, their Presidential candidate, who campaigned for it, joined yesterday in a statement with Louis Waldman, head of the Socialist party's public affairs committee. The Associated Press carries the survey of Socialist sentiment thus:

"Conceding that some advantage to certain sections of the population, notably in the agricultural area, may temporarily result from a process of inflation, the sentiment expressed was that any good that would come of it would be more than offset by the disastrous consequences to at least three groups of the population—the civil service and wage and salaried workers, whose incomes are fixed, the workers whose wages have been fixed by codes or collective agreements, and for whom readjustment would be delayed while the cost of living would leap, and to those having savings accounts and insurance policies, most of whom are not wealthy and many of whom have no other means of existence during old age and disability."

Advocate New Currency.

They advocated instead a 5-point program to cut, by law, to 2 or 2½ per cent interest on all debts, farm, urban, Federal, &c.; to cut down the capital structure of all business and utilities "affected with a public interest;" to impose a capital levy "scientifically assessed and applied;" to raise inheritance taxes, and to have the Government issue currency instead of bonds to finance public works—the argument being that one is no more inflation than the other.

Local Option Plan Raises Zone Issue

week. The major problem that confronts them is how local option could be made operative if Congress should approve of the scheme.

Some of the questions which they must decide are: whether communities should be determined by area, by zoning, or by population; just what agency should map the boundaries and how opinions of residents could be obtained most practically.

Boundaries Raise Question.

Because of the abrupt changes in the class of residences from one block to another the Commissioners face a most difficult problem in mapping community boundaries. Any attempts to gerrymander the District would stir a controversial storm.

Twenty years ago Congress settled the problem by specific statute, viz., the Jones-Work amendment prohibiting locations of saloons and wholesale liquor dealers in practically the entire Northwest section, a large area surrounding St. Elizabeths Hospital, and smaller areas around the Navy Yard and the Army War College.

In addition the law limited the number of saloons to 300, prohibited the issuance of licenses to hotels which had less than 50 bedrooms, barred saloons from within 400 feet of schools and churches, and prohibited bars from all residential streets on which more than 50 per cent of the front footage was occupied by residences.

As far back as 1891 a statute was enacted prohibiting sales of liquor within a radius of 1 mile of Soldiers' Home. In 1907 an act was passed making it unlawful to sell liquor at any point between St. Elizabeths Hospital and the Home for the Aged and Infirm or within a radius of one-half mile of the boundaries of either of the institutions. This covered a large section of the Southeast.

Banned Near Barracks.

The Jones-Work law placed a ban on saloons and wholesale whisky dealers within 1,000 feet of the grounds of the Marine Barracks, the War College and the navy yard.

In March, 1917, at the time of the passage of the Sheppard prohibition law for the District, Washington was estimated to have been about three-fourths dry due to the previously adopted statutes.

Since that time, however, Washington has spread out into the suburban areas and considerable property in the Northwest area has been rezoned to a commercial status.

Yet Edwin S. Hege, speaking for the Chevy Chase Citizens Association at the Commissioners' hearing, opposed the licensing of any liquor dealers in Chevy Chase, even in the commercial zone along upper Connecticut avenue.

The Federation of Citizens Associations by a margin of one vote favored the sale of intoxicants by the drink in the District, but with the condition that each community be allowed to decide the issue itself.

Mrs. Roosevelt Heads Party of Teachers Before Regular Opening.

Despite wintry weather, 500 persons yesterday took advantage of the first Sunday opening of Mount Vernon and visited the George Washington shrine between 2 and 4 o'clock in the afternoon.

Mrs. Roosevelt and a party of school teachers led the caravan by calling several hours earlier.

The afternoon crowd was equal to the average attendance of a full week-day this season of the year, Mount Vernon officials said, though it was far from a record.

Decision to open the shrine on Sunday afternoons was reached last week by the Mount Vernon Ladies Association after numerous appeals had been made by civic organizations.

Only once before in the 45 years that the George Washington home has been under the supervision of the association has it been open on Sunday. That was March 5, last, following the Roosevelt inauguration. More than 10,000 visited the show place.

Omelets Decreed for Jobless; 144 Million Eggs Made Ready

The omelet is to come into its own shortly by edict of Harry L. Hopkins, president of the Federal Surplus Relief Corporation and Federal Emergency Relief Administrator.

Following the recent purchase of additional pork for destitute unemployed, he announced yesterday that about 12,000,000 dozen eggs are to be distributed among them shortly. Approximately 2,500,000 cases are in storage, he said, mainly in Boston, Philadelphia, New York and Chicago.

Purchasing and distribution of the surplus will be in charge of State emergency relief administrators under a general plan prepared by officials of the Agriculture Adjustment Administration and the Federal Surplus Relief Corporation.

Leroy A. Halbert, administrator for the District, said the local egg allotment will be distributed to needy Washington families through 54 independent and chain grocery stores. First, however, 65,000 pounds of pork and 100,000 pounds of butter will be doled out in the same manner. The pork and butter are in cold storage here, awaiting distribution.

Destitute persons will obtain food by presenting orders, obtained through the local relief agency, at the stores, Halbert said. Distribution by this system, the first time it is being tried, probably will start this week, he declared.

Legion Will Ask Funds To Fight Red Activities

Macon, Ga., Dec. 10 (AP).—Frank E. Samuel, National adjutant of the American Legion, told a conference of post commanders and State adjutants here today that legionnaires plan to ask Congress for an appropriation to suppress propaganda "which we believe will continue to come out of Communist Soviet Russia."

U. S. Rum Tax Battle Starts On Hill Today

President's Committee Will Urge $2.60 Levy Despite Protest.

The moot subject of Federal liquor taxation will be transferred today from the realm of speculative controversy to a joint open hearing before the House Ways and Means and the Senate Finance Committees.

A gathering storm of protest against a proposed tax of $2.60 a gallon on both whisky and alcohol for other than beverage purposes will break in the caucus room of the new House Office Building as soon as the President's interdepartmental committee has made its report.

The joint hearing will occupy three days, the first given over to the interdepartmental committee's findings, the second to recommendations by witnesses for the liquor industry, while on Wednesday several representatives of both parties will protest against the proposed taxation. On Friday, the House Ways and Means Committee will turn its attention to income tax matters.

Joseph H. Choate, jr., director of the Federal Alcohol Control Administration, which virtually clinched control of the industry with the signing of the wholesalers' and rectifiers' codes, will attend the hearings as a witness and to obtain views of those under his dictatorship. Acting Secretary of Treasury Morgenthau will be questioned Friday.

$2.60 Tax to be Urged.

The President's committee, after more than two months studying the major problem of Federal liquor taxation to provide revenue without encouraging bootlegging, will go before this morning's hearing with recommendations for a tax of $2.60 a gallon on distilled spirits. Edward G. Lowry, jr., will be among the committee members questioned.

Regardless of party lines several representatives have served notice they will appear in opposition to this proposal. There will be a general demand that the tax not exceed $2. Those who had given notice yesterday of their intention to speak were Representatives O'Connor, Celler and Peyser of New York, and Buck of California, but it was known several others plan to attend.

Distillers' representatives at the hearings are expected to remain discreetly silent on the subject of taxation, leaving the opposition to others. It is no secret that the whisky manufacturers are keenly apprehensive regarding the public's goodwill. They are leaning over backward in their desire to appear pure and undefiled and are anxious to avoid the stigma of selfishness. They oppose high taxation, but prefer to have others fight it openly.

State Sharing Included.

Those who will be heard tomorrow include: L. D. Odhner, National Retail Beer and Liquor Association; M. DeVires, Wine Producers Association; Munson G. Shaw, Wine and Spirits Importers Association; Eugene Pickerell, Importers of Beer and Wine Association; Paul Garrett, president, Garrett & Co.; William L. Cauffman, Philadelphia Liquor Dealers Association; George H. Burnett, Flavoring Extract Manufacturers Association; Prof. Yandell Henderson of Yale University, and Benjamin Miller of the Federal Bar Association.

The Administration's liquor tax program to be presented by the President's committee includes, besides the $2.60 levy, sharing of the revenue with the States to avoid duplication of gallonage imposts, and authority for the President to negotiate reciprocal trade agreements with foreign countries exporting liquor to the United States.

It proposes that States which enter into agreements with the Federal Government not to impose special liquor levies receive 20 per cent of the revenue gathered by the Federal levy. Each State would be entitled to share on the basis of production, plus consumption of alcoholic beverages with respect to total domestic production and consumption.

States With Tax Barred.

Those States which already have levied gallonage taxes would not share in the Federal revenue unless they repeal their tax laws. Their allotments would be retained by the Treasury.

To facilitate negotiation of trade agreements whereby foreign countries would accept surplus American farm products for exports of liquor, the interdepartmental committee proposes the President be empowered to raise or lower duties, within certain limits, on liquor imports.

The committee's plan has the approval of most legislators, except for the $2.60 tax.

New Assault Upon Economy Act by Legion

Launching their own campaign seeking repeal of the national economy act, Victory Post of the American Legion will hold a mass meeting at Central High School January 2 to confer citations on 89 representatives and 19 senators for "displaying common sense under fire."

Senator Robinson, of Indiana, who waged a vigorous fight in behalf of the veterans at the last session of Congress, yesterday wired Morris A. Beatty, editor of Plain Talk and a member of the Victory Post, declaring he will introduce a bill as soon as Congress reconvenes for repeal of the economy act.

Francis McDonald, chairman of the Victory Post's invitation committee, said each of the 108 members of Congress who voted against the economy act will be asked to attend the meeting and that at least eight of them will be asked to speak.

The American Federation of Government Employes and the National Federation of Federal Employes are cooperating in arranging the meeting, to which all service men will be invited. The former employes' federation is sponsoring a similar mass meeting at Central, December 18.

Albert Kearney is chairman of the legion's general committee and William McCurdy is in charge of arrangements.

The Soviet press described poor output as an act of sabotage and a betrayal of the country. Demands were made for severe penalties.

Mount Rainier Mass Meeting Opposes Rum

More Than 500 Firmly Against Sale in "Any Form."

A determined band of Mount Rainier citizens—numbering upward of 500—gathered last night at a public mass meeting and voiced opposition to the sale of "intoxicating liquor in any form," while their mayor and town council met with officials of three other communities and agreed to submit the question in referendum to voters of Prince Georges County, Md.

Of the hundreds who crowded their way into the Cameo Theater, Mount Rainier, only 21 were in favor of whisky sales. These stanch "wets" battled long and loudly for their point, but finding themselves overwhelmingly outnumbered, retired to a corner and watched the proceedings.

Meanwhile, the mayors and town councils of Hyattsville, Riverdale, Mount Rainier and Laurel met in the council room at Hyattsville and voted a referendum to the voters. The Prince Georges County delegation in the State Legislature will be asked to act immediately.

Mayor Opposes Licenses.

Mayor John H. Beall of Mount Rainier announced he will insist that the board of liquor license commissioners refrain from approving applications until the question is settled.

In the referendum, a provision will be requested whereby the voters, if in favor of liquor sales, may state a preference as to on-sale or off-sale distribution.

W. A. Carson, Mayor of Riverdale, declared that thus far no applications for sale permits have been received in his section. The Riverdale Women's Club voted in favor of immediate referendum.

Hold Sales Unnecessary.

At the mass meeting citizen representatives termed liquor sales as "unnecessary and a contribution to discord and disturbance." It was urged that all liquor sale licenses be withheld in that community pending further decision.

The Hyattsville mayor and town council declared that the majority of citizens were opposed to any future sales.

Assailant Who Shot Wife Eludes Police

Woman Fights for Life at Casualty Hospital.

The whereabouts of Steve Perovtsakos, estranged husband of Mrs. Katherine Perovtsakos, 39, of 308 Seventh street northwest, who is alleged to have shot, and wounded her seriously from ambush as she returned from work, Saturday, puzzled police yesterday.

They searched the city for Perovtsakos, while his wife lay in Casualty Hospital, fighting for her life. Mrs. Perovtsakos was shot in the abdomen by the assailant, who emerged from a dark alley near 304 Seventh street northwest.

Employed as a maid, Mrs. Petrovtsakos had been separated from her husband for some time. The couple have two children, Tony, 2, and Tessie, 4.

Thief Takes Watches From Jewelry Store

Two gold watches, valued at $110, were stolen yesterday from Harry W. Peters' jewelry store, 113 E street northwest, by a man who entered to have a watch repaired.

While the broken watch was being examined, the thief snatched the other watches from a case on the counter and left. Several minutes later the loss was discoverd and Peters called police. The man gave an address on Second street northeast, but was not known there.

Mount Gilead, Ohio, Dec. 10 (AP). Four motorists were killed by a Big Four passenger train which hit their automobile at Cardington, southwest of here, today, bringing to six the number of persons who have died at the same crossing within the past few days.

Today's victims were Charles D. Winston, 58, a Delaware, Ohio, stock buyer; his wife, their daughter, Gwendolyn, 19, and Herman Henry, 22, also of Delaware.

The car was demolished and carried some 200 feet down the right of way. All four bodies were mangled.

Equal Distribution For Income Favored

Unemployment Committee Says Condition Same.

Calling for equitable distribution of National income through taxation, an executive committee of the joint committee on unemployment yesterday adopted a 10-point legislative program to be submitted to the next session of Congress, according to the Associated Press.

A statement in the name of Chairman John Dewey and Dr. Sidney E. Goldstein, of the executive committee, said:

"In spite of the efforts of progressive elements in the Administration, little improvement in economic conditions has been recorded during the nine months since the new Administration took office. A substantial increase in the purchasing power of the masses is fundamental."

SPEEDER!

He causes many serious and fatal accidents and boosts the cost of car insurance. Liberty Mutual will not knowingly solicit or accept insurance from SPEEDERS and other DANGEROUS DRIVERS.

If you are not a speeder—

YOU COULD HAVE SAVED UP TO $14 on your car insurance

Like many responsible car-owners you would undoubtedly welcome an opportunity to reduce the cost of your car insurance—if you felt that you could do so safely.

The cost of car insurance is determined by the accidents incurred by policyholders and the cost of selling policies incurred by the insurance company.

If an insurance company insures even a small percentage of reckless drivers the responsible policyholders of that company have to help pay for many costly accidents.

SAVINGS

made by Washington car-owners last year on complete Personal Injury, Property Damage and Fire and Theft Insurance. These savings were made on new cars—old cars slightly less. Send coupon for exact quotation.

Lincoln, Cadillac, Packard Class of Cars Saved $14.00
Buick, Chrysler, Nash Class of Cars Saved $12.79
Ford, Chevrolet, Plymouth Class of Cars Saved $12.50
Trucks—1½ tons or less $17.33

Partial payments, if desired.

Liberty Mutual has regularly reduced the cost of automobile insurance by 20 per cent for every policyholder every year, because it sells direct through full-time, salaried representatives who are not permitted to solicit insurance from poor drivers. And, when you buy direct from Liberty you do not pay a big sales commission every year.

In the ordinary type of insurance company these savings would not benefit you, but Liberty is a mutual company like the large mutual life insurance companies which write 80 per cent of all life insurance. Our savings are returned to policyholders in the form of cash dividends. This plan saved over $3,000,000 for our policyholders in 1932 alone, and since organization in 1912 we have saved and returned more than $36,500,000 to policyholders.

And, the same factors which have resulted in these large savings have made Liberty one of the strongest insurance companies in the world. Resources and surplus funds have increased during each of the past depression years. This means that Liberty will provide you with unquestionable financial protection and settle your accident losses promptly and fairly.

If you are a responsible, careful-driving car-owner—phone NAtional 7347 or visit our office in the Investment Building, or mail the coupon below for the cost of insuring your car and an estimate of the saving you would have made by dealing direct with Liberty Mutual—the company which will not insure DANGEROUS DRIVERS.

Butler Urges War Veterans To Rally Votes

Assails Aid for Bankers While Service Men Go Without.

Atlanta, Dec. 10 (AP).—The Government's economy program, as it affects war veterans, was criticized here today by Maj. Gen. Smedley D. Butler, retired officer of the Marines.

Addressing several hundred Veterans of Foreign Wars, he declared the veterans could muster 20,000,000 votes among former service men and their families and that if the "Democrats take care of you, keep them in—if not, put 'em out."

Butler told the group he was making a tour of the country at the invitation of James E. Van Zandt, commander in chief of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, in order to lend his voice to the veterans' cause.

He termed war "largely a matter of money," asserting that bankers lend money to foreign countries "and when they can't repay the President sends Marines to get it."

"If Charles Dawes got $90,000,000 for a sick bank, soldiers ought to get it for sick comrades," he said.

Commander Van Zandt told veterans the organization would ask that the economy bill be repealed outright.

"Ed Hayes, Legion commander, is going around espousing the return of the gold standard for Wall street. All big soldier leaders have been fixed. Pershing gets $20,000 a year and because you're not organized you get nothing."

Children of Senator Aid Fund for Toys

A Gift From Santa Claus Will Be Admission Price Saturday.

Encouraged by the success of the first children's party for the benefit of The Post Toy and Doll Fund in the Willard Hotel Saturday, which brought gifts of hundreds of toys for the needy children of Washington, the fund will hold a children's theater party at the RKO-Keith Theater next Saturday at 9 a. m.

The price of admission for children and adults accompanying them will be a brand-new toy for the fund.

At The Post Toy and Doll Headquarters, Washington Building, Fifteenth street and New York avenue northwest, the toys from Saturday's performance of Theodore Tiller's marionettes made a notable addition to the collection already in hand. Another splendid source of toys has been in the services of the Terminal cabs in bringing in toys from friends of the fund.

It was announced again yesterday that anyone having toys to contribute to the fund should telephone Sterling 8455, headquarters of The Post Toy and Doll Fund, and one of the cabs will stop and collect the toys.

Urge Gifts by Friday.

Friday is the fifteenth of the month. As many persons are paid off on that day in semimonthly pay rolls, The Post Toy and Doll Fund is eager that all possible contributions be made before or on that date. In the first place, the Santa Claus Lady has to report progress to Santa Claus. And then, too, the managers of the institutions where there are little children need the funds with which to purchase the toys as soon as possible. In a real sense, he gives twice who gives early to The Post Toy and Doll Fund, because it will relieve the anxiety of many parents and guardians who have been facing the dire possibility of a toyless Christmas for the little ones in their charge.

Mary Roberts Rinehart, the famous writer, believes in making stories come true, especially stories in which good little girls and boys have full stockings of gifts on Christmas morning. Mrs. Rinehart spent lots of time last week gathering toys of her grandchildren and sending them to The Washington Post Toy and Doll Fund. There was a whole taxicab full of them. Dolls, games and doll furniture and the kind of books boys and girls like to read.

Men and women who pass the headquarters of the Toy Fund on their way to and from the Government departments are attracted by the bright Christmas tree and the Christmas-like atmosphere of the place. They stop in, learn all about the fund and then hurry out, buy a toy or two or give a donation. A number of Government employes have appointed themselves unofficial guides to other employes in showing them the place to bring their toys and donations for the Christmas of Washington's needy children.

Boys and girls who have been worrying about Santa Claus not having their addresses for Christmas Eve have found their way to the Santa Claus Lady at The Washington Post Toy Fund headquarters. Some of these are boys and girls of fortunate parents who have salaries or incomes from which they can assist Santa Claus in filling the stocking at their homes Christmas Eve. Others are the boys and girls of parents out of work and without income. Santa Claus has a way of remembering rich and poor alike, if he can just get aid enough from the citizens of Washington.

No Empty Stockings.

Real Christmas joy will abound in Washington, at Christmas time if each one does his or her part to see their are no empty stockings in our city on Christmas. A fine-looking boy of 13 came "shopping" at The Fund headquarters. "Father has not been working for a long time," he said. "I guess we should be thankful to have something to eat, but somehow everybody wants presents on Christmas. I want some for myself, but I would love to have a doll for my sister, Betty, who is 8-years-old. She broke her doll. I tried to mend it, but it keeps falling apart. Of course, I would be glad to do any work about the headquarters to pay for our toys."

Betty will have a new doll through The Post Toy and Doll Fund and her brave brother will not be forgotten this year.

Lodges Honor Deceased Elks

Memorial Services Held at Armstrong and Dunbar Schools.

Annual memorial services of Columbia Lodge and Columbia Temple, Morning Star Lodge and Forest Temple, of colored Elks, were held last night, the former in the auditorium of the Armstrong High School, and the latter at the Dunbar High School.

Judge W. C. Hueston, grand commissioner of education, delivered the memorial oration at the Columbia exercises, being introduced by E. W. Bundy, master of ceremonies. The welcome address was by John C. Bruce and response by Mrs. Lena J. Hart. Lee Campbell called the roll of "absent brothers," and Lavinia Fair, the roll call of "absent daughters." The thanatopsis was said by Grace Jackson. Musical numbers were furnished by Eunice Diggs, James Monroe, Mattie Norris, Columbia Chorus, and East Washington Male Chorus.

The memorial oration at Morning Star and Forest Temple exercises, was made by Dr. J. J. Porter. Opening ceremonies were conducted by William B. Harris, exalted ruler. The thanatopsis, by Milton Jones, was followed by a pontomime, "Rock of Ages," by Mary Shields and an oration by Ethel M. McDowell. Closing ceremonies were conducted by Blanche Jones. The Elks' band, lodge and temple choir, Choral Club of Mount Airy Baptist Church, together with Enoch Ayres and Lillian Brent, furnished music. Grace Rich was mistress of ceremonies.

Pastor Recites Missions' Need Amid Luxuries

Dr. Lenski Also Cites Big Armament Costs as Churches Suffer.

Citing need for more and better workers in the church at home as well as in the missionary field, Dr. Gerhard E. Lenski spoke on "Rethinking Missions" last night at Grace Lutheran Church. The occasion was the annual thank offering for missions raised by the women of the congregation.

"The home field needs men and women who are able to see how indispensable Christianity is and how it is the cement that holds our Nation and the world together," said Dr. Lenski.

"Part of the church's trouble is financial. Church people have had money for every conceivable luxury and pleasure, but time after time they have sent men to the foreign field only to fail to maintain them there. People who spend $800,000,000 yearly, in order to keep prepared for war and who give pennies for the sake of peace and good will, have little reason to wonder why the world is aflame with hate and why the Gospel does not usher in any millennium of lasting peace."

He deplored the condition in which "compromise has taken the place of conviction" of the power of Christianity, declaring:

"With such unfounded reasoning and slipshod thinking as that which conclude that one god is as good as another and that man can be good without any God, Christ has been betrayed in the house of His friends, the church has been undermined, and the nerve of missions has been cut."

Dr. Lenski urged that "the eyes of men be opened to the serious issue involved," adding:

"Let them see the foes that stand against them—greed, lust, war, hate and death. They must rise and combat pagan sensuality and worldly synicism. There is no place for neutarlity, compromise, inertia or indifference."

Kidnaped Canadians Leave French Island

St. Pierre, Dec. 10 (AP).—Four Canadian Coast Guardsmen, who were brought here when the crew of the rumrunner Kromhout kidnaped them Thursday, left today for Halifax.

The men maintained silence about their abduction. The crew of the Kromhout remained in jail as steps to remove them to Canada went forward.

Roper Praises "Golden Rule" Charity Week

Mrs. Roosevelt Declares White House Menus Will Be Simple.

Following announcement by Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt that the White House will observe Golden Rule Week, Secretary of Commerce Roper yesterday broadcast an indorsement of the proposal that inexpensive meals be served this week with the purpose of giving to charity the money saved.

He termed the plan of the Golden Rule Foundation "an humanitarian idea resulting from the efforts of certain Americans who cared for unfortunate orphans left in the wake of the World War in foreign lands and especially in the Near East."

A set of menus also is suggested by the foundation, which arranged to have its appeal voiced from pulpits throughout the Nation. These menus will be followed at the White House, in cooperation with the effort to relieve human need.

"An appreciation of the Golden Rule as an ideal has long been generally advocated," Mr. Roper told his radio audience, "but to many persons it is yet regarded more as a theory than as a result actually attainable through human conduct.

"It is interesting in this connection to reflect upon the fact that our Government, through its recovery program, is endeavoring on a vast scale to see that there is a better sharing of the natural and created gifts of our times. The much-talked-of codes, regulations and shortened hours of labor are parts of the effort to give opportunity and means of livelihood to all in need. The successful application of this will create a new and safer civilization for our country and through its leadership prompt such results for the world.

"The Golden Rule Foundation, organized some years ago by a group of great-hearted and philanthropic men and women, seeks to promote the spirit of brotherhood so much needed in these days. In this spirit of helpfulness for humanity it is proper that industry and labor, agriculture and commerce, unite in promoting better understanding and assume the responsibility for the relief of those less well circumstanced."

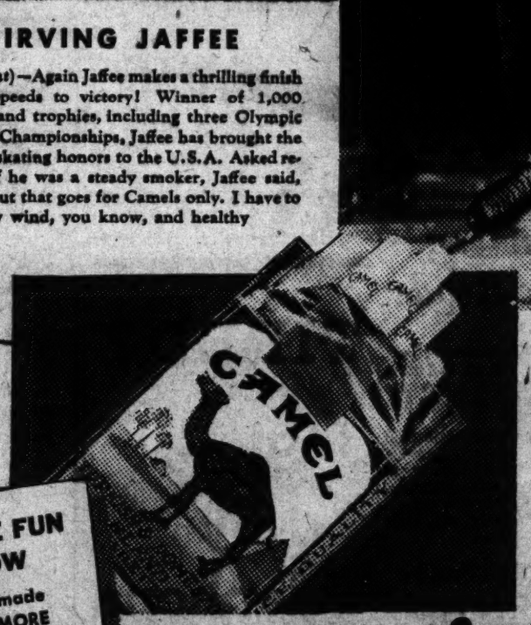
IRVING JAFFEE

(At Right)—Again Jaffee makes a thrilling finish as he speeds to victory! Winner of 1,000 medals and trophies, including three Olympic Skating Championships, Jaffee has brought the highest skating honors to the U.S.A. Asked recently if he was a steady smoker, Jaffee said, "Yes—but that goes for Camels only. I have to keep my wind, you know, and healthy nerves."



A MATCHLESS BLEND

IT IS MORE FUN TO KNOW

Camels are made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE tobaccos than any other popular brand.

Steady Smokers turn to Camels

You've often seen his name and picture in the papers—Jaffee, the city-bred boy from the U.S.A. who beat the best that Europe had to offer, and became the skating champion of the world! Speaking of speed skating and cigarettes, Jaffee says: "It takes healthy nerves and plenty of wind to be an Olympic skating champion. I find that Camels, because of their costlier tobaccos, are mild and likable in taste. And, what is even more important to a champion athlete, they never upset the nerves."

Change to Camels and note the difference in your nerves... in the pleasure you get from smoking! Camels are milder... have a better taste. They never upset your nerves. Begin today!

Norfolk Church Jubilee Hears D. C. Educator

Norfolk, Va., Dec. 10 (Spl.).—The Rev. Ignatius Smith, O. P., of Catholic University, Washington, delivered the jubilee sermon in St. Mary's Catholic Church here today in honor of the church's seventy-fifth anniversary, and then went by plane to Washington to speak this afternoon.

The Very Rev. A. J. Brennan, bishop of Richmond, occupied a seat in the sanctuary while Father Smith was speaking. The Washington priest declared St. Mary's had grown in Norfolk like Catholicism in America and throughout the world.

"This sacred church, which represents the finest type of Gothic architecture in the United States, is not old; it's just beginning to spread its influence in the community," he said.

He paid tribute to Father E. Brosnan, pastor, and to the late Father Matthews O'Keefe, under whose pastorate the church was built. Father O'Keefe was transferred from here to Towson, Md., where he constructed a replica of St. Mary's.

An overflow crowd included many city officials and Protestants.

Mrs. Rodney, the former Frances Strickland Lovell, of Seattle, jumped 20 feet to the ground from a window to escape flames which destroyed the McCormick home.

Five Convicts Fire Prison; Escape Fails

Long-Termers Captured After 200 Policemen Surround Walls.

Boston, Dec. 10 (U.P.).—Five convicts, three of them serving life sentences, who tried to escape from the State prison at Charlestown late today, were captured and placed in solitary confinement after they had set fire to the penitentiary.

Three alarms were sounded and 200 policemen, armed with riot guns and tear gas bombs, formed a ring about the prison.

The prisoners returned to their cells late this afternoon after attending a moving picture show. Guards had returned 80 felons to the Cherry Hill section, where the most hardened are segregated, when it was discovered that five were missing.

Five guards, armed with rifles, were sent to the walls while Deputy Warden Herman Godendros sounded the alarm. The missing men were traced to the brush shop. Soon they emerged, carrying a rope to the end of which a hook was attached to catch on the wall.

As Edward J. Field, a guard, took aim the men fled back to the brush shop. As they had fired the building flames inside drove them to the second floor and they were forced to leap from windows.

Patrick Boyle and two other guards then ran across the prison yard and recaptured the men.

Those who tried to escape were John J. Oliver, Charles O'Brien, Thomas J. Gilday, all lifers, and Charles F. Devine and Fred Burke.

Stained glass windows in the Episcopal Church of St. Columba, Forty-second and Albemarle streets northwest, were described at a service in the edifice yesterday afternoon as one of the finest collections in Washington by William Tyler Page, senior warden and former clerk of the House of Representatives.

Illustrating the pagan and Christian symbolism of Thirteenth Century Gothic, the windows were made by domestic artists of imported glass, Page said.

The two principal windows are the Sanctuary Window, depicting Christ enthroned in glory, and the front window of the nave, which will show St. Columba of Iona, the Apostle of Scotland. The Sanctuary window, carried out with a deep blue background with the figure of the Savior clothed in red garments and the figures of St. Michael and St. Malchisdec on the right and left, appears in great richness.

Page explained how this window is handblown by two men, one who blows purple and the other blue; blowing the glass down together while it melts into gorgeous tints, as in the petals of a pansy. This color symbolizes sanctified suffering while the ruby and gold tints blown in the same way symbolize the love of Christ for the souls of men, he said. Twenty different blues are set in Mosaic in juxtaposition to give vibration.

The 10 aisle windows, each with two lancets, containing medallion scenes from the life of Christ, show the sacred number of 40 subjects, beginning with the Annunciation and ending with the Ascension.

Page said the imps at the hem of St. Columbia's robe in the front window over the door are trying to pull him down, symbolic of the unsaintly traits he had to overcome.

More Poised, Marion Talley Resumes Concert Appearances

Kansas Farm Girl Loses Weight; Voice Holds Same Rare Charm.

Norfolk, Va., Dec. 10 (AP).—Marion Talley, formerly of the Metropolitan Opera but more recently of a farm in Kansas, was brought to Norfolk to sing last night for the benefit of old St. Mary's Catholic Church during the three-day observance of its diamond jubilee.

The concert was not merely another recital. It was news, just as Miss Talley's debut at the Metropolitan as Gilda in "Rigoletto" some seven years ago was news.

Last night was marked by the first appearance of Miss Talley in her reappearance period as a concert singer, the first step in her come-back venture.

She has come back just about to the point where she was when she stopped singing and began sowing, when she forsook cadenzas for corn and roulades for ranching.

That is not true as to her physical appearance; either farming or fashion has considerably reduced her. She was a rather sturdy little girl; she is now rather slenderly rounded.

But, as a singer, there is not much difference. She has a deal more of poise, she is not so obviously equipped to play as well as to sing the role of the mechanical doll in "The Tales of Hoffman," and the pretty little voice contains more warmth than it had six years ago.

She is still at her best in sustained songs and flowing phrases. She must still depend almost wholly on the beauty of her voice, and not at all on interpretation or artistry or sheer musicianship.

Lobbyist Lost Entry to PWA, Also Projects

Ickes Plans to Put Ban on Others Classed as Objectionable.

The project for which James Lawrence Bernard, officially persona non grata at the Public Works Administration, was lobbying has been turned down and the ones which he opposed have been approved, it was said at the administration office yesterday. The projects are in Florida.

The order of Secretary Ickes forbidding employes of the Public Works Administration having any dealings with Bernard is just a part of the Secretary's war on lobbying, it was said.

It was explained that the Secretary is planning to "put his finger" on other lobbyists whose activities he considers improper and that he may "put his foot on some of them."

Meanwhile, Bernard said he is not planning to do anything about the Ickes order. He denied a report that he had atempted to enter the building of the Public Works Administration and had been stopped by a guard.

Trouble Laid to Governor.

"I haven't been near the place since the order was issued," he said.

The order forbidding dealings with Bernard resulted from a complaint from Gov. Dave Sholtz of Florida, Secretary Ickes said. Ickes explained that, according to Gov. Sholtz, Bernard attempted to have the governor recommend a project in which Bernard was interested, and had told the governor that unless the project was recommended he would see that other Florida projects were blocked.

Bernard said he had telephoned to Gov. Sholtz in behalf of a road project in which H. B. Roberts of the Roberts Paving Co., was interested. Roberts had been staying at the Hamilton Hotel, where it was said he had gone to Florida.

Bernard Points to Record.

Bernard refused to amplify the following statement, which he issued after the Ickes order was made public:

"I am a manufacturers' agent and represent 20 or more reputable concerns. My duties consist of securing proposals for bids, submitting them to manufacturers, attending the opening of bids and in general acting as agent for them in their relations with Government departments. I am a registered Republican in Chevy Chase, Md., and am in no way and never was connected with any Democratic organization. My record in Washington for 20 years without criticism, so far as I am aware, speaks for itself."

Rotary Leader, President of Alfred University, Suffers Stroke.

Alfred, N. Y., Dec. 10 (AP).—Dr. Paul E. Titsworth, president of Alfred University and one of the two United States representatives of the international service committee of Rotary International, died today of heart disease. He was 52 years old.

Dr. Titsworth had served as president of Alfred University, of which he was a graduate and former instructor, less than two months, having been inaugurated last October 20 to succeed Dr. Boothe C. Davis, president emeritus for 38 years.

Dr. Titsworth had returned to Alfred from Washington College at Chestertown, Md., where he served as president for 10 years.

Following his graduation from Alfred in 1904, Dr. Titsworth went to the University of Wisconsin, where he became a doctor of philosophy in 1909.

He was president of the village of Alfred in 1917.

The survivors, besides the widow, are three daughters, Elizabeth and Katherine, of Alfred, and Eleanor, of Baltimore, and a sister, Miss Helen A. Titsworth, of Lawrence, Kan.

Funeral services will be Wednesday afternoon at the First Alfred Seventh Day Baptist Church, with burial here.

J. W. D. Halsey, West Virginia Lawyer, Dies

John Warwick Daniel Halsey, 54, lawyer and Democratic leader, of Charleston, W. Va., died yesterday at the Keystone Hotel following an attack of heart disease.

The brother of Edwin A. Halsey, secretary to the United States Senate, Halsey at different times served as secretary to Senator John W. Daniel, of Virginia, his uncle, and Senator William E. Chilton, West Virginia publisher, at Washington.

Subsequently he became a member of the Charleston law firm of Chilton, Chilton & Halsey. He was a leading West Virginia figure in several Democratic National conventions, serving as sergeant at arms. During the 1928 Presidential campaign he served as political secretary to Franklin D. Roosevelt, who was then a candidate for the New York governorship.

A few years ago, when the Charleston law firm was dissolved for a reorganization, Halsey withdrew and returned to Washington to do work for the Democratic National committee.

A native of Richmond, Va., he was the son of the late Capt. Don T. Halsey and Sarah Warwick Daniel Halsey. Besides Edwin A. Halsey, he leaves two other brothers, Judge Don D. Halsey, of the Virginia Circuit Court, and C. Halsey, now in the West.

Funeral services will be held at Lynchburg, Va., tomorrow, with burial in the family plot.

World Prices and the Dollar.

Dollar depreciation is presented to the American public as a price-raising device at home and a stimulus to sales abroad. Strange to say, however, other countries regard the continuous declines in the exchange value of the dollar as a deflationary influence tending to depress world prices and retard the upward trend in industrial production which began to be manifest about a year ago.

For instance, the British chancellor of the exchequer, Neville Chamberlain, recently told a political gathering that the "constant fluctuations of the dollar and the consequent uncertainties and anxieties which are spread throughout the rest of the world are bound to shake confidence and slow down trade revival."

The London Economist, an organ of liberal opinion, takes an equally positive position, affirming that "Economic recovery in the world as a whole has been increasingly hampered by the deflationary effect of the combination of a pronounced recession in the United States with President Roosevelt's policy of forcing depreciation in the external value of the dollar."

Whatever the causes of the declines, wholesale prices in a number of leading industrial countries receded in October, following sustained advances which had brought the price level above that of October, 1932. This reversal of trend was attributed by some commentators to the fall in American prices in terms of gold, which, they assert, tends to drag down price levels not only in gold currency countries but in countries off the gold standard. It is significant that similar price reactions were perceptible over a wide area after Great Britain abandoned the gold standard.

Price-depressing factors inevitably appear when two countries, once regarded as the trading and financial leaders of the world, adopt monetary policies which result in a progressive lowering of the gold values of the goods which they produce and sell abroad, and at the same time reduce the gold value of the national income available for foreign purchases. It is true that the complications introduced by currency depreciation are so numerous and obscure in their workings as to elude analysis. But there is little or no doubt that the uncertainties and the trade dislocations created by currency depreciation act to demoralize world markets in much the same way as a particularly fierce and unregulated kind of domestic competition.

According to the London Financial News the "adverse repercussions of the artificial depreciation of the dollar upon international prices have received more attention than the potential dangers of undercutting from American manufacturers." The News explains this indifference by pointing out that the character of our export trade is not likely to bring us into very direct conflict with British exporters. The Economist shares this view, concluding that on the basis of the status quo, about two-thirds of all British exports are substantially immune from American competitors.

Assuming, however, that American raw materials might, in the absence of retaliation, take a larger share of the trade in other foreign markets, if the gold value of the dollar continues to decline, what should we gain? The apparent advantage would be outweighed many times by loss of trading opportunities due to the effect of exchange instability. A fluctuating currency interferes with placement of future orders, strangles normal commercial intercourse between nations and invites retaliation. Trade expansion, accompanied by rising prices for world products, can not be fostered in such an unhealthy atmosphere.

Vicissitudes of Journalism.

China at last is learning to appreciate her newspaper men. Over a long period of years the life of a journalist in China seems to have been about as precarious as that of kidnapers in California. At any rate, that is the impression one obtains from the jubilee edition of the Peking Gazette, which claims to be the second oldest newspaper in the world. In celebrating its 1,000th anniversary, the Gazette called attention to the fact that no fewer than 1,797 of its editors have been executed.

It is impossible at this date to determine how many of them deserved their punishment. Some of the editors, it is said, lost their heads because they failed to live up to the elaborate rules of politeness which governed human relations in ancient China. Others may have printed embarrassing stories about the imperial B. O. W., the S. A. K. and the B. O. G., or whatever alphabetical combinations may have prevailed at that time. Still others may have refused to print bureaucratic propaganda in full. But that is beside the point. The significant factor is that China is learning to appreciate her journalists at last.

When the Gazette brought forth this graphic evidence of high mortality among editors a wave of remorse swept over officials at Nanking. The government is reported to have issued a mandate threatening "severe punishment" to any provincial or local official who may be found guilty of "the summary arrest or execution of newspaper men."

Germany may clamp the iron fist of Nazlism on her press. Italy may squelch every young liberal who has a thought contrary to the edicts of Mussolini. Even in America newspaper men may be hampered by the red tape that has been wound around the Treasury, and their wits may be paralyzed by the "factual information" dispensed from the National Emergency Council. But, thank goodness, China has decided to do right by her newspaper men.

The Same Mistake.

Those who are advocating a Federal anti-lynch law upon the contention that Federal power alone is sufficient to control mob outbreaks, are falling into the same fallacious line of reasoning as that which produced the National prohibition act.

In 1885, the total number of lynchings in the United States was 184. The fact that 106 victims were white indicates that most of the extra-legal executions were attributable to such organizations as the Vigilantes of the old West, whose action was directed primarily to impressing the yoke of law upon the lawless element of a wild new territory.

At the turn of the century, when pioneering days were ending and our civilization had subsided further into legal molds, the number of persons lynched had been reduced to 115 and the proportion was 8 whites and 107 Negroes. One phase of the problem appeared to have disappeared and there was left largely the race-prejudice incitement to mob violence.

By organizing and crystallizing public opinion by stripping mob action of any glamor and any pretended virtues, or defense of virtues, and revealing it as stark and ugly, we have made slow but steady progress toward elimination of the evil. In 1910, the number of victims stood at 74; by 1920 it had been reduced to 61, and by 1925 to 17.

The low point for all time was reached in 1929, when 3 white persons and 7 Negroes were lynched. There was a flareback in 1930, but in spite of that the number dropped to 13 the following year. Even though the depression was supposed to have increased the tension between the class which lynches and its victims, there has been a steady downward trend on the graph.

The fight is not won, but victory is close enough to see, and history attests the soundness of the methods that have been tried. The recent California and Maryland outrages have served further to crystallize sentiment and to provide the President a setting for a clear and uncompromising declaration of the country's determination to have done with such lawlessness.

To enact a Federal lynch law and shift the responsibility to the National Government would be to relax that strong cordon of sentiment that has been built up and to break down the sense of local responsibility and local shame that attach to lynchings. It would be making the same sort of surrender to a fictitious expediency that the advocates of temperance made when they persuaded themselves that the Federal Government should undertake to enforce prohibition.

The Tiger Gets His.

Last week had its "Black Friday"—one of many—for the taxpayers of New York City. A retiring board of estimate, composed of Tammany faithful, granted pensions to 120 employes, among them Mayor John O'Brien, who got $12,000, and continued in service 362 others who have passed the retirement age, saddling them for at least a year on the incoming administration.

The new board of estimate that comes in on January 1 is controlled by Maj. LaGuardia and his Fusionists. The rush of sachems and subsachems and plain braves to get in under the wire before then was due to two things. Mayor-elect LaGuardia has announced that he is for a complete overhauling of the pension system, with limitation of the maximum pension to $5,000.

Moreover, the mayor-elect has promised that some examination of the merit of the applicant's service would be made in the future. That would seriously embarrass the political leaders and ward heelers who, according to the Seabury investigation, never saw the inside of their municipal offices week after week.

Tammany is not seriously concerned that the taxpayers howl in protest. Of course, they do rise up and kick the sachems out of control every now and then, but after all, as Thomas F. Curry is reported to have said in the recent campaign, no reform administration has lasted more than four years in New York City.

Joint Liquor Taxes.

President Roosevelt's special interdepartmental committee, which has concluded an extensive study of liquor problems that will confront Congress in January, recommends a tax of $2.60 per gallon on distilled spirits. The committee suggests that the proceeds might be shared with the wet States under an agreement to confine State liquor taxes to occupational or license fees. It is understood that 20 per cent of the Federal receipts would be divided among these States on the basis of production plus consumption in each area.

The obvious purpose of this plan is to avoid the imposition of heavy State taxes that might run counter to the spirit of the repeal amendment. Throughout the United States there is a strong desire to eliminate the bootlegger from the liquor business. To accomplish this objective liquor taxes must be kept at a reasonable level. Yet the States as well as the Federal Government are looking to liquor as a prolific source of revenue. Apparently the committee considers the danger of excessive taxation sufficiently great to warrant the collection of an "over-all" tax by the Federal Treasury with the view of eliminating State gallonage taxes.

Similar plans to have Uncle Sam collect revenue for the States have been recommended. The most prominent of these in the proposed uniform gasoline tax under which the States would waive their rights to tax gasoline in consideration of a division of the receipts from a higher Federal levy.

The power to tax liquor is a great part of the power to control it. Under the proposed arrangement, Congress could move the tax rates up or down, or impose conditions upon the expenditure of funds derived from the liquor levies. Many States doubtless will be reluctant, in the face of these possibilities, to surrender the rights which they so recently have regained.

The desirability of keeping liquor taxes within reasonable bounds generally is admitted. But would the plan of levying a uniform Federal tax high enough to supply both National and State treasuries serve this purpose? If some States should decide to impose additional taxes in emergencies, the maintenance of a uniform and reasonable tax level would be impossible. In other words, unless all the States could be brought and held within the proposed agreement, the plan might defeat its own objective.

A Good Point.

Arthur Kallett, who told the Senate subcommittee considering the proposed Tugwell food and drug bill, that he represented Consumers Research, Inc., made what seems a valid point against Senator Copeland, of New York, at the hearing on Friday.

Mr. Kallett said that it was impossible to get a fair hearing of the bill when the chairman of the committee was under contract for radio broadcasts to one of the manufacturers whose product comes under the purview of the food and drugs administration. It is not necessary to go that far at all and, indeed, The Post does not impugn the fairness of Senator Copeland. But as long as the question has been raised and as long as the circumstances are what they are, Senator Copeland would satisfy the highest dictates of good taste if he recused himself from the committee or withdrew from the contract.

Public officials ought to keep themselves aloof from any contacts that give rise even to suspicion that they might prejudge a case.

What Makes a Coach Good?

His team won only 3 out of 10 games this year, whereas before this season it had lost but 2 out of the previous 26. Dissatisfied alumni contended that this season was the test of Anderson's coaching ability. Rockne died in 1931 and the team kept on winning for that season and the next. In judging Anderson, school authorities apparently sustained the contention that the team had run on the Rockne momentum until this disastrous year.

In all the discussion, one point ought not be lost to view: A coach is a good coach only when he wins football games. In our less sophisticated days, when we invested people with auras and endowed objectives with Holy Grail principles, we argued that a coach was a good coach only if he developed the spiritual, as well as the physical, in a boy. Teaching a youngster to kick a football around was only building the physical framework upon which to impose noble purposes, lofty ideals and a forthright, sterling manhood, we told ourselves between whoops for our favorite teams.

It is a melancholy reflection that, in all the discussion of Coach Anderson's resignation, no effort has been made to appraise what he might have done in that sphere.

A Word for China.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I wonder if you could voice a word of protest now and then against the well-organized, and well-subsidized imperialistic (mostly Japanese) campaign which now evidences itself through the American press, in blaming the patient Chinese people for the crime of an opium traffic, of which they are in fact none but sad and disheartened onlookers.

Under the unequal treaties, the National Government of China can't touch a hair of the hundreds of international foreign opium gangsters. If these allegedly highly subsidized writers whose hearts are apparently bleeding for the victims of the opium traffic would recall that every one of the half billion Chinese is the innocent victim of a slavery, a thousand times more irrevocable and merciless in its bondage, than any mere personal vice or habit, their hearts would stop bleeding at once at the thought: "Well after all they are only Chinese, and the longer we hold them in bondage, the less likely they will give us any trouble. "Apres nous le deluge."

The Chinese, by reason of their love of labor and their natural propensity toward avocational work, are, from any close observation of them for over a quarter of a century, more self-restrained and self-contained in their assiduously devoted simple lives, and more free from vicious blemishes than any other race. China never used opium until forced so to do, by the English Opium War gang. Why not give China a chance today, so that on the morrow of its final controlling influence of the whole world, it likewise will give the other nations their chances? Why constantly harass this noble and great civilization, because as a force of peace, it won't fight back? Yours for Sino-American friendship.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I am indeed grateful to The Post cartoonist, for now, after seeing his production Friday morning, I know the meaning of AAA. It is clearly Amateur Athletic Association. Perhaps he will be equally enlightening as to the NRA and other scrambled letter puzzles.

The merry fight is on, as depicted by the cartoonist, and it appears to have developed into a scramble for position, salary and other honors and emoluments incident to the institution of so many new offices for the sake of alleged recovery. With resignations and wars of words on account of toes stepped on by rivals in the game, and with the one example of a stenographer boosted nearly $6,000 per year after cuts, millions are still in dire need. These features are indications—if further signs were needed—that the capitalistic structure is very sick and needs to be socialized, for the benefit of the many instead of the few.

High-Salaried Secretaries.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In my humble opinion, the reporter who dug up that story about Gen. Johnson's secretary getting a salary of $6,000, should be given an increase in pay. I have just heard of a telephone operator who has been putting in 19 hours a day at the NRA switchboard at the regular salary of such operators, who is now flat on her back with tuberculosis. And does she get any relief? When highly trained business and professional men and women, with enough experience to make them of value, can only get around $3,600 and $4,800 a year, it is about time an investigation was made as to why an appointment like this can get by.

Keep up the good work; tell us about some more of these high-salaried secretaries and let the news get into all the papers all over the country. WORKER.

We Blush and Bow.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It gives me pleasure to read your excellent paper and I feel it only just to tell you so. It is good print, good size, and seems to take particular interest in expressing in good form what the average citizen is thinking and has no means of publicly expressing. I particularly enjoy Mr. Bargeron, also Mr. Robey.

Col. Roosevelt's article, or rather the report of his address, must appeal to all those who have their little savings at the mercy of those who can afford to experiment and to whom the advance of prices will bring no alleviation even if they do advance. Your paper, I think, was one of the first to do justice to our good American citizen, Henry Ford. I hope you will continue to read and express the minds of the suffering silent ones in your worthy paper. M. M. STOCKWELL.

Edwin Booth.

It is remarkable, when we know that the fame of actors usually fades with the last echoes of their voice, that the one hundredth anniversary of the birth of Edwin Booth has been celebrated in nearly every part of the United States, and that in New York there were formal commemorative exereises lasting three days, beginning with a Sunday ceremony in the great Cathedral of St. John the Divine.

Edwin Booth was not only the greatest actor ever born in America, he was assuredly the most beloved. He had the respect of all the Shakespearean scholars and the affection of the multitude. The tragedies in his own life steeped him in melancholy, so that he looked the part of the most famous character he played. He was kind and sympathetic and generous and noble-hearted.

I heard him as Hamlet, Richelieu, Shylock, Brutus, Ruy Blas, Othello, Iago, Macbeth—and I have always regretted that I never heard him in that strange melodrama called The Fool's Revenge.

When I was a graduate student at Harvard, I suped in the performance of Julius Caesar; and I was selected as one of six "skin guards" to carry the body of Brutus (Mr. Booth) off the stage. We lifted him tenderly, carried him into the wings, and deposited him gently in a huge armchair. He put his hand on my shoulder and said, "Well done, boys!" so that I have always been proud of the accolade I received from the greatest actor of his time.

An admirable biography of him, called "Darling of Misfortune," is by Richard Lockridge, drama critic of the New York Sun. And an intimate record is by Katharine Goodale, called "Behind the Scenes with Edwin Booth."

Good Seed Can Not Produce Good Crops if the Soil Is No Good

By Robert Quillen

Smart men use many words to explain America's misfortunes, but the basic cause of every trouble that afflicts this stricken land is the plain old-fashioned sin of dishonesty.

The looting of banks, the selling of worthless stocks and bonds, cheating stockholders, racketeering, corrupting officials, stealing elections, misruling cities—every evil you can mention, from fake advertising to banditry, has its roots in dishonesty.

The nation is devoured by a plague of rogues. Dishonor is no longer shameful if it pays a profit.

How, then, can the nation be saved? Not by means of laws. People are not made righteous by statute.

The task before us, then, is to make people honest, and ages of experience have developed but two dependable methods.

One is to teach pride in decency and the other is to teach religion.

Pride in decency usually is a form of family pride. The boy is a gentleman because he was born a Fitzhugh, and a Fitzhugh gentleman simply doesn't stoop to dishonor. Being proud of his honor, nothing can induce him to sacrifice it.

This method is successful, but its field is limited. Those who have little reason to be proud, and will not be honest for pride's sake, are supported in virtue by religion as nothing else will support them.

Do you question religion's influence in shaping character? Why do preachers' sons, few as they are, outnumber any other group in Who's Who?

True, investigators find that 50 per cent of those in prison have had "religious training," but what kind of "training" did they have?

They listened to meaningless lip service; observed a ritual they despised; heard pious phrases mouthed by hypocrites.

Children must absorb religion, and they do absorb it in homes where God is honored and parents set the daily example of righteousness, charity, compassion and loving kindness.

Such homes develop youngsters who will not steal, and civilization has found no substitute for them.

BARGERON.

THERE is considerable belief hereabouts that the Central Information Bureau, which it was recently announced Mr. Roosevelt intends to set up, means more than appears on the surface. One first thought was that it was just another governmental agency, and another one was that it was a move toward a tighter control over news that went out about the Administration.

There is a strong belief now, however, that what Mr. Roosevelt really has in mind is to deal a mortal blow to the hangers-on, the fixers—that indefinite horde living off every administration by professing to be able to get things done.

• • • •

IT is no secret that an unusually aggressive and blatant crowd has descended on the Administration. Their operations, the utter lack of restraint with which they go about their business, the total absence of any of the niceties that usually go with the trade, are known to have given friends of the Administration considerable concern. Mr. Roosevelt knows his politicians too well to have any recurrence of the Harding scandals break around him.

Notwithstanding the concern with which many of these activities are being viewed, several recent departmental orders have unwittingly made for their greater development, instead of checking or eliminating them.

• • • •

THE situation in the Treasury Department is being bruited around as a shining example of this. Mr. Morgenthau, when he took over the department, sought to establish a rigid control over all news and information about Treasury activities. He was, of course, trying to eliminate the situation by which it was known some subordinate officials were not in accord with the President's gold operations.

But, taking his cue from the Treasury head, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Robert, in charge of the Government's vast public buildings program, issued orders that no one in the procurement division, the division having to do with this program, shall during office hours talk, either by telephone or otherwise, with any one not a fellow employe.

• • • •

THIS apparently innocent order has opened up a bonanza for the boys who claim they can get things done. This division deals with hundreds and hundreds of building specifications for which contracts have been let. Nearly every contractor, after beginning work on a Government job, comes to a point where specifications must be changed here and there. Usually the change is of as much benefit to the Government as to the contractor. Anyway it is a proper matter for discussion.

Contractors who have extensive dealings with the Government have for the most part maintained representatives here, who whenever the question of making a change in specifications came up, went directly to the man in the procurement division handling the particular contract. Of course, any change had to be approved by the assistant secretary.

• • • •

UNDER the new arrangement these representatives can not contact the man who is dealing with their contract and who knows about it. They complain, in fact, that they can get nowhere at all. Instead, they say that after days of wandering around the suggestion comes to them in some mysterious way that perhaps they may be able to get somewhere if they see a certain well-known politician, who has established offices here.

Neither Mr. Morgenthau nor Mr. Robert expected any such situation as this to develop from their orders. But no Administration has a greater problem with which to deal than its camp followers.

Under the Central Information Bureau, which Mr. Roosevelt is to set up, it will be possible for anyone, the humblest citizen, to go to the agency established in his particular State and get such information and service as he is entitled to. There will be no need, or at least there should not be if this is the primary purpose of the bureau and it works, for anyone to pay out money to "get things done in Washington."

Just Folks.

Man's Seven Photographic Ages.

First he's welcomed to the earth—
"Mother to a son gives birth!"

Among "the babies of the year!"

Then ('tis every school boy's dream):
"Valued member of the team!"

Soon this double-column spread:
"College graduate to wed."

Follows this at forty-five;
"Heads a charitable drive!"

Now this text his cut requires:
"Prominent business man retires!"

Final picture! Sadly say:
"Well-known man died yesterday!"

Pan-American Session Waits U. S. Statement

Hull's Monetary Proposal Expected Soon; Tariff Action Nears.

Montevideo, Dec. 10 (AP).—Attention of the Pan-American Conference as it entered its second week today was centered on Argentina's move for Pan-American and world tariff conferences and an anticipated statement by Secretary of State Cordell Hull on the financial and economic policy of the United States.

The delicate Chaco question was simmering in private conversations, kept alive by Dr. Gabriel Terra, of Uruguay, Secretary Hull and Miguel Cruchaga, foreign minister of Chile, who are the spearhead of negotiations, although many delegates are pessimistic over the situation.

Mexico's peace code is before a subcommittee, but has not been published. It may be the basis of an important step in Pan-American harmony.

Informed circles are expecting daily a pronouncement from the United States delegation regarding the monetary situation, tariffs and the general economic situation.

A hint of the American attitude was contained in a statement of Mr. Hull, during debate in the steering committee on the Mexican financial plan, in which he said he hoped other nations would act to restore prices to their 1926 levels or thereabouts, after which currency could be stabilized.

He also was expected to state that a reduction of tariff barriers is desirable.

Dr. Carlos Saavedra Lamas, Argentine foreign minister, has obtained a special commission to consider his tariff conference project. The committee announced that the tariff subject would be taken up by the special economic commission.

The possibility that the conference will be asked to indorse the principle of nonintervention was unsettled, but Cubans may urge a strong resolution on that subject.

The purchase was handled by the Quartermaster Corps of the Army.

Cold Cure?

Airplane Flights Found Sure Relief.

Chicago, Dec. 10 (AP).—An airplane ride was foreseen as a possible cure for the so-called "common cold" by Dr. Haldor Carlsen.

"Pilots and stewardesses and other persons who have much to do with airplanes," Dr. Carlson explained, "have always believed that a high flight would cure a cold and numerous airplane officials have asked me about this belief.

"We made some further observations among passengers and we have revealed some 50 of them who have left Chicago with colds in various stages, from the 'sniffles' on, only to arrive at Newark, N. J., airport with their colds entirely gone.

"This corroboration of what was believed to be one of the folk tales of the airplane business has made it worth while studying and that is what we are doing now."

The explanation, Dr. Carlson said, may establish that the germ or combination of germs, as yet incompletely identified, which cause colds, can not live in high altitudes.

2,026 Belong To Home Loan Bank System

Chairman of Board Cites 14-Month Growth and Credit Available.

With approval of 29 additional applications, membership in the Federal Home Loan Bank system now totals 2,026, the Federal Home Loan Bank Board announced yesterday.

Pointing out that the system has been in existence only 14 months, John H. Fahey, chairman of the board said:

"The public significance of the Federal Home Loan Bank System is that the 2,026 present member institutions, through their subscriptions to 175,000 shares of stock in the regional Home Loan Banks, have access to a total line of credit from these banks aggregating nearly $210,000,000 to supplement their own resources and to supply additional loans to home owners for construction, repairs and maintenance at moderate interest rates."

He said applications for membership in the system, coming from building and loan associations and other home financing agencies, have increased rapidly during the past three months. Only savings banks, insurance companies and various types of building and loan associations are eligible for membership.

Hutton, the former Marjorie Post, of Washington, now of New York, whose philanthropies and extensive welfare activities rank her as one of America's most outstanding women, will be honored at the White House tomorrow by Mrs. Roosevelt, who will decorate her with the Cross of Honor of the United States Flag Association. This was made known by Col. James A. Moss, president general of the United States Flag Association, who announced that the decoration had been awarded Mrs. Hutton by the association's executive board in recognition of "rendering during the year 1932 greater service than did anyone else to the United States Flag Association in its efforts to foster American patriotism and otherwise make stronger and more secure the foundation on which the republic is established."

Sponsors Drive on Crime.

Mrs. Hutton's efforts were noteworthy particularly for her leadership in organizing the Women's National Council of the United States Flag Association under direction of which will be conducted the second and most far-reaching phase of the association's recently launched crusade against crime. This part of the anticrime movement is to consist of an exhaustive program of patriotic educational work among American girls and boys.

Women serving as honorary vice chairmen of the council include Mrs. William Howard Taft, Mrs. Calvin Coolidge, Mrs. John Nance Garner and all of the ladies of the Cabinet. The cross of honor, highest decoration of the United States Flag Association, was first awarded in 1927 when it was conferred upon Charles A. Lindbergh. Chief Justice Charles E. Hughes, chairman of the board of founders of the Flag Association, made the presentation on the steps of the United States Capitol the day following Lindbergh's return to America.

Coolidge Also Decorated.

The late Calvin Coolidge, former President Hoover and Amelia Earhart are other distinguished Americans upon whom the Cross of Honor has also been conferred.

Each year the cross is awarded to the man or woman who, during the preceding 12 months, has performed the most signal service in furthering patriotic work of the association.

Among distinguished officers and members of the association, who have been invited to attend the presentation ceremony, are all members of the Cabinet, each of whom is a member of the board of sponsors; the ladies of the Cabinet, all of whom are honorary vice chairmen of the Women's National Council; Chief Justice Charles E. Miss Hepburn's Parents to See "Lake" Opening

Probably the most interested of all the spectators for the opening night of Katharine Hepburn in "The Lake" at the National Theater Monday, December 18, will be the gifted young actress' father and mother, Dr. and Mrs. Thomas Hepburn, of Hartford, Conn., who will be the house guests of Mrs. Margaret Sanger. Others in the box with them will be Mrs. Edward Burling and Dr. and Mrs. Donald Hooker, of Baltimore, Mrs. Hooker, who is well known in Washington for her activity in the National Woman's Party, being Mrs. Hepburn's sister.

The opening night of the play is being sponsored by the Bryn Mawr Club of Washington in the interests of their scholarship fund. Both Mrs. Hepburn and Mrs. Hooker are graduates of Bryn Mawr, as is Miss Hepburn.

Among others who will entertain friends for the first performance will be Justice Pierce Butler and Mrs. Butler, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Granger, the Rev. and Mrs. Douglas P. Birnie, Col. and Mrs. U. S. Grant 3d, and Rabbi Abram Simon and Mrs. Simon with a party of eight.

Culbertson on Bridge

A Self-Operating Squeeze.

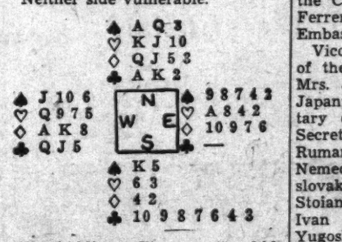
The unusual situation of a Declarer who finds himself with 9 tricks laid down at his contract of three notrump, but is unable to realize them in actual play is illustrated on the hand below, which was sent to me by Dr. Ernest Grether, of Midland, Mich. The reason why North, the Declarer on this hand, could not cash all his tricks was that his opponents were able to place him in a position where he could do nothing but squeeze himself.

Defensive situations such as this do sometimes occur at the Bridge table. A good player recognizes them instinctively. They occur where one player or the other can place the lead either in the Dummy or closed hand—usually the former—knowing that the Declarer has no card of entry remaining in his own holding.

The hand was:

North, Dealer.

Neither side vulnerable.



The bidding: (Figures after bids refer to numbered explanatory paragraphs.)

North	East	South	West
2NT(1)	Pass	3♣(2)	Pass
3NT(3)	Pass	Pass	Pass

1—North has 5 honor-tricks, an evenly balanced hand and what some players consider a strong indication of a final notrump contract—a hand containing many tenace situations.

2—An Opening two-notrump bid is, of course, very nearly Forcing. South does hold a seven-card suit and a King, which should be a card of entry. With this holding he must make some response to his partner's bid.

3—South's response, of course, encourages North to bid for game, and his balanced distribution, together with his top-card strength in clubs, suggests notrump as the best final contract.

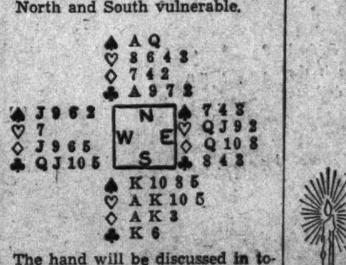
The Opening lead was a spade, which Declarer won in his own hand with the Ace and then laid down the Ace, King and another club. West, in the lead, returned a spade, and while this permitted the Declarer to cash six club tricks, he was unable to cash a trick, in either hearts or diamonds, the result being that his contract was defeated 1 trick. Obviously, to refuse to cash the established tricks in Dummy would prove equally ineffective as then East and West must take two spade tricks and sufficient tricks in the other suits to make the defeat even more decisive.

Tomorrow's Hand.

If you are Declarer as South at a contract of six hearts, what plan of play is most likely to assure the fulfillment of the contract?

West, Dealer.

North and South vulnerable.



The hand will be discussed in tomorrow's article.

Washington Woman Discovers Earthly Paradise in Bali, But Returns to Capital

Mrs. Dorothy Lee Ward is home from a year's trip around the world. She brought back 102 elephants (top left), visited a "marble navy" (center left), and saw the happy dancing girls of Bali, like the one pictured. Bali is Paradise, she says.

All Your Cash Can Buy Is Happiness for Some Child.

By Ruth Anne Davis.

A shop where shoppers can't shop! Not even if a crisp $20 bill is burning a hole in their hand can they spend it here! No, siree; they can't buy a single one of the pretty, perky little dolls which line the walls; not even a broken-down fire engine from the pile of toys heaped in the middle of the floor.

But what they can do is trade a toy, a doll, a dollar, or even $20 for the feeling of good cheer and well being which comes from contributing to a worthy cause. On the night before Christmas all the unpurchasable toy dogs, tin soldiers and dolls in this no-sale shop will be sent to gladden the hearts of little children whose parents can't buy them pretty things and stuff their stockings with sweetmeats.

Every toy, even the headless doll and the one-legged soldier—which are going to be fixed up to look like new!—is prophetic of the happy smile which is going to brighten some child's face on Christmas morning.

If you—or you—or you—have something around the house you'd like to give, call The Washington Post, and it will be collected.

Your contribution will help some child in Washington to have a merry Christmas!

The combination highboy and secretary in a downtown store is one of the newest types of furniture on the market. It was fashioned to look like a highboy alone, but the middle drawer opens out to turn it into a secretary.

The five tiers of drawers makes it a friendly piece to have around to take care of odds and ends which spread themselves around a room to take away its look of trim charm.

It isn't only baby daughter who's entitled to a doll this Christmas, it's grown-up daughter, too. An F street shop has some which will be sure to tickle her fancy as well as ornament her boudoir.

Some of them are gay blonde affairs with fluffy hair peeking out from under large picture hats gayly bedecked with ribbon bows to match the shimmering silk dresses. Others are vampish looking with their raven locks and exotic eyes.

At first glance they appear to be the very latest in Parisian dolls, but a little tag tucked away out of sight says they were made in America. Which might all go to prove that even dolls are copying the Paris fashions.

Before the Christmas holidays slip up on us with all their round of gayety and guests we mustn't forget to lay by a supply of cakes, candies and nuts. And, of course, we must have n attractive means of serving them.

A Connecticut avenue shop has in a new shipment of trays, large and small, and medium, of which we might feel justly proud. They're made of natural wood and cleverly designed with tropical wood inlay.

The rabbit's hair blouses now being featured in a downtown store are attractive substitutes for sweaters. They come in a variety of colors: gold, blue, green, rust and red, and in three different styles.

The "tuck-in" type has a tomboyish shirt collar which backs its claim to the sports world. Another with a softly feminine cowl neck is worn outside the skirt and pulled in at the waist with a belt of matching material. A third type has a high collar which ties in front in a bowknot.

There's appeal to those occasional purses in an F street shop that sends our hands flying to our pocketbooks. We've always had a grudge against them as a type on account of their high price and lack of adaptability to everyday usage. But these are different! They cost only $1.25 in the first place. In the second, they're tailored enough to be used in the afternoon, and at the same time bright enough to substitute for a more formal bag in the evening. There are brown satins, gold and silver metal cloths, black and red moires, and white brocades.

A box of face powder, a glass jar of talc, perfume in a crystal-like flacon, all these go to make the new boudoir ensemble put out by a well-known cosmetics manufacturer a general favorite with a gift-hunting public.

Just as women strive to match their hats, shoes, and gloves, so do they like to blend their perfumes and powders. A group of this kind enables them to do just that, and with the highest quality goods.

The three items may be bought separately, but their price is considerably less when they're purchased in the ensemble.

Painter of Goblins Popular With Washington Children

Mrs. Partridge Paints for Those in Hospital While They Watch.

A fire blazed merrily in the fire place in the living room of a tiny house. Fantastic pictures which showed little goblins sliding gaily on the roofs of crimson mushrooms and a purple giraffe conversing aimably with a fat, brown turtle hung on the walls. A young woman in a brown tweed skirt and a brown sweater knelt before the fireplace, putting a huge log on the andirons. She rose quickly and held out a slender hand.

"Of course I'd love to tell you about my work," said Mrs. Daniel Partridge, well known for her water colors of Washington adults and children.

"The animals you see in my pictures here may seem absurd to you, but the children for whom I paint just love them. Children tire of the pale pink and blue pictures forced upon them, and long for gayer colors and more comical figures."

"At the Children's Hospital I often paint while the boys and girls look on and give suggestions. Children live in their imaginations. The adult thinks these imaginings are silly. The child, whose imagination is not too restricted thinks of them as delightful realities.

"I want to paint the pictures which will appeal to children in a simple, vigorous, direct way. Water colors are my medium because they lend themselves to this kind of expression. Water color is either bad or good. There is no chance for it to go half way. I like that and I like drawing directly with a brush as the Japanese do. This is much more difficult than drawing first with a pencil, but it gives life to each individual line.

"These figures aid the imagination. A child who sees two dogs setting out to sea in a boat will naturally wonder how they got there, where they are going, and will weave a story around the picture. Thus creative thought is encouraged."

Mrs. Partridge said that so much legend had grown up around some of her pictures for children that she hoped some day to gather stories and pictures together into a book.

Fifteen-Year-Old Girl Makes Prize Costume

Chicago, Dec. 10 (AP).—Fifteen-year-old Mildred Houston, of Paragould, Ark., tonight displayed a new wrist watch as her prize for placing third in the style review for school dresses displayed at the National 4-H Club Congress.

Miss Houston modeled a dress that she made at a total cost of $1. The dress was of green pique. The entire outfit was assembled at a cost of $7.45. She placed among the leaders from contestants representing 35 States at the style show.

New Books for Library.

Emory, Va., Dec. 10 (Spl.).—The library of Emory and Henry College here has been recently enriched with 400 volumes, donated by Mrs. James A. Burrow, of Chattanooga.

The late Dr. Burrow had one of the best-selected libraries possessed by any member of the Holston Methodist Conference and the generous gift of his widow is greatly appreciated by the students and faculty of the college.

She Knows About Goblins

MRS. DANIEL PARTRIDGE, painter, is beloved of the Capital's little folk, for whom she creates goblins, mushrooms that are houses, and gorgeous purple giraffes.

Stylist Refutes Idea Women Dress for Men

Says If They Did, They Would Wear Some Funny Clothes.

New York, Dec. 10 (AP).—The contention of some designers that women choose their costumes to please the men was held false today by a foremost stylist, Mrs. Tobe Coller Davis.

"If women actually dressed to suit the men they would be wearing some very funny clothes," she said.

"Men are subject to color paroxysms, and if women followed the men's point of view, they would be in a constant array of clashing hues.

"Of course, men are considered to a degree when the women buy their clothes, but I believe the consideration secondary, while the primary aim of the women is to please themselves, and to meet the demands that the majority of other women place on fashion."

Praises Younger Generation.

She asserted that the "younger generation is a much more promising lot than its predecessors when it comes to taste on clothes."

"Good taste, which is now being taught in schools, is having its results throughout the country," she said. "And increased advantages for traveling complement the young women's school and college education along these lines."

She said that "a new deal is not considered as the fashion until it is" accepted by a substantial percentage of fashionable women."

"Sometimes it takes only two weeks, sometimes six months, and sometimes as long as five years for a trend of fashion to really become the trend.

Mrs. Davis expressed the belief that women could be divided into four groups—in their acceptance of what is considered fashionable.

Few Women Ultra-Smart.

"Just about 2 per cent are what you would call ultrasmart, or those who lead," she said.

"Ten per cent, I would say, follow these leaders very closely, but with certain reservations.

"The conservative, and 'good taste' American women make up about 60 per cent. They follow the general lines offered by fashion, but disregard what the first 2 per cent would dictate.

"This group represents the backbone of the country.

"Then from 25 to 30 per cent of the women wear clothes of very bad taste. The nouveaux riche are sometimes included in this group."

Young American Soprano Makes New York Debut

New York, Dec 10 (AP).—Rose Trentone, young American soprano from Minnesota, made her New York debut in the "artistic morning" series at the Plaza Hotel and was greeted with enthusiasm by a fashionable audience.

Miss Trentone—who is 22 years old and who studied under the famous Enrico Rosati—appeared with Charles Hackett, tenor of the Metropolitan Opera, and Leo Strockoff violinist.

The young soprano, daughter of Italian immigrants, sang last season in opera in Cincinnati and at the Robin Hood Dell concerts in Philadelphia this summer.

Big and Little.

By Katherine Smith.

Big fish chase little fish
And little fishes flee,
Big fish catch little fish
Devour them with glee.

Big folks and little folks
Behave quite differently—
Big folks let little folks
Keep up the chase—you see?

It's a Never Failing Source of Fiction Plots for Her.

Washington's "most versatile young woman" believes that this city is the most glamorous spot in the world.

She is Phyllis Moore Gallagher, at 26, author, musician and painter. Her fiction is widely published. Her water colors and pencil sketches have been exhibited here and abroad. Her jewelry designs are used by manufacturing jewelers of the capital. She made her musical debut under the sponsorship of the Boston Conservatory and Peabody Institute.

Yesterday Miss Gallagher declared that she attributed much of her success in the arts to the colorfulness of the life with which she has always been surrounded in the Capital.

"Oh, there was a time when I imagined my background was narrow," she said, "though I can't see now how I ever thought such a thing of Washington.

"Since then I have traveled—Europe, Iceland—any number of foreign countries. And yet I always come back to Washington, and sell more stories with the Nation's Capital as a background than any other type. I believe it is because I was a little girl right here.

"I am lucky in having Washington as a native city. In my opinion it is the most beautiful, the most colorful, the most glamorous city in the world."

Mrs. Gallagher is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Felix Moore, of 1744 Q street northwest. She is the wife of Bernard Gallagher, attorney, of this city. Of an old Virginia family, she is closely identified with such names as Randolph, Shackelford, Nelson, Page and Wingfield. Through her grandmother, who was a Miss Wingfield, she is directly descended from William Wingfield, first President of the Virginia Colony. She is a distant cousin of the late William Jennings Bryan.

She is active in the National League of American Pen Women, the Seven Arts Group, the Art League of Washington, and many other cultural groups in the city. On December 19 she will address the Women's City Club on her favorite topic, "Washington as a Background for Fiction."

Overweening Mother Love Bad for Girls

If She Has Character She Will Resist and Survive.

Sometimes the home-and-mother-loving daughter does break free from her family long enough to marry.

Sometimes she does it only because it is expected of her, and with no great love for the man she marries. In time she may have a daughter, and the old story begins again.

All the love which she has felt for her mother is now centered on her daughter and she clings to her with a tenacity which threatens the child's independence of action, even of thought.

She may say that she wants the girl to lead a happy, normal life, but in point of fact she wants to possess the child and keep her always with her. Emotionally starved herself, she lavishes on her daughter the pent-up affection of a lifetime, and prides herself on her devotion and self-sacrifice.

The girl may grow up a perpetual adolescent, afraid of men, afraid of life, asking nothing better than to live always as her mother's shadow. Or she may repeat the behavior of her mother and grandmother, and enter half-heartedly into a marriage that may give her a daughter in her turn.

But sometimes she turns out to have a character and will of her own, she refuses to be submerged in the engulfing stream of perfervid affection, and tries to break loose and follow her own bent.

The scenes of recrimination and reproach, of sentimental tears, of illness on the mother's part, often very serious, may well be too much for her and cause her to give up the battle.

But her salvation is to fight it through at any cost, no matter how cruel and heartless it may seem; and the earlier she starts the better. It is her only hope of surviving.

Oakton Club Elects.

Mrs. J. H. Hailman was elected president of the Oakton Home Demonstration Club. Other officers are: Mrs. Verna Pobst, vice president; Mrs. T. Adams, secretary; Mrs. Fred Cunningham, treasurer; Miss Alice Saurs and Mrs. James Pobst, recreation leaders. Leaders for the club are Mrs. Winnie Kenyon, Mrs. Hugh Bell and Mrs. Ira Miller.

French Teacher Named.

Leonardtown, Md., Dec. 10 (Spl.). Mrs. Karl Wellington, of Hagerstown, Md., a graduate of Western Maryland College, has been appointed to the faculty of Margaret Brent High School by the St. Marys County Board of Education. Mrs. Wellington will teach French and music, two studies recently added to the curriculum of the school.

Antiquities Group to Meet.

Richmond, Dec. 10 (AP).—The annual meeting of the Association for the Preservation of Virginia Antiquities will be held here on January 6 in the John Marshall House, officials announced today.

The yearbook of the A. P. V. A will be dedicated to Mrs. J. Taylor Ellyson, president, in recognition of her services to the association.

Her Elephants Are Here, Too— 102 Kinds With Turn-Up Noses

Mrs. Ward Made a Year's Trip Around the World, and She Found Those Happiest Who Had Never Heard of a Tax Collector.

The ideal spot on earth.

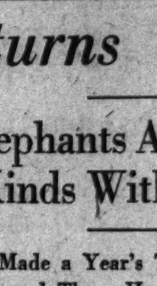
Some people think it is in the South Atlantic, others place it in the Bering Sea. Some will tell you it is in the heart of the biggest city on earth,—and others will maintain it can only be located in some out of the way unheard-of little village.

Mrs. Dorothy Lee Ward, just arrived back in Washington after a trip around the world, has discovered the ideal spot. It is Bali, in the South Seas.

Take a cross-continental train to San Francisco, and a steamer to Hawaii. When you are tired of the hula-hula dancers and the ukelele, get on board a ship for Yokohama, Japan, thence whatever sort of a ferry boat they use over there to take you across to China and Shanghai, the center of this old globe's gayest social whirl.

When you tire of that you might jump to Peking, wonder city of the East, or board a coastwise steamer of those distant lands, for Hongkong, Manila, Singapore——

Singapore. Now you are close to the enchanted land. The land of Bali. Where there are neither tax collectors nor ladies' styles, where housekeeping is a bore that was long ago forgotten,—where there are neither dishes nor stoves, nor bed sheets nor much to wear, but only good things to eat and soft weather and sweet music and girls who dance with flowers in their hair, and smiles and—



An Earthly Paradise.

Mrs. Ward has come back from Bali, and she reports it is the Garden of Eden. Not in the historical and biblical sense,—but really the Garden of Eden, don't you know? Paradise on earth.

"Bali," she said yesterday, in her very beautiful apartment at the Shoreham, "Bali, I tell you, is 500 years away. Very beautifully so.

"There is no hurry there, nor chaos, nor poverty,—no hatred, no railroads, no airplanes nor electric signs. What in the world do we moderns want with such things? In Bali you have time to live.

"The people are charming and blessed by the gods in their simple way of living. They raise rice on their terraced hillsides by day; play gamelau bells at sunset; and in the moonlight, dance before their moss temples with frangipani blossoms in their hair. They bathe in the streams and eat off of palm leaves."

Mrs. Ward did not find the isle of dreams without an effort. She went on a voyage of discovery that took her all around the globe. She spent a year at it. She went everywhere—well, almost everywhere.

In Hawaii she donned a skirt of grasses and a chain of sweet-scented lei, to see if it would make her happy. But no——

Rode in Rickshaw.

In Japan she rode in a rickshaw, the self-same sort of vehicle they've been riding in over there for no end of centuries. But no——

In Peking she stood outside the Temple of Heaven and went on board the Marble Boat of Buddha, that cost $60,000,000. A wise old empress built the boat of marble, which never will sail the seas, as a nice alternative to her citizens' demand for a navy.

She gazed at the wondrous Taj Mahal, most beautiful building on earth. A mighty ruler erected it for his dead love.

And then she sailed through the Straits of Gibraltar, across the Atlantic Ocean, and straight home.

It was somewhere in between Peking and Kandy—a thousand miles this way or that—that she came upon the enchanted land. You can not miss it either if you go that way.

"Just a little paradise in the Java Sea," she said. "Undisturbed by the machine age. An overnight journey from Sourabaya in Java."

But She Came Home.

For all she found Paradise, Mrs. Ward has decided to continue her residence in America's Capital. That is the way with Americans. They must come home, from all their world wanderings, despite all the fraca of politics and depression and inflation and brain-splitting mile-a-minute living that goes on back here.

America is no paradise.

Mrs. Ward is back. She brought with her 102 elephants—she already had 600 here—mercy, no, not real. White jade, green jade, ivory, carnelian, coral, crystal, lapis and wood, rose quartz, amethyst,—absolutely everything but flesh and blood. She preferred to leave that sort where they belong.

They all have their noses turned up,—the elephants we mean. Not at America. Not at the machine age. Not even at politics in the Nation's Capital. Just for good luck.

An elephant, from any land whatsoever, according to Mrs. Ward, must have his nose turned up, or it is not good luck.

Unless he were from Bali.

But there are no elephants in Bali.

Italians Told Big Families Live Long

Il Duce's Paper Scouts Idea Only Child Is Brighter.

Italy, Dec. 10 (AP).—In its endeavor to induce the Italians to raise more children, the government has set out to convince them that quality is increased with quantity as regards the brood.

Census results showing that no one of Italy's 63 centenarians is an only child have been given prominent display as indicating that, physically, at least, the advantage is on the side of the person who has brothers and sisters.

The newspaper Il Popolo d'Italia, owned personally by the Duce, printed an article pooh-poohing statistics purporting to show that in American elementary schools children from small families give evidence of more intelligence than do those from among numerous progeny.

This, it said, is explained by the greater aid the former receive from their parents.

Rare Manuscripts Shown Under Armed Guard

New York, Dec. 10.—A clear conscience is one of the first requisites for a visit to the most important exhibit of illuminated manuscripts in years, now drawing crowds to the New York Public Library.

For the first thing that greets the visitor is a duly uniformed and armed policeman, who peers carefully at every person who enters to view the 150 manuscripts from the Pierpont Morgan Library. And there are some four other guards in the gray-blue uniform of the library.

The manuscripts form what the public library terms "an epitome of the history of book painting from the crude pictures in the coptic manuscripts of the ninth century to the decline of the art in the sixteenth century after the invention of printing."

Lily Pons to Sing at Benefit.

New York, Dec. 10 (AP).—A benefit performance of "Rigoletto," with Lily Pons, will attract society to the "Met" December 28. The proceeds will aid Sir Wilfred Grenfell's medical work in Labrador.

Washington Women in Welfare Work

Mrs. Elmore Considers Child Welfare Most Important.

The most important task in the United States is preparing the children today to become the good citizens of tomorrow.

That opinion was expressed by Mrs. Edith S. Elmore, who, because of it devotes her welfare activities to membership on the board of the Juvenile Protective Association. She is also clinical psychologist to the Gallinger Municipal Hospital; the Juvenile Court, and "Hillcrest," the city orphanage.

"I am enthusiastic about the Juvenile Protective Association, because its function is to protect the potentially delinquent child. The unhappy child is a maladjusted child, and the maladjusted child usually in the end is a delinquent child. The Juvenile Protective Association does intensive and skillful case work through friendly visits to the home. It contacts the child with what it needs of medical, psychiatric, or recreational resources in the community. Many so-called problem children, who would otherwise reach the Juvenile Court or an institution are in this way relieved from tension, made happy and headed toward good citizenship.

MRS. EDITH S. ELMORE.

"Such a statement would be incomplete without a tribute to Miss Mildred Terrett, who, as executive secretary of the Juvenile Protective Association, so competently carries on its ideals and activities."

A good thing to know about salads

I HEAR so many women say, "My family gets tired of salads." Here's the simplest way I know to get delicious variety in healthful salads.

The Chinese people use bean sprouts in many of their most appetizing dishes. Did you know that they are wonderful in vegetable salads?

You can get genuine bean sprouts at your grocer's. Ask for La Choy Sprouts. Mix them with your favorite vegetables for salad. They're tender. Tasty. With new, unusual goodness. They add new zest to old favorites. Serve with French dressing or mayonnaise—seasoned with a few dashes of La Choy Soy Sauce.

Let me send you a free Chinese recipe book. A score of wonderful new things to serve. Address La Choy Food Products, Inc., Detroit, Mich.

Books

Mrs. Fayerweather to Write Girls' Book About Washington.

Girls in their 'teens will soon be able to read about one of their favorite heroines in a story set against the background of the White House. Mrs. Margaret Doane Fayerweather, author of "Anne Alive!" published by McBride, is a lifelong friend of the Roosevelts and recently made a visit at 1600 Pennsylvania avenue. She sat in the press conference where the President announced the agreement with Russia, she attended a cabinet dinner, and she had a chat with Mr. Norman Davis about her next book while they waited for M. Litvinoff to emerge from the Oval Room. Anne's adventures here will be called "Anne at Large."

Herbert Gorman, author of "Jonothan Bishop," a novel just published by Farrar & Rinehart, is at work on a biography of James Joyce to be entitled "The Man from Dublin."

Did you know that the list of tattooed royalty runs to a page of titled names? That black eyes used to be tattooed away with white ink? That a French criminal once had tattooed on his neck: "Executioner, when cutting follow the dotted line"? A number of other odd facts will be related in a book which Simon & Schuster will publish on the 28th of this month: "Tattoo: Secrets of a Strange Art as Practised by the Natives of the United States," by Albert Parry.

For the last 40 of his 60 years, Julius Maier-Graefe has been associated with the best in modern art. When he was young he bought one of the Renoir masterpieces, today the glory of a great collection, for a reasonable sum payable in monthly installments of about $5 each. He founded the journal called "Pan," for which Toulouse Lautrec made etchings and lithographs. He journeyed to Spain to worship at the shrine of Valasquez and returned a burning apostle of El Greco, whose gospel he was the first to proclaim outside Spain. He wrote the first history of painting of the nineteenth century. He made the collectors of Germany aware of Manet, Degas, Renoir, Cezanne, with the result that by 1914 the German collections of these painters were richer than those of France. A reprint of Meier-Graefe's "Vincent Van Gogh" has recently been issued by Harcourt Brace, made from the famous original limited edition.

Fortune's Wheel.

A novel, "GREAT FORTUNE." By Gilbert W. Gabriel. (Doubleday Doran, $2.50.)

While the Paramount Tower clock ticks off the hours from midnight to the first cool smear of dawn above Times Square—while King Kleiber, the theater magnate, lights cigarette from cigarette, and a nameless chorus girl falls asleep with her feet on Kleiber's desk—little Junius Van Vliet, of Knickerbocker stock, slightly watered, mops his brow on a linen handkerchief and recites the story of his play.

Ingeniously outlined to a bored and skeptical producer as the plot of Van Vliet's play, "Great Fortune" is the story of four characteristic New York couples and the action of the 1929 crash upon them. There are two millionaires, partners in a reputable and nationally known brokerage agency, with their respective wives. There is the handsome and ignorant young Texan who has been taken in the firm as a wedding present to him, and the cultivated young New York woman he has had the good fortune to marry. There is a poverty-stricken little couple, a painter and his wife, living desperately on the shores of Bohemia in Woodstock, Vt. These representatives of definitely existing social strata in American society receive, in their characteristically different manners, the impact of financial reverses—or the "fortunes of finance" as one of the wealthy partners loves to say.

"Great Fortune" has a little of everything—a suicide, a death, a divorce, an almost-murder, the fortunes of finance and of love. The book's construction is curious, closely knit and, like a play, having climax after climax which are often as neat as epigrams. It proceeds essentially on principles of contrast, the contrasted fortunes of different strata of society being picked out against a dual background of Van Vliet's immaculate little personality, cultured, satirical, and slightly ridiculous, placed in a dirty theatrical office opposite a skeptical producer who has believed nothing since 1929, a facetious song-and-dance man, and the dull large mass of a nameless and amiable chorus girl.

MARY DURAND.

Boy Growing Up.

A novel, "SEA WALL," by L. A. G. Strong. (Knopf, $2.50.)

With the rare understanding which he possesses of childhood's laughter and tears, of the heartaches which children suffer because of the thoughtlessness of their elders, he has writtten a tender and amusing story.

In the opening of the book we see Nicky squatting on the Sea Wall, bent over the broken pieces of an old plate in an endeavor to reconstruct its pattern. His whole life thereafter could be likened to those efforts with the shattered plate. For his destiny was shaped by the broken fragments of the lives among which he spent his childhood. Out of the shattered past of his elders he must forever seek the pattern of his own life.

We do not notice the slow movement of the plot because of the richness of his style and keen picturization of everyday Irish life. He has portrayed the latter with delicate and subtle style.

NORMA HANSEN.

Children Must Learn Honesty In Daily Life

Painful Though Quite Normal Experience May Be Necessary.

Lying and petty thievery are two of the most difficult things to deal with in children. This is partly due to the fact that both faults injure the parents' pride and their own social security.

As a result the parents are tempted either to deny the possibility of their existence in their children or else to be too severe upon the culprits. Neither method will work. If the faults are overlooked they will grow worse; if they are too sharply penalized they will merely be pushed underground where they will flourish undisturbed.

The outstanding feature of most of the childish lies and thefts is the open way in which they are committed. Were the child really conscious that he was doing wrong he would be secretive when he stole, or would tell his falsehood plausibly.

But the child who denies a visit to the jam jar will often have the signs of guilt spread over his face, an unmistakable proof that he is both lying and stealing. Even when faced with his own sticky countenance in the looking-glass, he is as likely as not to declare his innocence.

Property rights are a development of civilization, honesty is a means which man has evolved for carrying on his business life. Often these traits are not born in children and must be developed, slowly and carefully, over a period of years. To use force only arouses opposition and ruins the possibility of getting the child's help and cooperation.

He must himself learn the beauty of honesty, the value of an untarnished reputation. Perhaps he will have to have an unpleasant experience before it is brought home to him, but it must arise normally out of his own shortcomings.

Virginia Pianist Urges Better Church Music

Danville, Va., Dec. 10 (AP).—Urging improved musical taste in the churches, John Powell, distinguished Virginia pianist, expresses the belief that church hymnals contain much music "that is unworthy of being associated with the church service."

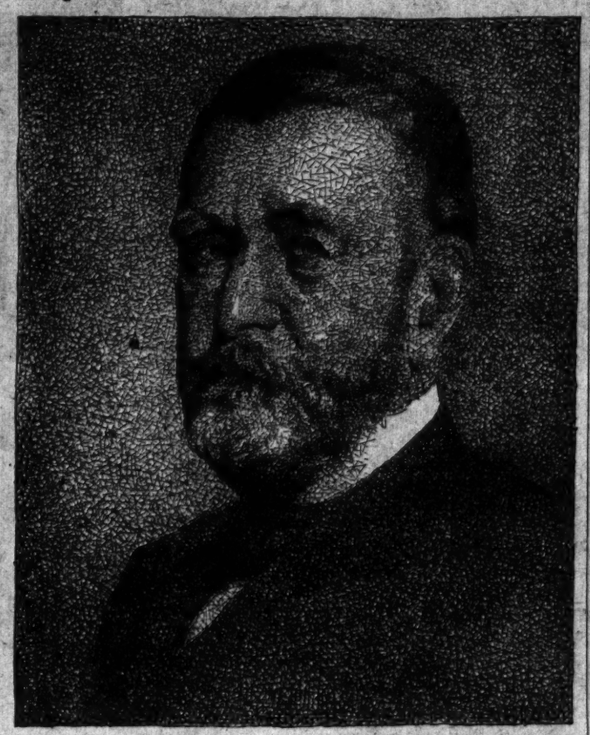
"We should be very careful," he said, "that poor music or even mediocre music is not given the glamour that comes to it from the association with worship.

"There are many tunes, intrinsically very poor, which move us because they are assorted with words which carry some very broad or deep sentiment."

As an illustration of this the pianist cited "Home, Sweet Home." Commenting on the reverence attached to the song, Powell said that it is not due to any excellence of the music. "The tune is worse than mediocre," he said, "it is a wretched tune. It is the underlying emotion which moves us."

Half-Forgotten Romances of American History

Ulysses S. Grant—Julia Dent



By Elisabeth Poe.

"Those are truly great
Who, as the centuries slowly pass,
Are found by each succeeding race
Near to the heart of human love."

These words of a wise poet point out that the well-spring of human achievement often is to be found in the depths of affection that bind one soul to another. The conquerors of the world are ever near to the heart of human love." The adventurous spirit, the eagerness to risk all, the light holding of one's own life in comparison with another's—these qualities predominated in those who have held mankind's destinies in their hands. They also have been the attributes of true lovers throughout the years.

Of U. S. Grant it may truly be said that a lion's share of his success came to him because of the trust and the faith of the woman who walked fearlessly by his side through the dark days and the sunny-placed ones of his life.

In American history there is no more loyal romance or more interesting one than that which existed between Grant and his wife. He has given to members of his immediate family, who still survive him, a rich heritage, not only of his sterling fame and his immortal record of service to the Nation, but a clean inspiring romance that enriched every hour of his life after he had seen Julia Dent.

That Grant himself realized this to the full may be proven by a little story of what happened on his first inaugural day. It was a wild, stormy March day such as has distinguished many of our inaugurations. The face of the President-elect was as solemn and gloomy as the day. He remained impassive through all the tributes which fell thick and fast upon him. But, after he had finished his inaugural address, and the crowd shouted about and gazed lovingly into the eyes of his beautiful young wife who stood behind him, muffled in handsome and abundant furs. Then the first smile of the day broke over his countenance as he saw the happy look his elevation had brought into hers.

Another smile came on that day when he saw the West Point cadets and the Annapolis midshipmen, frozen to the marrow, throw down their guns at the close of the ceremony and dance a veritable war jig as if to start the blood once more flowing through their veins.

It was a far cry, that inaugural scene, from the humble Ohio home in which U. S. Grant was born on April 27, 1822. His parents were rich in spiritual graces, but poor in this world's goods. Of sturdy pioneer stock, the Mid Western Grants were descended from one Matthew Grant who came to Dorchester, Mass. in 1630. Little did this emigrant Scot, who came to the New World to seek his fortune, dream that in the years to come, one of his descendants should become a great general and a ruler of the land.

Grant, from earliest childhood, knew the necessity of personal labor. From the age of five, he served his apprenticeship in the ranks of the farm lads who rose with the lark and went to bed with the chickens. Schooling was available in the little red schoolhouse, miles away from Jesse Grant's primitive farmhouse. At home a good mother taught him the stories of valor and conquest in the Bible. From the time he was able to spell them out for himself U. S. Grant—at that time called 'Hiram'—was enthralled by the exploits of the generals of other militant persons described in that Book of Books.

All day he dreamed of being a soldier. Finally, he was to find there was a short cut to realizing that dream. Congressmen could appoint good boys to the U. S. Military Academy at West Point. Little Hiram studied hard and pestered a Congressman so thoroughly and persistently that he gave Hiram the magic bit of paper that meant "West Point." When the Congressman made out the appointment, he used the boy's second name "Ulysses" and inserted "Simpson" for his mother's family boldly as the second name. Thus young Grant acquired a new chance in the world and a new name at one and the same time.

The lad was a strong, sturdy youth, of moderate stature, quiet, thoughtful. Whatever was required of him he did with thoroughness. Just 17, he had acquired such education as he possessed at country schools in intervals between farm and tannery labor.

Grant did not shine scholastically at West Point. But he was the best horseman in his class and led in mathematics. On his graduation in 1843, he stood twenty-first in his class of 31, and was not looked upon as a particular success by either his classmates or his professors, although his genius for mathematics was admitted by all.

When Grant graduated from West Point there was a little girl down in Missouri 17 years old, who until several years before had no thought of how the new lieutenant would figure in her own life story. This was Julia Dent the daughter of a family distinguished in Missouri for its virtues and sober living. Her father was Judge Dent, of Whitehaven, Miss., and one of her brothers was in the same class at West Point as the future Gen. Grant.

Grant came to Whitehaven with Cadet Dent on one of their furloughs. He met Julia at the very end of his visit. She captivated his fancy at once and he turned right around and prolonged his visit. And to good purpose, for before he rode away again with her brother for distant West Point, they had a very good understanding of their feelings toward each other.

There has been a tradition that Judge and Mrs. Dent, although they appreciated Grant's good qualities, did not wish their daughter to become engaged until she became older. So the romance lasted for five years before Miss Dent's parents consented to the match after Grant had saved the life of her brother in Mexico where both were on Army duty.

On August 22, 1849, Judge Dent's home was aglow with summer blooms and the gaiety that always accompanied a country wedding in the old days. The quiet Grant had won his quest, a habit of his to win whatever he set his heart upon.

As an "Army bride" Julia Dent Grant's first home with her husband was a modest little vine-covered cottage near Detroit, Mich., where the young lieutenant was to be stationed for a year or two.

After a time, children came to them, Frederick Dent Grant, afterward a brigadier general in the United States Army; Ulysses, the second son; Nellie, the only daughter, the beloved Nellie of White House days, and Jesse, the youngest child.

In 1854 Grant resigned from the Army and then followed a series of failures in civilian pursuits, as a farmer and real estate dealer. Finally he entered his father's tannery at Galena, where he earned $600 a year. During all the dark days, Julia never faltered or complained. Cheerfully she was maid of all work, teacher and nurse of her child and a stanch helpmeet to her husband.

When the War Between the States developed Grant became captain of a volunteer company raised at Galena. History tells the rest of that period of his life and he rapidly rose to distinction and recognition of his great military genius.

No one, we can readily believe, was prouder of his success than Mrs. Grant, who had believed in him through the dark days. His stay and comfort through Civil War days, she proved the same faithful companion and efficient wife she had been in a little vine-covered cottage at Detroit, when fate raised him to the White House and he became President of the United States.

Washington still remembers the Grant administration and the wedding of Miss Nellie Grant there on May 21, 1874, to Algernon Sartoris, an Englishman. The entire Nation was interested in the romance and gifts poured in on the happy couple, from friends and strangers alike.

The eight years' social administration of Mrs. Grant, as First Lady of the Land, was characterized by elegance and dignity. Writing of her, a contemporary newspaper scribe gives us a word picture of her personal appearance. She writes: "Mrs. Grant has an exquisite complexion, lovely hair and a sincere, unaffected manner, which endears her to every personal acquaintance. Gen. Grant thinks her beautiful, and, as he is the highest authority in the Nation, this question is settled."

The same writer, speaking of Mrs. Grant as chatelaine of the Executive Mansion, wrote of her: "Mrs. Grant was as serene as Victoria on her throne—not sustained by birth and traditionary precedent, but upheld by the noble qualities which make the American woman in her highest perfection the peer and often the superior of every reigning queen on the earth's surface."

White House days over, there was a trip around the world for them and then the disastrous loss of fortune. Once more Mrs. Grant proved herself the loyal, adoring wife and stood valiantly by as the stricken lion, during those sad days on Mount McGregor, strove to rehabilitate his fortunes by writing his memoirs. It was her hand that soothed his pillow of pain. For her, he always had a smile, no matter how great his suffering.

His Spartan wife closed his eyes in their last sleep when the end came on July 23, 1885. Now she sleeps beside him in the beautiful tomb a grateful people raised to his memory, on Riverside drive in New York City, the heroine of a romance that for sweetness, nobility and woman's untiring fidelity and a man's single - hearted devotion marked an epoch in American history.

What's in Fashion?

Fashion's Most Useful Gifts Suit Child and Parents Alike

Directed by Amos Parrish

New York, Dec. 11.—It's often happened that the gifts practical-minded parents and relatives thought the children ought to have weren't the ones the youngsters wanted at all. But that's not likely this year. You can still have the children's good at heart—and please them at the same time.

Leather jackets are one gift that turns this trick. Practical and warm as an overcoat. Especially when alpaca-lined, as some are. They start as small as age 3—male or female—and go right up to papa and mama sizes.

Any boy or girl who hasn't one will bless you if you fill that crying need. And it is literally a "crying" need sometimes. For leather jackets are one of the things "all the other fellers" (or girls) have.

Double-Breasted.

A snug double-breasted one (such as is sketched at the upper left) or one built in windbreaker style will be equally acceptable. And if they happen to have leather ones, don't forget that for less breezy days a wool windbreaker comes in handy . . . and smartly.

Sweaters, of course, are another like-to-give-and-get gift. No boy or girl ever has enough. Twin sets of cardigan and matching slip-on . . . just like big sister's or mother's . . . are new for the small girl. One is sketched.

Very small children like their decorated. The pirate-player will strut if his has skull and crossbones (as sketched). Mickey Mouse is a first love with many wee folk, with the Scottie a close second. And this year the Three Little Pigs jig merrily on some sweater fronts

Suits for Snow.

Snow suits for the very small and ski suits for the older ones . . . what could be warmer and more practical and at the same time more fashionable for winter outdoors.

And for indoors, a bathrobe and cozy slippers . . . small replicas of Dad's for the boy and of mother's for the girl . . . will give them a "one of the family" feeling.

One type of tailored robe is shown on the small boy. Lots of girls like this kind, too. Flannel is serviceable and smart. But eiderdown and quilted robes give a small girl that grown-up feeling of luxury.

Small Accessories.

Then there are innumerable small accessories both practical and fashionable. Wool scarfs in big bright plaids . . . even smarter with beret to match.

A muff and scarf set such as is sketched would put any small girl in fine fetter. And no boy will turn up his nose at a new tie and handkerchief set when he knows that Dad often matches his, too.

What Today Means

"Sagittarius."

If December 11 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 6 to 7:30 a. m., from 10 to 11 a. m. and from 5:45 to 6:15 p. m. The danger periods are from 1 to 2:10 p. m., from 3:40 to 4:40 p. m. and from 8:15 to 9:30 p. m.

Things will probably come easily to you on this date and without putting forth much effort and in less time than usual, you will get surprising results. Money transactions will not prove as profitable as usual but there will be a greater turnover. Lovers will tend to be jealous and suspicious of one another.

The child born on this December 11 will have a studious mind and one that can take in only one thing at a time. He will get along nicely at school; not active enough to attract attention in school activities, but will invariably accomplish what he sets out to do. A child of considerable ambition.

If December 11 is the date of your birth, you are much more inclined to wonder about what people think of you than to really get down to fundamentals and make something out of yourself. You go about trying to impress people and as a result there is a good deal of insincerity in your make-up for you are interested only in externals. As long as you can get by with others, that is all that matters to you. You are rather high-strung, you do not stand up well under adverse criticism, you are superficial in carrying out your duties. When things go wrong, you let out a loud wail and seek for the nearest person who will let you cry on his shoulder. You look for sympathy from others especially when you are in the wrong, and if you succeed in finding it, you feel absolutely justified in having done what you did. You are not a well-balanced person and you don't think straight on many things.

Born on December 11, you choose your friends from among those people who have something very definite to offer you. You are inclined to use them a great deal, and once they have nothing more to offer they seem to pass swiftly out of your life. You are capable of great accomplishments, but your attitude is to get by as easily as possible; once you get a good sense of values, you will mend your ways and may become a very useful person. You do not take much interest in the affairs of your community.

The Family Marketer

Monday morning brings the question "What shall I do with my left-over vegetables?" to the minds of many housewives. Capricious appetites, and doubtful preference determine whether the quantity is large or small, and the amount determines the method of treatment.

Large quantities of left-overs can be reheated with butter, cream or white sauce, combined with white sauce or tomato sauce and buttered crumbs to make an au gratin dish. They can be converted into pulp for soups, or sauted in butter or fat; this last method is particularly good for starchy or dry vegetables.

Small amounts can be combined with freshly cooked vegetables, for example, peas with new potatoes, or celery with creamed carrots. They can be used in a meat stew or meat sauce, washed and combined into a salad, mixed with shirred or scrambled eggs for luncheon dishes, or used in a vegetable soup.

Some housewives find it advisable to buy more vegetables than are needed for one meal, so that cold boiled carrots can appear glazed carrots on the next day's plate, or that spinach may be served as soup tomorrow.

The Marketer has selected two recipes that make use of left-overs. These dishes are so substantial that they may be served as main dishes, and are appropriately served with the cold roast pork that was cooked for Sunday.

Vegetable Hash.

Mix cubed left-over vegetables with an equal quantity of cubed cooked potatoes or left-over mashed potatoes. Peas, string beans, lima beans, carrots, beets, turnips, and most other vegetables may be used. Season with salt, pepper and minced onion. Moisten with milk or water. Heat about 2 tablespoons of bacon fat or drippings in a frying pan. Press the hash into the pan; cook over low heat until crisp crust forms on the bottom, for 30 to 40 minutes. Fold like an omelet.

2 tablespoons butter
1 tablespoon flour
½ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
1 cup milk
2 cups cooked vegetables
½ cup soft bread crumbs
Grated cheese.

Make a white sauce of the butter, flour, salt, pepper and milk. Put the vegetables and bread crumbs into a greased baking dish and add white sauce. Sprinkle with grated cheese and paprika. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) about 20 to 30 minutes or until heated through.

Frankfurters With Carrots Used in Soup

Served With Toasted Bread it Makes Main Dish for Supper.

Many parts of the country have their favorite soups on their favorite days. New Orleans has its Creole gumbo that is a universal favorite outside, as well as in its native city, and Philadelphia has its "Pepper Pot."

But here is a soup that deserves a place among the stars with the two I have mentioned. It has no special habitat but can be found in almost any home when good economical suppers are in demand. It is a carrot soup seasoned deftly with frankfurters. It is easy to make, takes a short time, and the ingredients are very nominal in price.

Good, Economical Soup.

Cook two cups of carrots coarsely chopped or ground in two cupfuls of water with one-half pound of frankfurters finely sliced, about 25 minutes. Cook one-half cup of rice in two cups of milk in a double boiler. Combine the two mixtures when both are cooked. Fry three medium sized slices of onions in four level tablespoons of butter until lightly browned, then add two tablespoons of flour mixed with a little salt and paprika or red pepper. When these are well mixed together slowly, add the carrots, rice, frankfurters and milk mixture and cook for a few minutes. Serve with toasted bread and the family will gulp it down.

Cheese and Onion Soup.

Have you ever had a cheese and onion soup? It, too, came from across the "waters" and is the main dish for many suppers in this country now. It is very simple to make. Slice two large onions, Bermudas, if you can get them, and fry in plenty of butter. Then take one quart of hot milk in which three boullion cubes have been dissolved and pour over the onions and cook very slowly for five minutes. Toast a slice of bread for each serving, sprinkle liberally with grated cheese, and pour the steaming soup with the onions over it. A dish of grated cheese is also passed with the soup.

Suggestion for Supper.

Just one suggestion for a supper menu. Use a big bowl of onion soup with pieces of golden cheese in it, as the substantial part of the meal. Serve hot whole wheat muffins with it, and for dessert, jellied or chilled canned peaches or pears and spice cookies. Your family will look forward to soup days if you serve it often.

Aristocrats Celebrate Church Anniversary

New York, Dec. 10 (AP).—Scions of old families will gather at the Waldorf-Astoria next Saturday afternoon for a luncheon celebrating the 125th anniversary of Grace Episcopal Church, Broadway and Tenth street, long a center for high fashion's devout. The Rev. Dr. W. Russell Bowie, rector, will be host to Bishop William T. Manning and many representative folk.

How to Keep Well

By Dr. W. A. Evans.

Dyspepsia.

There are several possible causes for the group of unpleasant symptoms which go by the name dyspepsia. One of the most important, as well as one of the most frequent, is that due to inflammation of the gall bladder. Some of these cases are associated with gallstones, but most of them are not. In many of them, especially those that have continued for years, there is some secondary disorder of the liver. However, that complication is not easily proved, although experience teaches it can be inferred.

There are some symptoms which cause us to suspect that the dyspepsia in a given case is due to gall bladder difficulty. If attacks come on (in most cases during the night) the gall bladder is under suspicion. As a rule the sufferer is awakened an hour or more after going to bed by belching and distension of the stomach. The symptoms cointinue for an hour or more or until the evening meal has passed from the stomach and the upper stretches of the small intestine.

As a rule gall bladder dyspeptics carry their destiny in their own hands. They can be comfortable as long as they live within their limitations. They pay the penalty by an attack when they violate their limitations. As a rule proper living is the only treatment they require. They need no medicine for the stomach or for the gall bladder. However, there are some cases that need operation. They need to have gallstones removed or the gall bladder removed or drained. Even after operation, however, they must eat carefully or presently they will be having the same kind of dyspepsia they had before operation. It can be said for operation that, following it, there is less danger of attacks of gallstone and of injury to the liver substance and possibly of cancer of the liver.

Holiday Trade Instills Cheer Into Business

December Retail Volume Is Estimated Now at $4,000,000,000.

New York, Dec. 10 (AP).—Vigorous preparations for the best Christmas in at least two years instilled good cheer in the business reports of the past week.

Retail distribution of merchandise has quickened as the Christmas shopping began in earnest after Thanksgiving. Last minute rush orders have tended to sustain wholesale business at levels of recent weeks.

Dun & Bradstreet's preliminary estimates indicate that December retail business will exceed $4,000,000,000.

Industrial Output Holds.

Industrial output continues to hold up well for this season, when year-end suspensions for inventories and repairs are expected.

Still rather slow in getting into production of 1934 models, the motor industry is gradually quickening, and with dealers' stocks of cars reduced to abnormally low levels, a vigorous expansion of manufacturing is planned for the next few weeks.

Steel ingot production continues to hold just under 30 per cent of capacity, the rate which has been maintained for the past four weeks, but has gained slightly during the past week.

Recession Is Seen.

The publication Steel says in its survey that a little recession may occur this week, and that some suspension of activities over the holidays is to be expected, but present indications are for a December volume approximating that of November, an unusual experience for the last month of the year.

The well sustained output is regarded as reflecting confidence in a substantial seasonal upswing in the first quarter of 1934.

Building and construction continues to feel the stimulus of public works contracts, statistics for November showing a fair gain. The problem of spurring private enterprise in this line of activity, particularly in residential building, is receiving increasing attention in Washington. Statistics indicate that a substantial shortage of housing is developing.

Sugar Futures Show Losses

Santos Coffee Moves Higher Under Short Covering; Spots Steady.

New York, Dec. 10.—Sugar futures showed losses of 4 to 8 points for the week. As the week ended, traders were holding off, uncertain as to what Washington developments portended, the A. A. A. having announced that they would let Congress settle the sugar situation.

The futures market at the end was 6 to 9 points under the highs made on Tuesday. Huge selling continued to depress prices, although buying early in the week by operators, interested in keeping prices steady, supplied support.

The raw market was a complicated affair. Cuban sugars, ex store, duty paid, sold at 3.25, 3.27 and 3.30, while Philippines brought 3.16, 17, 18, 19, 20, depending on shipping dates which extended from December to March.

As the week ended, prompt Cubas were offered at 3.25 duty paid, and Philippines at 3.15 for December and January shipment. Refiners were again indifferent.

Sales for the week in the futures market amounted to 75,950 tons. Buying of prompt raws at the higher prices was attributed to the acute needs of one refiner.

Santos coffee futures ended the week 8 to 12 points higher. The No. 7 contract advanced 1 to 8 points during the same period. Trade interests were buyers and some short covering was in evidence.

The milreis ended the week at 11.39 to the dollar against 11.28 last Friday. Heavy rains still continue to do damage to the Colombian crop, according to advices. The New York spot market held steady throughout the week with demand reported "more than fair."

News that Brazil had declared a farm moratorium and would take over 50 per cent of indebtedness of farmers was viewed as a step which would greatly help coffee growers in that country and improve conditions. World stocks on November 1 were 24,724,724 bags, a decrease of 7,103,092 bags from last year.

Destruction of coffee in Brazil for November totaled 1,067,000 bags, the fifth successive month destruction has been over a million bags.

Berkeley Springs Bank Loan Sought

New National Depository Decision Delayed.

Berkeley Springs, W. Va., Dec. 10 (Spl.).—Vernon E. Johnson, former internal revenue collector in West Virginia, and Col. J. A. Proctor, heads of the two banks here now in receivers' hands, have been in Richmond applying for a loan on assets of the two banks, for the formation of a single new National bank here.

They placed before Reconstruction Finance Corporation officials there all necessary data, and, while encouraged, were advised it would be several weeks before an announcement would be made.

The two men believe the outlook for the bank is favorable.

Milwaukee Line Loadings Up.

Chicago, Dec. 10 (AP).—Car loadings on the Milwaukee Road from December 1 to December 7 totaled 21,829 cars, compared to 20,999 cars for the same period in 1932.

Optimism on the Increase

Many Quarters Reflect More Cheerful Outlook for Trade

By Ralph West Robey.

Within the last week or two there has been a marked shift of public opinion on the business outlook. Now on all sides one finds bits of evidence being presented and arguments being developed to show that the upturn has been resumed and that from here on we may expect a gradual improvement.

Outstanding among the evidence is the dividend record of last week. It was, according to the Standard Statistics Co., the best week, as measured by favorable dividend changes, that we have had in two years. Specifically, there were 43 favorable actions. These consisted of five increases in the dividend rate being paid, 17 resumptions, 3 initial payments, and 18 extras. In the preceding week there had been only 21 favorable changes. The record, accordingly, is held to be dramatic proof not only of the increased earnings of our companies but of the conviction of the managements concerned that such earnings will continue.

The Chamber of Commerce of the United States, too, has found an increasing amount of evidence of a betterment in business. In its current semimonthly review it takes an extremely optimistic stand and emphasizes that we appear to have fairly clear sailing ahead. Only two weeks ago, it will be recalled, the chamber issued its statement criticizing the monetary program of the Administration on the grounds that it was endangering recovery.

Trade Reviews Also Find Evidence of Improvement.

Trade reviews, also, find widespread evidence of improvement. Unfortunately the record of these organizations as a group have been so bad in the last few years that it is difficult to place much weight on their opinions, but at the moment this is beside the point. The fact is that they, as a group, see nothing but better business for the immediate future.

Finally, one may mention the new outburst of optimism among the speculators and business analysts in Wall street. For many weeks the New York financial district has been dominated by a feeling of bewilderment and sometimes even of despair. In the last several days, however, this has been largely eliminated and on all sides one finds a cheerful attitude and openly expressed views that the recession that started in July is at an end. Even the stock market on a day or two lately has shown evidence of life.

In spite of this practically unanimous swing to the belief that the trend from here on will be upward, however, the arguments used to support the optimism differ widely. One group argues that finally the "recovery" program of the Administration is "taking hold." They see from here on an increasing amount of effective inflation through the P. W. A., the C. W. A. and the A. A. A.

Another group insists that the cause of the upturn is an elimination of currency unsettlement and business uncertainty that was the necessary concomitant of a juggled dollar. These persons do anticipate early stabilization in the sense of a return to full convertibility of our currency for gold, but hold we are through with such gyrations as recently witnessed. In consequence they see business men now willing to enter long-term contracts.

Others Argue That Drop Has Now Gone Far Enough.

Other observers base their case upon the explanation that the recession from the highs of July has gone far enough. As they see it, even though we ultimately may have another downward swing, it now is "normal" for there to be a substantial upturn. Further, they hold that the excess inventories created by the extraordinary activity last spring and summer have been worked off, and consequently no longer will be a depressant on any improvement.

Still others base their conviction upon the thesis that the underlying economic forces are working for recovery and that nothing the Government does or does not do can stop the uptrend except most temporarily. Their evidence comes largely from abroad. They emphasize that throughout the world a recovery is taking place, quite regardless of the policies of the various governments, and that we shall have the same experience.

In the aggregate this is a rather curious set of arguments. The one that appeals to me most, I think, is the first one given, namely that inflation is beginning to be effective. In fact, I do not see how, with the Government running a deficit of some $15,000,000 a day as it did the first week of this month, we can fail to have a business pick-up. What worries me is who is going to pay the bills if we continue such a program.

Stocks Improve as Commodity Staples Follow Grains in Climb

Oversubscription of Federal Loan and Stationary Price of Gold During Week Prove Factors in Substantial Market Progress.

New York, Dec. 10 (AP).—Staples and stocks generally worked higher in principal markets this week.

The dollar held relatively steady in the foreign exchange markets for the second successive week.

The Treasury's December 15 financing was arranged by a large oversubscription for an issue of $950,000,000 in 2¼ per cent one-year certificates.

Gold Price Unchanged.

The R. F. C. kept its gold purchasing price unchanged at $34.01 an ounce all the week, making the longest period in which there has been no increase in the price since the gold control program was inaugurated in October.

With the December 15 financing arranged in orthodox manner, and the gold price control being used with moderation, monetary controversy subsided somewhat, and business and financial quarters were busier with preparations for 1934.

Sentiment among business and banking leaders leaned more strongly on the side of optimism than recently, as business prospects were surveyed.

Money Holds Attention.

The monetary situation continued to occupy much attention. It was felt in some quarters that the long stretch of unchanged gold prices might indicate that steps were being taken in the direction of a more stable dollar, but Washington advices said there had been no change in monetary policy.

Some financial quarters were inclined to look for a resumption of the advance in the gold price, now that arrangements for the December 15 financing had been completed.

In commodity markets, grains made substantial progress. Corn futures at Chicago advanced 3¾ to 5⅛ cents a bushel, and wheat 2⅛ to 3¾ cents. Cotton, however, made little progress for the week, finishing only 15 to 45 cents a bale over last Saturday's prices.

Curb Activity Is Increased

New York, Dec. 10 (AP).—Curb trading last week was marked by a moderate increase in activity as indications of renewed buying for the upturn made their appearance. On Tuesday the market roused from its narrow rut to rally 1 to 3 or more points. After backing and filling in subsequent sessions, light profit-taking near the end of the period narrowed the improvement.

Utilities and metals showed scant change. Oils were also generally steady, but Gulf and Humble continued to move moderately in advance of the group, Humble touching a new high for the year in anticipated of a three-for-one split-up.

Alcohols displayed a contrary disposition. Failing to respond to the general upturn occurring on the second session of the week, the repeal group staged their belated celebration of prohibition repeal with a modest upturn on Wednesday. Hiram Walker was fairly strong, while lesser gain was shown by Distillers Corporation-Seagrams and Canadian Industrial Alcohol "A."

A number of fairly wide advances were scored among industrial specialties. Montgomery Ward "A" was bid up sharply to a new high for the year, while Aluminum Co. of America moved substantially higher. Jones & Laughlin Steel, A. O. Smith, Axton Fisher, Driver Harris, Pan American Airways, Lake Shore Mines and Pioneer Gold were in periodic demand.

Transfers averaged around 200,000 shares per each full five-hour session.

Prices to Farmer Take Slight Drop

His Dollar Weaker; Costs Remain Unchanged.

The power of the farmer's dollar to buy goods declined 2 points from November 22 to 29, according to the Associated Press.

The Bureau of Agricultural Economics said in its weekly report yesterday that in terms of the 1910-1914 index average prices of farm products declined from 72 to 70 and the purchasing power of farm products slumped from 61 to 59 while prices paid by farmers were unchanged at 117.5.

Despite these declines prices of farm products are 43 per cent above the low level of the year in February, and the purchasing power of farm products is 20 per cent higher.

Prices of grains, cotton, hogs and eggs have declined. Part of the slump was explained as seasonal. Prices of flue-cured tobacco increased sharply and prices of potatoes, apples and lambs advanced moderately. Dairy products prices were steady throughout the week.

Bond Market Changes Tone; Prices Higher

Corporate Issues Lead; Federal Loans Still Point Lower.

New York, Dec. 10 (AP).—Bond market sentiment generally displayed substantial improvement last week as the dollar settled down to a more sedate movement in foreign exchange dealings and business and industrial news was of a brighter hue.

While all corporation categories, led by the rails, pushed forward steadily, United States Government securities acted somewhat contrarily notwithstanding firmer dollar rates and indications that inflationary psychology had cooled perceptibly. Most Government issues, however, were only moderately lower.

The principal interest of the market, aside from the domestic gold price and dollar fluctuations, was in the announcement of the Treasury's December 15 financing terms. The offering of $950,000,000 in 2¼ per cent one-year certificates was oversubscribed more than three times and the books were quickly closed. The interest rate, of course, was the highest since the Treasury borrowings of last March, and most bankers were pleasantly surprised.

The fact that the Government decided to follow orthodox procedure in its refunding operation, instead of issuing greenbacks or currency to pay off some $727,000,000 of maturing obligations, was encouraging to the "sound money" elements, although leading financiers actually had not the slightest expectation that any other course would be pursued.

That a long-term bond issue was not attempted at this time, it was felt, was due largely to unsatisfactory market conditions. Even with the higher interest rate, however, the Treasury will save some $7,000,000 on the deal.

Canal Expected To Aid Trade

Baltimore Nears Goal of Century's Efforts in C. & D. Improvements.

Chesapeake City, Md., Dec. 10 (Spl.).—A 100-year ambition on the part of Baltimore City and other interests striving to improve the Chesapeake & Delaware Canal so as to permit the passage of large vessels has been realized.

It is believed industrial operations in Maryland will be revolutionized by approval given by War Department officials to the proposed widening of the local waterway to 250 feet and increasing its depth to 27 feet, at an estimated cost of $12,500,000.

The project to convert the canal into a deep-sea waterway was sponsored by the entire Maryland congressional delegation.

Among advantages to result, it is said by officials at this westerly terminus of the canl, will be the elimination of various delays, accidents and groundings to which shallow craft and large shipping have alike been subjected.

Temporary tie-ups in the canal have resulted in large financial losses, one recent occurrence resulting in a loss of $50,000. The modernization of the canal will save shippers approximately $1,000,000 a year and boats bound from Baltimore to Europe by way of the Delaware Capes, as compared with the Chesapeake Capes, will save 115 nautical miles.

The improvement will reduce the water distance between Baltimore and Philadelphia from 420 miles to 104 miles and between Baltimore and New York, from 475 to 296 miles. Both from an economic and military viewpoint the deepening process will be helpful to large vessels, it is pointed out.

Baltimore will be one day closer to North Atlantic and European ports with which 75 per cent of its deep-water craft has active connections.

Savings of one day's time in freight shipping would, it is estimated, result in financial savings equal to one day's interest on the value of the cargo involved. The improvement will save an average of 17.5 hours for shipping to Philadelphia and 12 hours to New York.

Ransom Hails Banking Code

Chairman Terms Set-Up Best That Could Be Devised.

New York, Dec. 10 (AP).—Ronald Ransom, of Atlanta, chairman of the banking code committee, said today there had been set up under the bankers' code "the machinery to bring about the desired condition of cooperative sound banking on a Nation-wide scale."

"I do not believe any more effective measure for banking improvement could be devised than this one we now have through the medium of the code," he said.

Ransom asserted that with 322 bankers' groups completing drafts of fair trade practices for their localities, and more than 600 clearing houses and other bankers' organizations cooperating along sound lines made possible by the code," a new element of structural strength is being built rapidly into the banking situation."

He announced President Roosevelt had appointed A. D. Whiteside, division administrator of the NRA, to the banking code committee, which represents the American Bankers Association.

To date 322 rules of fair trade practices have been received from 27 States. They will become effective December 31.

The Federal Diary

By Morgan Baker
(Trade-mark Applied For)

HUNDREDS of employes at General Accounting Office have received aid from the G. A. O. Welfare Association in times of stress—illness, bereavement or other misfortune, it is shown in the regular statement of the association's treasurer. In addition to assistance given to employes in distress, the association has sponsored dances, excursions and other enjoyable social affairs for G. A. O. workers, their families and friends.

BAKER

Haphazard solicitations were prevalent up to November 1, 1928 among G. A. O. employes for a variety of projects. Response to them depended largely on the picturesqueness of the appeal rather than merits of the case, officials there found. Hence, it was decided that relief work could be handled more promptly and efficiently by means of a general fund with a minimum of formality.

With approval of the comptroller general such a fund was established and was placed under management of a board of control designated by the comptroller general, as follows: Mrs. May H. Wilbur, assistant chief, Division of Personnel, chairman; Reed F. Martin, chief clerk, vice chairman; Carl Collier, disbursing clerk, treasurer; J. Ray Grinstead and Miss Mary Glen Newell. This board is available at all times to hear and pass on cases requiring financial assistance and is empowered to administer relief as needed.

The foregoing officers appreciate written notices of any cases of destitution or distress, particularly in cases where employes in distress hesitate to ask personally for assistance.

Service Confidential.

To avoid embarrassment to recipients of advances, the list of applications is kept confidential by the board. This policy of discretion recently was vigorously attacked by a clerk who had applied for a loan to be used for purposes deemed by the board as trivial. The books of the association are open for inspection by officials at G. A. O. at all times, Mrs. Wilbur says.

"It is uncomfortable enough for one to be unable to meet a hospital bill or grocery bill or not have enough money to go home to a distant State in event of a death in the family without that person having his misfortune paraded before all his office associates as an applicant for aid," Mrs. Wilbur pointed out.

"There is nothing novel in our policy of confidence. The same procedure is found in all beneficent organizations, churches, fraternal organizations and office association in private industry."

Mrs. Wilbur immediately impresses one as being of unimpeachable integrity. When a young girl, she came here from her home near Alliance, Ohio, with her father, Joseph H. Hunter, who was in the Postoffice department for many years.

Talented Musician.

A talented musician, Mrs. Wilbur was formerly organist at Metropolitan Baptist Church. She also was organist at Central Presbyterian Church during President Wilson's Administration. She is a former member of the Rubenstein Club. Many famous singers have found her a perfect accompanist.

Mrs. Wilbur entered Government service in 1917 in the Food Administration. In 1919 she was tranferred to the office of the comptroller of the Treasury.

On December 1 transactions on the books of the G. A. O. Welfare Association were listed as follows:

Balance on hand, Oct. 31,	$1,590.72
Received—
Proceeds from dance (approximately)	230.00
Repayments	181.85
Interest on deposit	19.62
Expenditures, 4 relief cases	220.00
Balance on hand Dec. 1	1,802.01

Cotton Prices Droop After Crop Estimate

Week's Business Restricted With Some Hedging in South.

New York, Dec. 10 (AP).—The Government crop report appeared Friday and found the cotton market evidently in a well evened-up position and, proving within 2,000 or 3,000 bales of average expectations, failed to stimulate aggressive trading interest.

Its publication was followed by slight declines under scattering liquidation or local selling.

After having sold up from 9.96 to 10.16 for March contracts earlier in the week, prices eased off to 10.04 during today's late trading.

The Government crop indication of 13,177,000 in bales of 500 pounds gross showed an increase of 77,000 bales over the indication of a month ago, resulting from an increase of 108,000 bales in the acreage estimated for harvest and of seventenths of one per cent in the indicated yield per acre.

Uncertainty as to the showing of the report and further action of the dollar had a restricting effect on general business during the greater part of the week.

A little more Southern hedging was reported on advances above the 10-cent level for March. On the other hand, there was considerable trade buying to fix prices on the setbacks and some buying on the declines was encouraged by more favorable trade report.

Associated Gas and Electric Company

You have doubtless read in the newspapers of the suit for a receiver recently filed in the office of the Clerk of the Court for the Southern District of New York. Inasmuch as there has been no default by the Company upon the principal or interest on any of its debentures the Company has every hope and expectation of having the suit dismissed.

On the other hand, we believe that debenture holders who are concerned with the consequences of a possibility of default and receivership, which would result most certainly in stopping all their present income from debenture interest, can act most effectively by exchanging their debentures under the Plan of Rearrangement of Debt Capitalization.

For this purpose Option 1 or Option 2 should be taken.

The purpose of this notice is to bring the situation to the attention of all debenture holders for their earnest consideration.

Associated Gas and Electric Company

Debentures may be sent to Transfer and Coupon Paying Agency, Sixty-one Broadway, or The Public National Bank and Trust Company of New York, 76 William Street, New York City, Depositaries. A letter of transmittal will be furnished on request although it is not necessary.

The Post's HOLIDAY HINTS

Joe Cook Here Soon in "Hold Your Horses!"

Forced Out by "Follies;" Prof. Lampkin's Next; About Showshops.

Having just spent week along the sidelines, watching the Shubert tune-up of the new, so-called "Ziegfeld Follies," preparatory to its Christmas opening at the famous Broadway home of revue, the Capital in a comparatively short time will be privileged to enjoy the seasoned entertainment which the "Follies" will supplant in the one-time horse exchange gone arty, come Christmas night.

Which is to say that Manager Stephen E. Cochran, of the National Theater, over the week-end, has announced the definite booking of Joe Cook in "Hold Your Horses" for the week of January 8, 1934, on E street.

This is a booking that has long been in prospect for some tentative future date, but only now has been specifically consummated for the second week of the new year.

"Hold Your Horses" is the first musical comedy to occupy the Winter Garden for lo, these many years that the huge music hall has been devoted to the uses of the more grandiose and flamboyant of the cinema's spectacular output.

One of the Season's First.

One of the first musical productions of the new season, it was hailed by the New York critics as a typically gay Joe Cook composite of wit, waggery and wisdom, full of jocose japery and packed with complicated devices for the mental, physical and spiritual mortification of one Dave Chasen, first and most long-suffering of all the famous stooges.

Like all of Mr. Cook's contributions to the gayety of nations, "Hold Your Horses" is reputed to be a chaste as well as Chasened vehicle, free from salty speeches and salacious situations, suitable for family consumption and to be numbered along with Fred Stone's and George M. Cohan's productions among those to which the children may take their parents without so much as a single blush!

Opera for New Year's.

Inquiry being launched at Mr. Cochran as to the attraction that might grace his temple of the lively arts New Year's week—generally looked upon as one of the best weeks of the theatrical year, in company with Labor Day week and Thanksgiving—the information was confided that it would probably be the San Carlo Grand Opera Company in a repertoire of standard works of the great masters.

The San Carlo Grand Opera Company, of course, is one of the established organizations presenting worthy productions of the standard operatic works at a safe and sane scale of prices, year after year. It has compiled a reputation for honest values and conscientious artistry through long years of painstaking effort.

When, as and if, the New Year's week engagement is finally consummated, it is probable that the most listenable of the popular operas will be offered at a $2 scale of admissions. If so, this will be one of the season's genuine bargains.

Speaking of the "Ziegfeld Follies," as was being done somewhere back there, one wonders when the members of the troupe might have found time to eat and sleep during the week's engagement that terminated Saturday night at the National. This column encountered rehearsals at such hours as 10:30 a. m., 4:30 and 7:30 p. m., and 1:30 and 4 a. m., practically throughout the week. Add to these heathenish hours the time required for the regular performances and what have you left? Nothing but a sandwich and a shower, bath!

Locking the Stable——!

When Katharine Cornell announced that she must traverse Montana without appearing in a single city because no theater in the entire State would open its doors to the spoken drama, there was much newspaper comment on his condition of affairs.

This reached the ears of the Helena Players, of Helena, Mont., who at once telegraphed the actress, inviting her to their city any offering her the entire gross receipts of the performance after the local expenses of rental of the auditorium, stage hands and advertising had been paid.

The bill-posting company volunteered to put up all the Cornell printing free of charge.

Unfortunately, the invitation came too late for Miss Cornell to accept it, as she had been forced to book her dates elsewhere when she was unable to obtain theaters in Montana.

We trust the gentlemen who promoted the Jack Dempsey-Tommy Gibbons fiasco at Selby are not in command of the theater situation in Montana!

Old Col. Harry E. Long, division manager for Loew's, Inc., in this territory, arrived in the National Capital yesterday afternoon at the end of a long safari from Norfolk. He leaves today on the hazardous trek by train, plane and dog-sledge for Baltimore, far off to the north and east!

Fire Works at Fox.

The trade preview of Eddie Cantor's fourth annual musical film production for Samuel Goldwyn's release through United Artists, "Roman Scandals," scheduled for tomorrow midnight in Loew's Fox Theater, is but one of many similar advance showings set for the same hour in the various key cities throughout the United States.

Invitations to the Fox screening have been sent to exhibitors throughout the States of Virginia and Maryland and parts of West Virginia and Pennsylvania, as well as the District of Columbia. The ladies and gentlemen (sic) of the local press also have been included in the festivities.

"Roman Scandals" is a spectacular musical production, prepared for the button-eyed comedian by George S. Kaufman and Robert E. Sherwood, with a vague skeleton of Mr. Sherwood's "Road to Rome" as a possible framework on which to hang the distinctive ebulliences of the electric Mr. Cantor and a supporting cast led by such experts in their respective lines as Ruth Etting, foremost of the revue stage's songbirds; Edward Arnold, former National Theater Player; Gloria Stuart, currently shuddering at the fate of Claude Rains as "The Invisible Man," at the Rialto; Alan Mowbray, David Manners and a large assemblage of other notables.

A Special, Solo Showing.

The Tuesday night preview is not an introductory to any immediate public exhibition of "Roman Scandals," definite booking of the picture not yet having been made. In fact, its release date is not until December 29, according to the National release date schedules carried in the trade press.

The screen adaptation of the Kaufman-Sherwood story, by the way, was made by William Anthony McGuire, former Ziegfeld librettist, and the songs sung by Miss Etting were written by Al Dubin and Harry Warren—if that means anything to you.

For what is believed to be the first time for any theater orchestra in the history of the theater in Washington, the Symphony in E Minor, opus 95, by Anton Dvorak, will be presented as the overture selection at Loew's Fox, beginning Friday, under the conductorship of Phil Lampkin. This celebrated symphony contains all of the elements for the foundation of a new school of music Dvorak advocated. It is a plaintive, sometimes vibrant, work which the New York Philharmonic Symphony Orchestra introduced some years ago as the New World Symphony. It is in four movements, Adagio, Largo, Scherzo and Finale, only the last of which will be undertaken by Prof. Lampkin and his men. This is a courageous adventure, comparable to Nick Mirskey's introduction of Gomez's "Il Guarany" to motion picture audiences at the Metropolitan many seasons ago.

Dots and Dashes.

Those who observe such things at all have noted that Preston Shelley, solo cellist in Freddie Clark's splendid orchestra at the Earle, is now doubling on guitar when occasion warrants . . . Which it does this week . . . And at the same house, Charles Richman, one of the theater's most distinguished leading men a few years ago, plays a comparatively minor part in the screen version of "Take a Chance" . . . You may recall him as far back as Frances Starr's stellar debut in Belasco's "Rose of the Rancho" . . . Or in George Broadhurst's "Bought and Paid For" . . . Or in a hundred other ace plays of the past 25 or 30 years . . . Betzi Beaton, the droll little blonde comedienne of the "Ziegfeld Follies," whose humor eluded many in her audiences, adds her name to the short list of those who thank the critics in cordial notes for kind words about her work . . . Thus putting herself alongside Ruth Etting, Mitzi Mayfair and one or two others of like standing . . . Incidentally, she signs her name "Betsy," not "Betzi," as she is billed . . . The credits for book, lyrics, music and whatnot—if you bother to notice—are surprisingly alike for both "Take a Chance," on the Earle screen, and the "Follies," now in Pittsburgh . . . Bobby Connolly, E. Y. Harburg and numerous others appear on both lists . . . It seems from the newsreels that prohibition has been repealed—or something . . . Lillian Roth, appearing in "Take a Chance," on the screen, and headlining the vaudeville bill at the Earle, in person, made her debut as a child actress with Wilton Lackaye, Washington actor, in "The Inner Man" . . . And when she was 14 applied to J. J. Shubert for a dramatic part and was given a singing role . . . Has been a "blues" singer ever since . . . And a corking good one, too . . . And Jesse Block and Eve Sully, on the same stage bill, met in a music publisher's office in New York . . . They wisecracked at each other so much that they formed an act on the strength of it . . . And later were married on the strength of that . . . Plenty of carnival spirit this week . . . Both Clara Bow's "Hoopla," at Loew's Fox, and "Take a Chance," at the Earle, open with carnival scenes . . . Sort of gilding the Lillion, as you might say!

Heraldry Note.

"Motion Picture Industry Up in Arms Against Provisions of NRA Code"—a recent headline in the trade press.

Not One of Cooks Who Spoil Broth

In other words, the musical comedy stage couldn't have too many Joe Cooks for its own good. This verbose and versatile comedian, as you will learn elsewhere on this page, has been booked for the week of January 8, at the National Theater, in "Hold Your Horses," being driven out of the Winter Garden in New York by the new "Ziegfeld Follies," just seen here.

"THE VICTORY GIRLS," Wilner Wonder Wheel presents a new burlesque show, featuring Joan and Jean Carroll, with Joe Freed, Hap Freyer, Alca Bradley, Alice Duval, Harry Cornell, Gladys Foz, Billie Elliott, Frank Smith, Carol, Gale & Carlos, "Boots" Rush, Mayo & Carr and Babs Courtney. Reviewed Sunday Matinee by W. A. W.

By coincidence or design, "The Victory Girls" features, among the principals as well as in the chorus, many of the company which earlier in the season paraded under the personal banner of Jimmie Lake.

Not only does it seem good to welcome such people as Hap Freyer, Frank Smith, Alice Duval and Boots Rush back again, but it is manifest, as the show progresses, that here are indeed the "Victory Girls," with a capital "V."

In the two acts is as satisfactory a parade of songs, dances and skits as has been seen since these same people left for parts unknown. As to the former members of the Lake Stock Company, their presence need but to be noted. Of the newer members, however, much ought to be said.

Heading the list are the Carroll Sisters—Joan and Jean—whose specialties are highlights on the program. With Alice Duval and Babs Courtney further regaling the audience with their coruscating cutaneous displays, this aspect of the show is amply looked after.

Carol Gale and Carlos offer an unusual series of tap dances, their inebriate number evoking the greatest audience reaction. Especial mention is due Mayo and Carr for their vocal duets, with and without ballet accompaniment.

Holding the comedy fort are Joe Freed, Hap Freyer and Frank Smith. In the cabaret and castaway numbers, Mr. Freed is best. He is frequently hard pressed by the other two, whose clowning is somewhat fresher in mind.

Mission Told Church Holds Key to World

"No Nation Ever Drunk Way to Prosperity," Says Dr. Jones.

Christmas the world over must present a united front to lead civilization out of chaos; the time has come for rethinking the problems of the world through Christianity.

This was the theme of three eminent speakers, who yesterday inaugurated the three-day session of the United Foreign Missionary Conference as 4,000 persons attended a mass meeting in Constitution Hall and a large congregation gathered in Washington Cathedral to hear a new message and a challenge to concentrate their efforts on missionary work.

Dr. E. Stanley Jones, of India, called the world's best-known missionary evangelist; Dr. Herman Chen-en Liu, president of the University of Shanghai; and Dr. John R. Mott, chairman of the International Mission Board, were the speakers.

Truth, when it is discovered, said Dr. Jones, has no local significance, but must rise above national boundaries. Foreign missions, he said, have a four-fold aim: To preach good tidings to the poor, who are economically disenfranchised; to proclaim release to captives, socially and politically disenfranchised; to open the eyes of the blind, who are physically disenfranchised; and to set at liberty those who are bruised through moral and spiritual disenfranchisement.

Answers Imperialistic Charge.

Answering the charge that missionaries have turned religiously imperialistic and their high motives and aims prostituted in the name of empire, Dr. Jones said Christianity has repudiated political imperialism. Energy must be turned toward healing the world instead of competing with each other, he said.

"We are not yet through with the liquor traffic," Dr. Jones said, bringing 4,000 hearers to their feet, "defeated at this moment, tomorrow we will give a different answer. No question is settled until it is settled well, and no nation has ever drunk its way to prosperity."

Quoting Mahatma Ghandhi, Dr. Jones denied that religion is a self-discipline, and said religion is the discipline of the love of Christ.

In America emerging from the depression Dr. Jones saw the Nation "leaving the jazz age behind forever" and dedicating itself to bearing the burdens of every man's sufferings.

Dr. Liu Cites Challenge.

Impressed by the NRA slogan, "We do our part," Dr. Liu, the Chinese educator, suggested Christians adopt a similar challenge by offering foreign missions a new deal. Christianity is a world religion, he said, and it has become a dynamic force in China, but in referring to its success there, he said it was Jesus Christ who had made East and West one.

Dr. Mott, speaking in the great choir of Washington Cathedral, paid a tribute to 30,000 Protestant, Roman Catholic and Greek Orthodox missionaries as "ambassadors, interpreters and mediators of Jesus Christ." One of the most encouraging factors to the missionary enterprise, he said, is the growing recognition of and response to the demand to rethink, restate and revise programs and plans.

As never before, missionaries are required, he said, to Christianize the impact of Western civilization on the non-Christian world.

In accomplishing this through the contacts of American industry, commerce and finance, diplomatic and consular services, and through the Army and Navy and the social relations of American travelers, the cooperation of laymen at home bases is necessary, he continued. But the victory lies in accepting the challenge, he said.

Many Leaders Attend.

In addition to the principal speakers at Constitution Hall, the following leading members of the conference were present: Miss Yi-fang Wu, Ph. D., president of Gingling College, Nanking, China; the Right Rev. Logan H. Roots, Bishop of the Diocese of Hankow; Miss Lillian L. Picken, evangelist and social worker in India; Dr. John R. Strock, member of the All-Indian continuation committee; the Rev. Herbert F. Laflamme, executive secretary of the Foreign Mission Conference; Walter Getty, Mrs. Lydia G. DeSeo, director of drama; Dr. Joseph R. Sizoo, Dr. Carl C. Rasmussen, Dr. W. S. Abernethy and Dr. F. B. Harris.

The Right Rev. James E. Freeman, Bishop of Washington, will introduce Dr. Jones at a round-table conference for ministers this morning at the Epiphany Episcopal Church, 1317 G street. A luncheon at which Bishop Roots and Dr. Strock will be the speakers, will follow. A woman's luncheon will be held at Calvary Baptist Church, with Dr. Wu, Dr. Liu and Miss Picken as the speakers.

President Roosevelt will receive the visiting missionary leaders at the White House at 12:30 o'clock tomorrow. Meetings will be held tonight at Calvary Baptist Church, Foundry Methodist and Central Presbyterian Churches; St. John's Church in Georgetown, and the Christian Church at Ballston, Va.

Stable Fire Kills Two Fine Horses

Groom Seriously Burned Rescuing Hunter From Fire.

Two thoroughbred show horses, owned by a Washington attorney, were burned to death, a stable groom was seriously injured and equipment was destroyed yesterday in a spectacular fire which swept the stables of Walter R. Tuckerman, near Bethesda, Md.

Fanned by a brisk wind, the blaze gained rapid headway before the arrival of Montgomery County fire apparatus. David Taylor, 34, employed by Mr. Tuckerman as a groom, discovered the flames and was badly burned in attempting to rescue the horses. He succeeded in leading one valuable mount to safety. Once outside with Vagabond, a hunter, Taylor collapsed and was unable to return.

The horses destroyed were Bertha Parker and Gal West, owned by Chester A. Gwinn, of 104 West Virgilia street, Chevy Chase, Md. Mr. Gwinn is an attorney in the general counsel's office, Internal Revenue Bureau.

The burned horses were 3-year-olds and as yearlings were purchased at $4,000 each. They had been seen recently at various horse shows in and near Washington.

The stable, a two-story building, was completely destroyed. A defective oil heater was blamed for the blaze. Taylor was taken to Georgetown Hospital, where he was reported in an undetermined condition last night, suffering from severe burns to his face and body.

Vagabond, the rescued hunter, was taken to the Riding and Hunt Club, slightly burned about the legs.

Park Speaker Tells Catholic Marital Idea

The Catholic doctrine of marriages was explained yesterday at the open-air meeting of the Catholic Evidence Guild in Franklin Park by Mrs. Agnes H. Stewart.

"Marriage is a perpetual and exclusive union between one man and one woman. St. Paul calls it a great sacrament, likening the union of husband and wife to the union of Christ with His church," Mrs. Stewart said. Other speakers were H. H. Hartman and Edward Heffron.

Elderly Man, Mourning Wife, Commits Suicide

Mourning the death three weeks ago of his wife, Hammett R. Rountree, 75, yesterday opened the jets of a gas heater in his home, 622 E street southwest, and sat down to await death.

He was found several hours later by a niece, Mrs. Kathleen Williams, of Lyon Park, Va. She summoned the Fire Rescue Squad. Rountree was pronounced dead at Emergency Hospital.

Auto Mishaps Here Kill 2, Injure Seven

Frank Smith Dies After Bladensburg Road Accident.

Two dead and seven injured was Washington's toll of week-end traffic.

Frank Smith, 42, of 406 Shepherd street northwest, died early this morning in Casualty Hospital of injuries received when he was struck by an automobile on Bladensburg road near the District line.

Edward Purshwitz, of Hyattsville, Md., was held by police as the driver of the car that hit Smith. He was charged with reckless driving.

Cab Driver Sought.

The driver of a hit-and-run taxicab was sought after Henry Simms, Negro, of 42 F street northwest, died in Emergency Hospital. With a companion, Lizzie Owens, of the same address, he was struck at Tenth street and Massachusetts avenue northwest Saturday night. Witnesses said the taxi sped away after striking the pair.

Five persons were injured, two critically, when their machine crashed into a pole on the Defense highway, near Lanham, Md.

In the Maryland crash Miss Eloise Patrick, 18, of 316 Eleventh street southwest, received a fractured skull and cuts when she was catapulted from the automobile of Ora McCammon, 28, of 943 Maryland avenue southeast, as it slid into a ditch. Her sister, Miss Josephine G. Patrick, also a passenger in McCammon's car, received a broken right arm. Both were taken to Providence Hospital.

Asleep at Wheel.

A sprained right arm and bruises were received by Francis Bickerd, 21, of Glendale, Md., in the same accident. Harold McCammon, 29, brother of the driver, was cut. The younger McCammon, who told police he fell asleep at the wheel, was scratched.

Brickerd and the two McCammons were treated at Providence and returned to their homes. Maryland officials are investigating.

The jaw of Miss Margaret Hunt, 21, of 133 E street northwest, was fractured when a motorcycle on which she was riding with Wellford McGhee, 25, same address, collided with an automobile operated by Ernest Pollard, 19, colored, of Arlington, Va. McGhee was cut and bruised.

Both were removed to Emergency Hospital. Physicians have not determined Miss Hunt's condition.

Police Find Trombone But Willing to Yield It

Dignified policemen filed by the station's latest possession, and in some instances asked: "What is it?" Later they broadcast an appeal for the owner of the bright slide trombone and leather case one of their buddies found in the rear yard of 1215 Eighth street northwest to come and claim it.

Anacostians Join District In Fight Against School Cut

Havenner Hopeful Budget Will Return Building to Program.

Citizens of Anacostia are "100 per cent" behind the District Commissioners in their efforts to seek restoration of items cut from the 1935 District budget estimates, it was learned last night.

Dr. George C. Havenner, president of the Anacostia Citizens Association and former president of the Federation of Citizens Associations, declared he had been twice in conference with budget officials regarding an item for completion of the Anacostia High School.

"No promises were made," Dr. Havenner said, "but we feel hopeful something will be done toward restoring this item to the budget."

The Budget Bureau is reported to have eliminated a $225,000 item for completing the high school. Congress authorized construction of the school at a cost not to exceed $450,000 and appropriated $225,000 to begin work this year.

The Commissioners abandoned plans to build the school until it is determined whether the work can be completed. Dr. Havenner indicated that feeling was strong throughout the community, and thus far he has been able to forestall mass meetings in protest against the slash.

Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen has announced plans to seek an interview with budget officials to seek restoration of disapproved items.

Noted Throng To View Yule Tree Lighting

Senator King to Preside at Christmas Eve Celebration.

President and Mrs. Roosevelt lead the list of distinguished Washingtonians who have been invited to be present at the lighting of the National Community Christmas tree in Sherman Square at 4:30 o'clock on Christmas Eve.

Guests who have already accepted invitations include Secretary of the Interior Ickes, Senator Capper, Robert Fechner of the Civilian Conservation Corps; Robert L. Vann, special Assistant Attorney General; George D. Pratt, of the American Forestry Association; Mrs. Jonathan Bulkley, of the Garden Club of America; J. J. Cadigan, of the National Electric League Council, and Dr. Frank W. Ballou, superintendent of schools.

Senator King to Preside.

Senator William H. King, chairman of the Senate District Committee, will preside over the ceremony. In the past the President has usually lighted the tree and afterward given his Christmas greeting to the Nation over the radio. Both major chains have agreed to carry this year's ceremony.

The committee in charge of lighting and decorating the tree includes F. T. Shull, Norman Barnes, and L. T. Souder of the Electric League of Washington, and Harold Snyder of the Community Center Department. Boy and Girl Scouts will serve as guides.

Music Program Arranged.

Seasonal music will be provided by the George Washington University, the Gordon Junior High School, the Chaminade, the Claviarco, and the Elizabeth Somers Glee Clubs, the Lovette Choral Club, the Madrigal Singers, the Melody Makers, the Schubert Choral Club, the Treble Clef Club, Mu Phi Epsilon Musical Sorority, the Mount Pleasant Congregational Church Choir, and the Young People's Society of the First Congregational Church.

The city-wide carol singing this year is under the direction of Mrs. J. Lester Brooks, with Dr. Hans Kindler and Capt. Taylor Branson other members of the music committee. The Marine Band will provide instrumental music for the singing. Mrs. Elizabeth K. Peeples is chairman of the executive committee for the tree.

Girl Scouts Prove Of Value in India

Missionary Tells How Class Lines Are Forgotten.

The Girl Scout, or "Girl Guide" movement, as it is known in England, is responsible for a striking sociological development in India, Miss Lillian L. Picken said yesterday morning at First Congregational Church. Miss Picken has been a missionary in India for 19 years.

Women from all classes,—Brahmins, Mohammedans, Parsees, British officials and untouchables,—become leaders, and mingle without class distinction during the period of the conferences, she said.

A shortage of funds has reduced the number of missionaries sustained in India by the Congregational Church, but Miss Picken proposes to return.

League of Voters To Aid Cripples

The District League of Women Voters will turn its attention to improving the condition of crippled and backward children in Washington at a meeting at 8 p. m. tomorrow in the home of Mrs. Jesse Adkins, child welfare chairman, 1424 Sixteenth street northwest.

Terry C. Foster, of the Office of Education, will discuss national rehabilitation work in behalf of under-privileged children, and Miss Jessie Lasalle, director of physchological work in the District schools, and Mrs. Paul Camblon, of the child guidance clinic, will report on special work in Washington schools.

Miss Gertrude Bowling, of the Visiting Nurses Association, will describe work for physically handicapped children outside schools.

Policeman Finds Horse, Deserts Motorcycle.

The two met at Four-and-a-half and M streets southwest. Bankert was chugging along on his motorcycle, when an unfamiliar sound came to his ears. He stopped and looked around. On a vacant lot stood a dappled mare, her head raised and mouth open in preparation for another whinney.

The mare, successful in her attempt to attract attention, came trotting up even as Bankert offered a word of greeting. The policeman parked his motorcycle, and after a few affectionate pats, started "Betsy" toward the District Pound. There she awaited to be claimed last night.

Western Maryland Cave Yields Strange Bones Dating Back to Pleistocene Age

Smithsonian Exhibit Has Varied Skeletons for Studying.

A scientific study which began in 1912 and which has uncovered valuable information on the western Maryland of a couple of million years back is near completion, the Smithsonian Institution announced yesterday.

It was 21 years ago that Dr. J. W. Gidley, assistant curator of fossil mammals, while excavating a cave in the Allegheny Mountains near Cumberland, Md., discovered a "thermometer tomb" containing the bones of several score animals. Death ended his painstakingly slow study in 1931, but the investigation was taken up again last year by Dr. C. L. Gazin.

A report just published in the Journal of Mammalogy under the names of Drs. Gidley and Gazin had been half completed by the former when he died. His younger colleague finished the article, which is the first descriptive summary of the cave's strange mixture of bats, peccaries, bears, a wolverine and other creatures now found under greatly divergent climatic conditions.

All Very Old.

All the bones are of creatures which lived during the Pleistocene geologic period, or ice ages, which extended over one to two million years and were marked by alternate advances and recessions of the great glaciers over eastern North America nearly as far south as Maryland.

How and why such a variety of mammals were brought together may never be explained. The bats, a tapir, some peccaries and a tooth believed to have belonged to a crocodile or alligator represent families which now are tropical or subtropical in distribution. Others, such as the wolverine and a lemming mouse, are found in high latitudes today.

Dr. Gazin and the paleontologist he succeeded doubt that the creatures were contemporaries in Western Maryland. Their report suggests that the inconsistencies may indicate a period of cave entombment long enough for drastic climatic changes to have taken place. They can hardly be due, says Dr. Gazin, to the region's wide variety of topographical conditions, the proximately of warm lowlands and cold uplands. Study of the Potomac River and creek levels indicates that during the Pleistocene period there was probably less topographic relief than there is today.

Climate Varied Widely.

Temperatures a million years ago varied with the advance and recession of the ice sheet. Hence during northward recessions, western Maryland's climate may have approached subtropical and during farthest advances it may have been comparable to that of northern Canada at present.

The bones, which were all mixed together, furnish additional evidence of the changing temperatures eons ago when, so far as is known, there was no human population in North America.

The institution has on exhibit a number of specimens reconstructed with bones from the cave, which is located in a cut made by the Western Maryland railroad through a limestone ridge about 4 miles northwest of Cumberland. They are said to afford one of the best cross-section pictures of Pleistocene life yet found on this continent.

Twenty-one years is a bat of an eyelash when conversation veers to the Pleistocene Era so perhaps in another million or two years science will know why this wolverine fellow, partial to wintry climes, was found in a cave with a tapir and other creatures which favor higher temperatures. The late Dr. J. W. Gidley is the man nearest the cave entrance. The lower picture was made soon after excavation began. The other is of the wolverine as it looks today on exhibit.

Burglars Get $200 in Gas Station Safe

Thieves Active Through District; Canned Fish Stolen.

Thomas Henderson, of 1607 Twelth street northwest, told police a thief forced a rear door of his home early yesterday and stole $200 in bills from a trunk. He named a suspect.

Removing glass from a window, thieves cracked a safe in the Shell Gasoline Station, 3010 Rhode Island avenue northeast, and obtained $70, Roy May, the manager, reported. They also stole razor blades and cigarettes valued at $30.

Max Avery, who operates a delicatessen at 1385 Florida avenue northeast, told police thieves pried bars from a window in his shop and took 12 pounds of meat, 10 cans of salmon, 10 bars of soap and five cans of lard.

Using a pass key, bandit robbers ransacked the home of James Hill at 4931 Kane place northeast, taking three suits and 10 dresses, valued at $100.

Several pairs of trousers of unestimated value were stolen from the store of Myer Cohen, No. 70 K street northwest, police were told. The robbers entered by shattering a window.

Liquor Lost As Car Tips; Driver Hurt

Thirty gallons of corn whisky was spilled on the Ellicott City Pike yesterday when a speeding coupe skidded on a turn 3 miles west of Ellicott City, mounted a clay bank, lurched back, and rolled over and over, scattering half gallon jars for hundreds of feet along the road.

Extricated from the wreckage, the lone occupant was taken to St. Agnes Hospital, Baltimore, where physicians pronounced his condition critical. He had not regained consciousness at an early hour this morning.

A driver's permit in the man's pocket bore the name of Joseph Warshon, 27, of 3725 Mount Pleasant avenue, Baltimore. License tags on the automobile were listed to a man in Brentwood, Md., according to the Ellicott City Chief of Police, Julius Wosch.

Old Church Repeats 1783 War Service

Ancient Vestry Book Is Used to Duplicate Historic Rites.

Early days of the American colonies were recalled in Alexandria, Va., yesterday, with services in historic Christ Protestant Episcopal Church commemorating the departure of British troops from American soil in 1783.

Visiting dignitaries, including Assistant Secretary of State R. Walton Moore, attended the ceremonies. Records of the church's old vestry book were used to duplicate as near as possible the original services 150 years ago.

The rector, the Rev. Dr. William Jackson Morton, wore an old robe of heavy black silk, which was found many years ago hanging in an unused closet in the church rectory. It is in the style worn by ministers of colonial days. The hymns, anthems and chants used were all composed prior to 1783, and were selected as likely to have been used in the original service.

Lafayette Letter Read.

Dr. Morton was assisted by the Rev. Berkeley Griffith, rector of St. Margaret's Episcopal Church, Washington, the great-great-nephew of the first rector of Christ Church, the Rev. David Griffith, who conducted the 1783 service.

Dr. Morton gave a short history of the church and explanation of the service. He stated the old prayer book from which the lessons were read was probably a first edition of the American book, giving the prayer for the President of the United States and the Congress, in place of that of the sovereign of England and the royal family. When Christ Church was first opened for worship in 1773 it was under the guidance of he Church of England. He read a letter in the possession of Prof. Archibald Randolph Hoxton, principal of the Episcopal High School, and a great-great-grandson of the Rev. David Griffith, written by Gen. Lafayette to Dr. Griffith in care of the United States minister in London, an intimate personal letter renewing a friendship formed in the colonies and urging Dr. Griffith to visit Mme. Lafayette and himself in France.

Church History Reviewed.

Dr. Morton stated that during the progress of the war the Union forces took possession of both Christ Church and the rectory, and army chaplains conducted services in the church regularly.

The text used yesterday was the same used in 1783, "Yea, that Thou Shalt See Thy Children's Children and Peace Upon Israel," and the church was decorated in the same manner with appropriate texts on the walls.

Charity Reports Given St. Vincent

Reports from 27 parish conferences and special works committees were received by the Society of St. Vincent de Paul at its regular quarterly meeting yesterday in St. Joseph's Church, Second and C streets northeast.

The Rev. Edward B. McAdams explained the two types of poor met in charity work. One type is poor through circumstances and will help in restoring its own fortunes. The other type has always been poor and is too discouraged to help itself, he said.

Resolutions thanking Mrs. David Elkins and John McCormick for their work on behalf of the society were adopted at the meeting. Other speakers at yesterday's meeing included Dr. John O'Grady and Joseph Berberich.

Good morning! 364 days in the year it would seem like a silly joke to talk about national necktie legislation. But on Christmas morning, millions of American men wonder why their government fails to protect them. Don't go down in your family history as a funny-paper wife or girl friend. Buy men's ties here.

Revolta Is 2d, Four Shots Behind

Runyan and Armour Tie for Third Place and Get $875 Each.

BILTMORE COUNTRY CLUB, Coral Gables, Fla., Dec. 10 (AP). A brilliant sub-par round of 70 today pulled Willie MacFarlane, the lanky Scott, out of a three-way tie and gave him a 288 to win the $10,000 Miami-Biltmore 72-hole open golf tournament here and first money of $2,500.

In a three-way tie at the fifty-fourth hole at 218 with Johnny Revolta, of Menominee, Mich., and Ralph Guldahl, of St. Louis, the 42-year-old Tuckahoe, N. Y., pro, buckled down to shade par by one stroke on the final 18, and finished four strokes ahead of the field.

Revolta, who won the Miami Open last year, came in with a 292 to cop second prize of $1,250 and give him runner-up honors for the second consecutive year in the Biltmore tournament.

Runyan, Armour Tie.

Third money of $1,000 and fourth of $750 was split at $875 each for Paul Runyan, of White Plains, N. Y., Agua Caliente champion, and Tommy Armour, the Black Scot from Chicago, who has won virtually every major crown in golf. They tied back of Revolta at 294.

While others in the classy field battled around the final route, struggling for lesser prizes that ranged downward to $25, Johnny Goodman, Omaha amateur and holder of the American open title, came in with a 304 to win the Col. Henry L. Doherty trophy for the low scoring nonprofessional. He was so far ahead of other amateurs in the pack that he had a walkaway in that division.

Macfarlane, who came to this country years ago as a plasterer, and later developed his hobby of golf into good enough form to win the last Metropolitan Open championship, got a big hand from the sizable gallery as he walked away from the seventy-second green with the title won last year by Denny Shute, Philadelphia, the wearer of the British Open crown, who finished today with a 299.

When the time came for presenting Macfarlane with the $2,500 check, the bespectacled Scotchman rolled up his coat sleeve and shouted:

"Boys, I can reach any distance for that much money."

Shot 67 First Day.

The spotlight of interest in the final round centered entirely upon the performance of MacFarlane, who led the field at the end of the first day's 18-hole round with a snappy 67, four under par, which hung up a new course record. He dropped ten strokes to the pack with a 77 on the second 18 holes, but came back to top a 74 today with his 70, one under par, for the 6,640-yard course.

Tied back of Runyan and Armour with 295 came Guldahl, runner-up to Goodman in the last American Open, and Al Watrous, of Detroit, former Canadian Open titleholder. They received $600 each.

Horton Smith, of Oak Park, Ill., who broke out of the ranks of the caddies at Joplin, Mo., to become the sensation of the 1929 winter season, finished the tournament with a 296 to win next prize of $450. Gene Sarazen, the P. G. A. champion, who had a bad round with a 79 today, finished in a tie at 297 with Willie Klein, of Miami Beach. Each received $300.

Collect $137.50 Each.

Four finished in a four-way tie at 299 to win $125 each. They were Denny Shute, Frank Walsh, of Morton Grove, Ill.; Willie Goggin, San Francisco, and Phil Perkins, Willoughby, Ohio, and former British amateur.

Joe Kirkwood, Chicago, the Canadian Open champion, and Felix Serafin, Scranton, Pa., turned in a tied score of even 300 to win $100 each.

Al Houghton, Washington, D. C. representative added, a 75 to his 151 in the morning round and started the afternoon session with a chance at a sizable share of the prize money. He faltered, however, finished with 82 for a 308 total—1 stroke away from sharing in the last cash award.

Doctor's Orders Meant Nothing To MacFarlane

Biltmore Country Club, Coral Gables, Dec. 10 (AP).—Willie MacFarlane, lanky Scot, disregarded the orders of his doctor when he decided to enter the $10,000 Biltmore Golf Open.

Suffering from neuritis, MacFarlane didn't let the handicap bother him, and went on to win first prize money of $2,500, carding for the 72-hole route, a total of 288, four strokes ahead of Johnny Revolta, his nearest competitor.

Star Duquesne Team Beats St. Louis, 7 to 0

St. Louis, Dec. 10 (AP).—A fourth-period pass, George Benedict to Larry Sullivan, gave the Duquesne All-Stars of Pittsburgh a 7-to-0 victory over the St. Louis All-Stars in a charity football game here today.

The pass was good for 18 yards and Sullivan ran the remaining 35 yards to the goal line. Zaninelli added the extra point from placement.

The Pittsburgh team was composed of Duquesne and former Duquesne players and the St. Louis aggregation was made up of seniors from St. Louis, Washington and Purdue universities.

The game was played for the benefit of the St. Louis Boys Club, a character-building organization, of which Father Charles P. Maxwell is leader.

Taberski Defeats Allen in Cue Play

Chicago, Dec. 10 (AP). — Frank Taberski, Schenectady, N. Y., defeated Bennie Allen, Kansas City, Mo., tonight in a world's championship pocket billard tournament match, 125 to 95, in 11 innings. Taberski had a high run of 43 and Allen 27.

The game between the two former title holders moved slowly for the first seven innings, at which point Allen commanded a lead of 65 to 50. In the eighth, Allen increased his lead to 91 to 51 with a run of 26. In the ninth, however, Taberski counted 10, then scored his high run of 43 and finished with a run of 21 to win.

Andrew Ponzi, veteran Philadelphian, improved his hold on the leadership by overwhelming William Mosconi, another Philadelphian, 125 to 17, in 18 innings for his fourth straight victory.

Coach Roper Succumbs, Aged 53

Former Princeton Pilot Quit Gridiron in '30 for Politics.

Tigers, Under Him, Won 52, Lost 18, Tied 11 in 11 Seasons.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 10 (AP). William W. (Bill) Roper, who won National fame as football coach of Princeton University and left the gridiron for a stormy place in Philadelphia politics, died today. He was 53.

The illness which brought his death began two months ago after he developed a strepococci infection. It cut short the triumph of a man who fought hard and long for prohibition repeal and legalization of Sunday sports in Pennsylvania, both of which arrived while he lay ill.

Interests of Roper's early life were centered entirely on football and he was named head coach at Princeton, his alma mater, while a law student at the University of Virginia.

He directed the teams of Princeton between 1906 and 1911, except for the 1909 season. Then he was coach at the University of Missouri, which won the Missouri Valley championship that year.

In 1910 and 1911 he was back at Princeton with a team that defeated Harvard, Dartmouth and Yale. After the World War, Roper returned to football coaching at the university and through his skill in developing teams, often from unpromising material, placed the name of Princeton high in football records.

During 11 seasons up until his retirement in 1930, Roper's teams had 52 victories and 18 defeats and were tied in 11 games. He led his "boys" to three "Big Three" championships.

He emphasized the need for spirit and fight in his teams, calling upon Princeton men to fight hard and play fair. He loved to win and had no time for the players who would not give all they had for success.

Urged Spirit, Courage.

"There is a great deal of bunk to all of this talk of system and involved plays," Roper said. "If a team hasn't the fight, the spirit and the courage to give just a little bit more when there doesn't seem to be anything left, it is not going to win very many games."

He opposed all forms of artificial stimulation for his players, from "oratory to coffee."

While serving as coach, Roper was elected to the Philadelphia City Council where he sat for 14 years, militantly maintaining political independence and struggling much of the time against the Republican organization of William S. Vare.

His political career began, however, with his appointment by President Wilson in 1912, as appraiser in the Port of Philadelphia. Finding himself unable to agree with Democratic party principles, he turned from that party and became an independent Republican.

Although he himself was a nondrinker, he believed that prohibition "as America had it" was "harmful to temperance." He led in numerous attacks on prohibition and was a constant fighter against Pennsylvania's ancient blue laws. These he recently saw amanded to permit Sunday baseball and football.

Born in Philadelphia.

Born in Philadelphia in 1880, Roper attended Penn Charter School and subsequently entered Princeton. There he played baseball, basket ball, and end on the football team, graduating in 1902. His health failed about that time and he went South where he spent two years, mostly outdoors. Later he studied law at the University of Virginia and, while there in 1906, began coaching football at Princeton.

Roper and Tad Jones, Yale coach, were believed to be the first to enter into a nonscouting agreement in 1927, and within two years Princeton had similar agreements with all its opponents except Cornell and Navy. He was a member of the football rules committee for years and the author of two books on football.

Roper was married and the father of two children.

Max Baer in New York For Stage Engagement

New York, Dec. 10 (AP).—Max Baer arrived in town today to fill a vaudeville engagement and, incidentally, to look over the crop of heavyweights with an eye to two matches in 1934.

Ancil Hoffman, Baer's manager, said the heavyweight might meet the winner of the Max Schmeling-Tommy Loughran bout which will be held late next month, and also hoped to battle Primo Carnera for the title in the summer.

Rosenbloom-Godwin Fight Off Until Dec. 21

West Palm Beach, Fla., Dec. 10 (AP).—The 10-round nontitle bout between Maxey Rosenbloom, light heavyweight champion, and Bob Godwin, of Daytona Beach, Fla., scheduled for Thursday night, has been postponed until December 21. It was announced today. Rosenbloom was reported suffering from a cold that would make it impossible for him to get in condition on the earlier date.

A Midwinter Night's Dream of a Ball Player —By Pierotti

G. W. Courtmen Open Season Tonight

Four New Faces and New Style of Attack Will Greet Shenandoah.

GEORGE WASHINGTON'S whippets open their basket ball season tonight in the H street sports arena with Shenandoah College the house guest. Little is known of Shenandoah's strength, and the fans are almost as well acquainted with the new G. W. five. Four new faces will appear in the Colonials' line-up, two of them absolutly new to varsity sports.

Jimmy Howard, forward—and a good one—is the only regular left over from 1932. Bill Noonan, center, and Dallas Shirley, guard, were used frequently in substitute roles and can not be called inexperienced in the strict usage of the word. Sammy Stein and Barney Kane round out the quintet, and a capable one it is.

Whereas G. W. fans saw a big, powerful team last year, that chucked the ball down court, raced after it, and batted it back and forth across the hoop until it fell in, this season they will see a short-passing attack, with attendant pick-offs, cuts for the hoop, and snow-bird shots. Coach Ted O'Leary favors the short pass over the long pegs, but this is the first group of players capable of using the former system to come under his wing at George Washington.

Al Gordon Sets Track Mark, Clinches Title

Los Angeles, Dec. 10 (AP).—By winning the 93-mile feature automobile race at the Ascot Speedway today, Al Gordon, veteran Long Beach pilot, not only established a new track record, but clinched the 1933 Pacific Coast championship.

His time was 1 hour 8 minutes 16.90 seconds, clipping 16.90 seconds from the record he made several weeks ago.

Ernie Triplett of Los Angeles, was second and Rex Mays of Riverside, third. Wilbur Shaw of Indianapolis was fifth.

Desert Call Captures Its Third at Tanforan

San Bruno, Calif., Dec. 10 (AP). Carrying top weight of 126 pounds, Desert Call came through at the turn today to win its third victory in three starts at this meet at Tanforan track. Desert Call made the 170 feet less than 6 furlongs in 1 minute 8 4-5 seconds.

Chictoney, which had led from the start, was second and Onrush was third. Desert Call was a length ahead at the wire and going away. A crowd of 8,000 attended the charity program.

Desert Call paid on $2 mutuels $6.40, $4.80 and $3.20; Chictoney paid $4 and $3 and Onrush, $4.

Warburton Grid Hero Of Far West for Season

San Francisco, Dec. 10 (AP).—The Far West presented Irvine Warburton today as its outstanding individual star of the 1933 football season. The diminutive University of Southern California quarter back won about every gridiron laurel possible.

Besides all-American and all-coast recognition, he romped off with individual scoring honors among Pacific Coast Conference players, his two touchdowns against Washington yesterday brought his total to 72 points. Southern California played twelve games this season.

North Carolina Ousts Collins And Others

CHAPEL HILL, N. C., Dec. 10 (AP).—A clean sweep of the varsity football coaching staff was made by the University of North Carolina Athletic Council today in answer to the howls set up by alumni at the Tar Heels' lack of success on the gridiron.

Out of a council meeting begun last night came shortly after 2 a. m. a terse announcement that a decision not to renew the contracts of Head Coach Chuck Collins and Assistant Coaches Al Howard and Odell Sapp had been reached.

R. A. Fetzer, director of athletics, and Dr. Foy Roberson, of Durham, chairman of the football committee, were directed to survey the field of available men for the football coaching staff and report to the council on January 8.

Contracts Up January 1.

Members of the athletic council said there had been no discussion of Collins' successor, although a number of men had been suggested for head coach in letters received from alumni. Among these are Dana X. Bible, of Nebraska; Harry Gamage, who is leaving Kentucky this year; Tommy Campbell, who coached at North Carolina before the World War; Nemo Coleman, an alumnus, who had considerable success as coach at Asheville School for Boys, and Walter Skidmore, a Center College product, who has been coaching at Charlotte High School.

Confidence in Ability.

There was no official announcement of the council's attitude toward Collins, but a member of the council said informally that it had full confidence in Collins' ability as a coach, but believed that because of dissatisfaction among alumni he could not do his best work here and should be replaced.

The council took no action on the contract of Bill Cerney, another former Notre Dame player who came here as Collins' assistant eight years ago, but was freshman coach this year. A member of the council said, however, that he expected Cerney to be retained.

Howard also is a Notre Dame product, while Sapp is a former North Carolina star who received his training under Collins.

Lost Five Games.

Collins came here eight years ago from Chattanooga University and except in 1929 his teams have had indifferent success. His 1929 team lost only one game and was the second highest scoring team in the country. The past year the Tarheels won from Virginia and three of their State rivals, Wake Forest, North Carolina State and Davidson, but lost to Duke, Georgia, Vanderbilt, Georgia Tech and Florida.

Collins has made no plans for the future. Close friends said that several institutions looking for coaches had sent him "feelers" during the past year, but that so far as they know he had no definite offers at present.

This Morning

With Shirley L. Povich.

MESSRS. Clark Griffith and Joe Cronin today are taking up their vigil in Chicago hotel lobbies, stalking rival magnates and managers in the hope that they may be able to trade a utility bat boy or so for a new outfield, or perhaps a pitching staff as baseball's annual trading session gets under way.

Washington's representatives are going into the trading mart empty handed as far as trading materials is concerned if you would believe them when they say that Goose Goslin will remain with the Nats. Outside of Goslin, the Washington club's trading material could be placed in a Singer midget's thimble which would rattle if shaken.

If Griffith and Cronin attempt to talk trade without including Goslin, they will be the recipients of the well-known horse laughs. Scan the rest of the Nats' trading material—Johnny Kerr, Moe Berg, Al Thomas. Griffith will be forced to take the rubber off the old bank roll if the Nats do any trading that does not involve Goslin.

Purpose Not as Definite.

Manager Joe Croin went to the 1932 meeting in New York fully armed with blue prints and maps for a trading campaign and came back with every player he had set out to acquire, but at the Chicago session he has no such definite purpose.

When Cronin went to New York last December, he had determined that the Yankees were the team to beat for the 1933 pennant. He wanted left-handed pitching strength to hurl at the Yankees and he obtained it in the persons of Earl Whitehill and Walter Stewart. He wanted right-handed hitting power in his outfield and he gained it in Fred Schulte.

But Cronin this season is not so certain that the Yankees are the team to beat again. The Athletics, Cleveland and even the Red Sox are looming ominously for 1934, and the same left-handed pitchers that beat the Yankees last season may not have the same success against three other strong contenders. If there is no prolific trading among their rival clubs increasing the latter's strength, then Cronin and Griff are fully prepared to stand pat.

Close-Mouthed Pair.

A steel-riveted clam is a chatter box compared to the close-mouthed Cronin and Griffith, who would give no inkling of their trading plans during their conversations in Washington during the past week. Cronin would talk of the weather, football, lynching and the late and lamented world series, but gave no hint of impending deals.

The world series is still a prime topic with Cronin. "There were lots of breaks you newspapermen never realized," he told a couple of us the other day. "For example, we left our infield here at Griffith Stadium that was as fast as lightning and had to play those first two games at the Polo Grounds where the infield was slower than any in the American League.

"Then we came back to Washington for the third game where we figured to have a big edge on the Giants on our fast infield.

Ball Important Subject For Majors

CHICAGO, Dec. 10 (AP).—Loaded for everything from a battle over the question of a uniform ball to the customary discussion of radio broadcasts, representatives of 16 major league baseball clubs began drifting into Chicago tonight for the annual joint meeting.

The meeting is not scheduled to open formally until Tuesday, but with many player deals brewing, the advance guard was on hand early to learn if there is any more information available than has already been forthcoming.

The discussion over the difference in baseballs used in both major and minor leagues was expected to wind up in an agreement to standardize the missile.

Radio Question Up Again.

The radio question has been hashed and rehashed at every recent meeting, without anything definite being done. Some club owners are convinced that radio broadcasts of games does nothing but harm to the attendance figures. Not quite so many of them favor broadcasts.

In event no concerted action is taken to ban broadcasting, it is probable that other clubs may follow the lead of the Cleveland and St. Louis clubs in selling broadcasting rights.

The major league sessions will open Tuesday morning, but the business of irying to talk each other out of star ball players will start much earlier. Two clubs, Detroit and Cincinnati, still are without managers for the 1934 campaign. Deals for pilots probably will be made during the meeting and announced one at a time.

Donie Bush is still nominally the Reds' manager, but the club's new general manager, Larry McPhail, is known to prefer a playing manager. Jim Bottomly, first baseman, and Marty McManus, former manager of the Roston Red Sox, have been mentioned as possibilities. So has Burt Shotten, manager of the Philadelphia Nationals, although the Philly officials have insisted he will stay where he is.

Mack to Have Lot to Say.

Connie Mack will be expected to have a lot to say—and trade or sell. It has been insistently reported that Gordon (Mickey) Cochrane, the Athletics' star catcher, will go to Detroit as playing manager. Eddie Collins, vice president and general manager of the Boston Red Sox, as always, is in the market, and is said to be after Robert Moses Grove, Mack's famous southpaw pitcher, or Rube Walberg, another good Philadelphia left-hander.

A HUMAN battering ram in the person of Snail DeLabre ripped the Marion A. C. line to shreds yesterday at Gonzaga Field, scored two touchdowns and led the Mohawks to a 25-7 victory over the National Capital Football League champions.

While icy blasts swirled over the gridiron, Fullback DeLabre surprised some 1,200 spectators with a spectacular exhibition of off-tackle smashes, center thrusts and end runs.

The Mohawks scored a touchdown in each period, while the Marions were held scoreless until the final quarter.

DeLabre Goes Over.

DeLabre opened the fireworks midway of the first quarter with a touchdown, scoring from the two-yard stripe, after toting the ball from the 40-yard line in a series of rapid-fire line plays.

In the second quarter, a Marion back fumbled the ball on the 50-yard line, whence DeLabre put on another of his bone-crushing performances, finally plunging over for touchdown from the 3-yard line.

Gain 70 Yards in Drive.

The Marions will meet the Palace A. C. next Sunday.

District Girl Bowlers Defeated in Baltimore

Baltimore, Md., Dec. 10 (Spl.).—By tumbling duckpins in a large and steady stream, the Tivoli Girls not only defeated the visiting Recreation Girls of Washington tonight, but came within two pins of equaling the new world's record chalked up a week ago. Tonight's scores were 2,683 to 2,546.

The Tivoli assault upon the undersized pins was led by Naomi Zimmerman who came within 10 pins of entering the charmed circle of the 600 rollers.

Bad breaks prevented Violet Holmes from rolling her usual game. She came through with only 482, low score for the night. Rolling in her usual form there would have been a new world mark for girls that would likely have withstood a whole season of shooting.

The scores:

Brandywine, 3; Hispano-American, 1.
Marlboro, 1; German-American, 0 (forfeit.)

THE game at Rockville between the two leading soccer teams of the Capital City League produced a surprising result, few fans being prepared for such a rout of the home boys, Mitchell's led at the interval 2-0, and up to that time there was little difference in the sides. On turning around, however, the winners played the more aggressive game, and profited by the loose play of the Rockville full backs, Jones having no chance to save any of the five goals registered in the last half. The final score was 7-1.

As was the case in all the games, the wind played an important part in the decision, the Mitchell's gauging its vargaries much better than their opponents. All of the winners played well, while Butt and Hershberger were outstanding for the losers.

German-Americans Default.

German-Americans were unable to muster a team because of injuries and were forced to default to Marlboro.

Brandywine played the entire game with only nine players and turned in a splendid performance by taking over the Hispano-Americans in a good contest on the Monument field, 3-1. F. Townshend, Pyles, and Watson shone for the winners, and Fenochio and Olivares were the pick of the Latins.

British United was held scoreless in the opening half by Gaithersburg, but the Montgomery County eleven went to pieces in the last period and fell easy victims, 6-0.

Several cup-tie games are being arranged for next Sunday, affecting teams in both leagues, and notice of next week's matches will be given within a day or two.

Yesterday's Results.

Rosedale, 0; Virginia Avenue, 0.
Miller Furniture, 1; Takoma Park, 1.

NEW YORK AVENUE garnered an unexpected 2-0 victory over the clever Dux team in the Recreation League. Quantilla, the winner's goalkeeper, was the main stumbling block in the path of the Dux team. Both teams started with less than their allotted quota of players, but the game was fast.

Dux, with the wind favoring it, threatened repeatedly during the first half, showing nice combination in its forward line, coupled with a strong defense. New York Avenue, led by A. Clark and Shelton, pressed in the latter period, but the result was in doubt until the last minutes.

Rosedale, even with ten men, encountered unlooked-for opposition from Virginia Avenue, and the latter showed some sturdy playing which netted a scoreless tie.

Takoma Tie Surprises.

The biggest surprise of the day was the showing of Takoma Park against the Miller Furniture team. Takoma scored early in the game and held its lead until two minutes from time, when it was tied at 1-1. This, incidentally, was the most interesting game of the five played on the Monument fields yesterday.

Jones accepted a nice pass from Dietle, to beat Gorin, and Miller's goal came from a shot by Donovan which carried the Takoma goalkeeper over the line. Riley, Jones and Dietle starred for Takoma, and best for Miller Furniture—who also were forced with ten men—were Tamagni, T. Wellens, and Donovan.

C.U.'s Big Game On Court Here Thursday

Duke to Be Entertained; Maryland State Is Due Tomorrow.

A CORPS of men scrubbed down the gym floor at Catholic University last week and made it safe to play on, so this afternoon Coach Forrest Cotton will give the Cardinal basket ball machine a thorough test before sending it against Maryland State Normal tomorrow night. It is the first game of the year for the Brooklanders.

Wednesday will be an off day, but Thursday brings Duke storming into Washington seeking C. U.'s scalp. This is the game the Cards are pointing for. Home of good court teams when its football clubs were receiving three-line notices in the mail edition, Duke has another strong quintet this year. Jim and Herb Thompson, Washingtonians, and Connie Mack, jr., son of the Philadelphia baseball manager, are standouts of the team. The Blue Devils won their fourth consecutive State championship last year, and have gone to the finals in three of the last five Southern Conference tournaments. That's playing basket ball in any gentleman's league.

Coach Eddie Cameron leads his Duke men against the Rotary Club in Richmond the night before coming to Washington. Friday night the team stacks up against Baltimore U. in the Monumental City. After that, the boys go home to hang up their stockings unless Georgetown succeeds in coaxing them back to the District for a Saturday night game.

Forrest Cotton has selected the starting line-up for tomorrow night's game. Bernie Lieb has won the tap-off berth. Abe Rosenfield and Babe Gearty will start at forward, and Ed White and Gene Augusterfer will do the guarding. With the exception of Lieb, who came up from the freshmen, it is a veteran club.

Friday, Catholic U. will go to Philadelphia for the first of two games in the Quaker City. St. Joseph's is booked for that night and LaSalle is on the list for the following. This makes a total of four games in five days for the Brooklanders, a real test, especially for a team that has been practicing only 10 days.

Georgetown Cubs Routed by Pirates

Fones Stars in 34-0 Game; Two Fives Challenge.

Alexandria, Dec. 10 (Spl.).—The Georgetown Cubs fell before the Pirates at Hayden's Field today, 34-0. Lee Fones, former Alexandria High School star, was the hero of the game. He returned the Cubs' punts to the point of the kick on several occasions and also returned two kicks for touchdowns. Jonah Bernheimer, Frank Ramey and Shu also played well for the Sea Dogs.

Games are wanted by the Alexandria chapter of De Molay, with teams in the 135-pound class. Coach Wilson Davis has called several important practices for this week, beginning tomorrow night. Teams interested in scheduling games are requested to write to Lewellyn Gillam, 421 Queen street, Alexandria, or phone Alexandria 1908-W between 6 and 7 p. m.

Columbia Engine Co. No. 4 would like to arrange a game with an unlimited team, which has the use of a gym tomorrow night. Manager Caroll Rush may be reached at Alexandria 1103-J. The Firefighters open their court season at the Armory Hall, Wednesday night at 8.

Meehan Is Reported Considered at N. C.

Richmond, Va., Dec. 10 (AP).—The Times-Dispatch said tonight it had learned that an offer from the University of North Carolina probably would go forward to Chick Meehan, coach at Manhattan College, and formerly coach at New York University.

The paper added that Billy Laval, of South Carolina, and Gus Tebell, assistant coach at the University of Virginia, also were considered.

And what hapened? At 1:20 it rained, making our infield, made to order, for Terry's team. That's what I mean when I say a lot of people never noticed some of the breaks against us."

I trust that the faculty at Notre Dame is not looking with askance, or its equivalent, at the $10,000 contract that was handed Elmer Layden over the week-end for his services as football coach and athletic director at South Bend. It's nice pay, but it has its risks, risks that the history professor, for example, is able to duck.

Nothing succeeds like failure in helping to oust a football coach from a $10,000 job as Hunk Anderson will bear witness, and the college professor has all the best of the football coach when the reckoning comes at the end of the fiscal year.

Because a football coach's pupils fail to learn their football lessons as taught by the coach, Mr. Coach is readied for the guillotine at the end of a losing season and he must envy the history professor who at worst can be called a hard task master if his pupils flunk.

Fraters End Year With 27-0 Victory

Brooks Gridmen Bow to Much Heavier Foes.

Alexandria, Va., Dec. 10 (Spl.).—Alexandria independent football teams closed their season here this afternoon when the Fraters squashed the Brooks eleven, 27-0, at Baggett's Stadium.

After being held scoreless in the first quarter, the Fraters broke loose and with Cabell, Allen, and Doug Crupper carrying the pigskin, they soon had the ball deep in the Brooks' territory and from then on scored at regular intervals. Chilcotte, Allen, Kelly, and Cabell were the outstanding gridders on the field.

The Brooks team displayed a fine exhibition of team work and the score does not indicate the gallant stand they made against their heavier opponents. Danny Payne, N. Casey, Fitzgerald, and Pete Juliano were the best bets for the invaders.

10-Game Grid Card Listed By Army

WEST POINT, N. Y., Dec. 10 (AP).—Army's 1934 football schedule was announced today by Maj. L. D. Worsham, graduate manager of athletics.

The schedule calls for 10 games, including clashes with Yale at New Haven, Illinois at Champaign and Harvard at Cambridge on successive Saturdays. Following that difficult assignment, there is a "breather" game against The Citadel, South Carolina's military college, then come the Notre Dame and Navy games in succession.

The place of the game with the Navy has not yet been decided. Army has the privilege of picking the site for the 1934 game, as Navy chose Franklin Field, Philadelphia, this year.

Other Newcomers.

In addition to The Citadel, four other newcomers appear on the schedule in "minor" games. They are Washburn College, of Topeka, Kans.; Davidson College, of North Carolina; Drake University, from Des Moines, Iowa, and the University of the South, better known as Sewanee, from the city in Tennessee in which it is situated. They play the first four games at West Point. The schedule opens with Washburn September 29 and closes with Navy, December 1.

The five newcomers, of which only Davidson ever has previously visited West Point, replace Mercer, Virginia Military Academy, Delaware, Coe and Pennsylvania Military College.

Army, losing eight out of eleven 1933 regulars by graduation, faces its heavy 1934 schedule in a situation much like the one encountered this year, when the Cadets lost only to Notre Dame. The only regulars who will be available next season are Captain-elect Joe Stancook, full back; Jack Buckler, star half back, and John Beall, tackle.

The schedule:

September 29, Washburn; October 6, Davidson; 13, Drake; 20, University of the South (Sewanee); 27, Yale, at New Haven; November 3, Illinois, at Champaign; 10, Harvard, at Cambridge; 17, the Citadel; 24, Notre Dame, at New York; December 1, Navy (place undecided).

Higher Education, 1933

By Paul Gallico.

GREAT NECK, Long Island, Dec. 10 (Spl.).—There was something to me, under one of the Webster definitions of the word, mildly obscene in a quotation attributed by the Associated Press to a veteran Yale line star of 25 years ago, a chap who apparently is intent upon ousting Reg Root, the incumbent Yale football coach.

He said: "It's gotten to the point where the alumni are going to step in and have their say or there'll be no more contributions from us to the university. This '33 Yale team was a tragedy of wasted material. It was like sending boys with bows and arrows to oppose men with cannon. The situation makes a mockery of a sport that Yale helped to build through the years."

The last few sentences are the usual bilge, but it is the first that turns my stomach. All of us know that Yale, like all other universities in our topsy-turvy educational system, is a charity patient, but among gentlemen the usual thing is to pretend that this is not the case. There is much that is fine and beautiful at Yale. It is an ancient and truly American institution, it grates upon the sensibilities of even a Columbia man to hear some one say, "Lissen, bum, you do as I say or no more handouts."

The college prexy is truly a pathetic figure. He must trim not only his political and cultural sails to the winds of the wealthy, but where sport and football are concerned, his ethical halyards as well. Few of them emerge from any controversy over the sport with full dignity. Scratch the surface of any great university and the beggar's cloak will be found not far beneath. The only people who really think that football is of any importance are football players and fanatic alumni. They graduate, they make their way. They acquire wealth, some of them.

If you will go around to the back of their houses you will see something that faintly resembles prexy at the back door with his hat in his hand. Poor prexy. His devotion is to the good life and the teaching of it to those who will listen. When he assumes his chair he finds at his right hand the brightly burning torch of knowledge and at his left the alms bowl. He must pick up both.

Intercollegiate football is a brilliant pageant, a fascinating war-game, and a fine character and body builder for young men. It is, likewise, in many instances a blackjack pure and simple by means of which the wealthy alumnus, if he feels so inclined, can keep the university at his own intellectual level. The spectacle of an alumnus threatening the welfare of a great university if the football coaching staff is not arranged to suit his ideas is unwholesome and nauseating. This is our modern system of higher education. The kids at Yale seem to like Root. They didn't win many games, but they apparently had a pretty good time playing ball.

One hears much of de-emphasis of the game at Yale, the house plan and the stressing of intramural play. But the alumni are yelling for a high-pressure professional coach who will knock the fun out of the game and bully and rag the youngsters into becoming an efficient football machine. And some one has given Yale the toughest football schedule in all of Yale's history for next year.

No one has considered that this is a serious college generation at school now. We are entering upon the fourth year of the crash. Practically every boy in college has seen his father's fortunes wiped out. The poor are poorer. Working through college is more difficult than it ever was. The old men of the country are stricken and frightened. The young ones are doing the thinking and the planning. It is a more difficult world they are preparing to enter.

The college boy, with the exception of the out-and-out professional who wants to make reclame for himself on the gridiron in order to land a coaching job later on, has other things to worry about besides football. The older generation has made a failure of life. The new must find answers to the new problems of living that will confront them. Some of them are half beginning to suspect that they will not find them on the football field. They can get all of that stuff about playing the game for the game's sake and never quitting until the final whistle blows out of "The Rover Boys" and "Frank Merriwell at Yale." There is a definite schism there. The alumni live in their past glory. The present college generation is beginning to find high pressure intercollegiate football trivial and a nuisance.

The change and the revolt will come from within. The type of football player is changing, has changed. The worthwhile kids, the Barry Woods and the Lassiters and that fine breed, won't go out for it any more. The teams will become more professionalized and less representative and less interesting, until some day a rational balance is struck between the stadium mortgage, the imbecile alumnus, the rapacious athletic board and the poor, harried prexy.

Many Coaches Either Out Or On Way

The season begins immediately after the football schedule, but in some cases, as early as the fourth game of the season And the season is "wide open." It reaches the length and breadth of the land.

The early season gunning opened up at Columbus, Ohio, where Sam Willaman, coach of the Ohio State Buckeyes, left himself in view with a target around his neck, following the Michigan debacle in which the Staters were trounced by a two touchdown margin on October 21, at Ann Arbor. Dissatisfied alumni, adherents of the Wilce regime, started the firing, followed by editorials in the student daily newspaper. And now Sam is on the block, although he won all but the Wolverine set-to.

Rumors Started Early.

Maybe the Notre Dame housecleaning campaign started prior to that at Ohio State. Rumors that a new coach was on the way to open the 1934 football festivities at the South Bend institution came early. Anderson was on the way out, following the Kansas tie and the defeat at the hands of Carnegie Tech helped his cause none.

Two college grid mentors who felt the sting of dismissal before their seasons were completed are John H. Harmon, of Boston University, and Harry Gamage, of Kentucky. However, both stuck to their sinking crews until the close of the campaign. Harmon was put on the pan for playing a lad who was injured to such an extent that permanent physical damage may have resulted. The gridder in question led the junior prom the night following the particular game, but it was an ouster, just the same. However, Coach Harmon will continue in the capacity of director of athletics, which he also held along with the coaching assignment.

Upheaval at Yale.

One of the latest rumors of gridiron rift emanated Saturday from Yale and vicinity. The good Eli grads have decided that Reggie Root, their brother alumnus, was really not the man for the job. They cite the Georgia setback and above all, the Princeton defeat.

The leaders of the drive to uproot Root have anxious eyes on Bernie Bierman, of Minnesota, who had marked success at Tulane before embarking for his Gopher alma mater following the departure of Fritz Crisler, now the head man at Princeton. Others in the running for the New Haven job are Lou Little, of Columbia, and Harry Kipke, of the Michigan Kipkes.

In the South, North Carolina has removed Chuck Collins from his coaching role, while Jack "Clipper" Smith at North Carolina State is practically assured of removal. The Southwest finds a resignation from the grid duties tendered the athletic council of Texas University by Clyde Littlefield. Jack Meagher at Rice Institute has already been pushed out.

Spaulding May Quit.

On the Coast, Bill Spaulding and the University of California, Los Angeles Branch, generally referred to as U. C. L. A., may resign. The college paper and interfraternity council placed him on the spot.

Back East, Earle "Greasy" Neale, coach at West Virginia University, is through. The contract is up and already overtures have been made to Glenn Thistlewaite, former Northwestern and Wisconsin coach, at present coach and athletic director at Carroll College, of Waukesha, Wis. The athletic council has given Glenn a week to make up his mind, after which Bill Kern, an assistant coach of the University of Pittsburgh, will be given a hearing.

Despite emphatic denials by the Washington alumni president of the University of Virginia, Fred Dawson seems not to be the choice of the Cavalier ticket buyers and Neale seems to be. The fact remains, however, that Dawson's contract runs another year.

Pittsburgh, at Portsmouth.

CHICAGO, Dec. 10 (AP).—The Chicago Bears clinched the right to meet the New York Giants here next Sunday in the final championship game for the National Professional Football League title today by defeating the Green Bay Packers, 7 to 6.

New York leads the Eastern division and the Bears the Western division in the league, winding up their final campaign with the victory today.

Today's battle was filled with thrills as the bears trounced the Packers for the third straight time this season. On the opening kickoff, Hinkle, of the Packers, ran 95 yards, but the Bears held on their own 5-yard line.

The Bears scored their winning touchdown in the second period when Molesworth tossed a 37-yard pass to Ronzani who dodged over 5 yards more for the touchdown. Manders kicked the point.

Dick Monnett, former Michigan State star, ran 85 yards for the Packer touchdown in the fourth period. But Link Lyman broke through and blocked Hinkle's try for the extra point.

Both teams attempted field goals but missed by inches. Nearly 15,000 people saw the game, which ended in almost complete darkness.

Giants Rout Eagles.

Philadelphia, Dec. 10 (AP).—Harry Newman and his New York Giants defeated the Philadelphia Eagles, 20 to 14, on a snow-covered field today, but the Eastern champions of the National Professional Football League had a battle on their hands.

Harry Newman, former Michigan ace, opened the scoring for the Giants with a touchdown in the second period. Newman also kicked the extra point.

In the opening minute of the third period, the Eagles took the kick-off and Roger Kirkman, one-time Washington and Jefferson star, ran 64 yards for the Eagles' first score. Sylvester Davis made the extra point.

Then the Eagles fumbled and Elvin Richards pushed over another touchdown, the Giants failing in the try for the extra point. Throwing themselves into the fourth period attack, the Eagles rushed the ball to New York's 39-yard line and it was snapped to "Swede" Hansen, who raced 61 yards for a tally.

After the resultant kick-off, Newman stood on his own 40-yard line and accepted the ball from Hank Reese. He flipped a perfect pass to Richards, who raced the needed 60 yards to the goal line. Newman kicked the extra point.

Forfeit Game Claimed Against D. C. Booters

Baltimore, Md., Dec. 10 (Spl.).—The Wingfoot Soccer Club, of Baltimore, today claimed a forfeit over the German-American Club, of Washington, on the grounds that the Washington team's line-up did not correspond with the State association's eligibility list.

Choices Won 26 Races at Course

Winning Favorites to Date Have Averaged $5.34 Pay-Off.

STATISTICS based on the first seven days operation of the Shenandoah Valley Jockey Club plant indicate that this new track at Charles Town W. Va., is, paradoxically enough, a happy hunting grounds for both longshot players and those who back the favorites.

The average mutuel pay off on the 49 races run during the first seven days was $23.22 for $2.00, a high average reward which would ordinarily indicate that longshots predominated. Such, however, was not the case. Twenty-six of the 49 winners to cross the finish line were favorites in the betting.

The 26 favorites averaged a $5.34 payoff on each $2.00 mutuel ticket, which is above the average payoff on favorites. Many of the winning favorites paid better than $7.00 for each $2.00 ticket and as high a return as $9.00 was recorded.

Zombro Boosted Average.

Of course, the $590.00 payoff on Zombro boosted the general average greatly, but, even without that out-of-proportion longshot, the average would have been very high. Twenty dollar mutuel payoffs were quite common, there were a few $30 returns, some $40 awards and one of $68.40.

Horsemen ascribe the high returns paid on mutuel tickets to the uniformly well-balanced fields participating in almost every race. The lack of outstandingly superior entries in many a race has resulted in an even distribution of wagering among all the fields, with consequently higher returns to the winners. In several of the races there have been as many as three horses tied for the favorite position in the betting.

Jockey Howard Cruz, who departed for Florida yesterday, led all the pony piloters in the number of winners booted across the finish line. Cruz's mounts romped in ahead of the field nine times and he had three place and the same number of show horses out of a total of 29 mounts. Thurber had the second highest number of winners with seven. One of his mounts placed and two showed, while he had 16 out of the money. Burrill had six winners in 34 mounts—the highest any jockey had during the seven days.

Dabson, Knapp and Murray each rode three winners; Haines, F. Munoz and Haines two and H. Munoz, Marinelli, Catrone, E. Smith, Watters, Prain, Jelly, C. Smith, McLarin, Merritt, Fowler and Fellows each rode one winner.

Attendance Improves.

Attendance at the plant increased by leaps and bounds when the race-going public realized that the location was climatically ideal for the sport of kings. After a good start the opening day, the crowds dwindled somewhat, but gradually picked up to a record of 6,000 last Saturday. Of course, the attendance was boosted somewhat by the arrangement made between the track and the railroad whereby purchase of railroad transportation entitles one to admission to the race course upon payment of the Government tax.

Strange as It Seems —By John Hix

The subject of Van Dyck's famous painting, which is known the world over as the "Stuart Baby," was the second son of Charles I of England, and Henrietta Maria. At the age of 9 he was created Duke of York and Albany, later he was crowned King of England as James II.

It was in honor of this child that the struggling young city of the Western World, destined, too, to become great, was named New York. For him, also, the State was named, and likewise the capital was called Albany for his second title.

New York was first New Netherlands, but after administration difficulties covering a period of years while the Dutch were in possession of the territory, the English fleet under Col. Nicolls put into the harbor to enforce the Duke of York's title to the land. With a cooperating citizenry, the English were able to take possession and the settlement straightway became known as New York.

Streets are traditionally paved with whatever suitable material is near at hand. Because there was a whaling station near-by, and plenty of whalebone, the unique paving at Monterey, Calif., is done with segments of the backbone laid cobblestone fashion.

with Bill Bennings.

Charles Town Race Track, Dec. 10.

Dear Fred:

Well, we now have a real race track here. I'm told that the "comeback" wire has been installed and that Dark Vision, a winner last week, was the first horse to draw a substantial amount of "comeback" money. This species of dough consists of money that bookies around the country do not want to hold, or money with which they hope to slice the price on a certain horse. But "comeback" money helps the tracks to operate, and is not wholly unhealthy for the better at the course. It is this play that sometimes makes unnatural prices. But it works both ways. Many times a horse, only moderately played at the track, is clipped in odds by a lump of "comeback" and then loses. On some occasions there has been "comeback" money for every horse in a race. Two winners and several seconds for the youthful Bennings yesterday. BILL.

First race—If Dolice, first on the also eligible list, moves into action here the colt should turn in a winning effort. Chased Big Show home and was beaten a nose by Mint Mission in his two races at this course. Grayback has that recent even race to recommend him in this cheap field. Dona Dulcin showed sudden improvement last out and may take it all.

Second race—Two of the best in this group are on the added list and would have the race between them if they were scratched into the race. Dornoch needs no introduction. Has only to repeat either of those winning races here to make it three in a row. Energetic Boy won from a fair field and his best would put him close at the finish. Of those already assured a place at the barrier, The Hun gets my call. My No. 1 clocker raves about this one. Gracious won over maidens after being pulled up early in the race. Dangerous here.

Third race—Silver Wave was out for conditioning the other day, running behind some of the best sprinters hereabouts. She forced the pace part of the way. Wacket ran so disgracefully last out that I can not find an excuse for a winning race tomorrow. Nisia for the show money.

Fourth race—Chrysmute has won at six and a half furlongs and seems well suited by conditions here. Happy Message was a keen disappointment last out and I have discarded that exhibition. Although I can hardly put this one on top, I have a certain amount of respect for Aske. This one set a terrific pace in a distance race at Pimlico and the clockers nipped him at 1:13 2-5 for six furlongs. Drops five pounds.

Fifth race—Just Fun has done so many things well in this section that a victory in this test would not be surprising. Fit and ready and a tough horse. Don Guzman, at No. 1 post, will be out there stepping on it from the start. Will have to be caught. Oral has shown indications of going on forever. A factor among these.

Sixth race—Wahoo might win right back after yesterday's victory. In the also eligibles now. Modern Times is fit and a front runner that will have to be caught. Bun D. has been threatening and could be third. Helen's Alibi is a possible surprise.

Seventh race—If you want to take a chance with me, let's get down on Replevin. It would only take a shadow of one of his early fall races to bring a purse here. The last time out, I gave Replevin a close watch. He was in on the rail from the start and turning into the stretch appeared to be a horse full of run. However, he was steered behind horses and, when given running room, put up a good finish. Jodhpur is good now and dangerous. Westys Lad for the rest.

St. Gabriel's Winner.

The Silver Spring Giants lost a 13-0 decision to the St. Gabriel's Preps on the losers' field. The winners scored all their points in the first quarter, but were held on even terms for the remainder of the contest.

Joe Sherman starred for the winners, while H. Clark was outstanding for the losers.

Canzoneri Foe Of Locatelli On Friday

Italian to Make American Debut; Petrolle Will Battle Loayza.

NEW YORK, Dec. 10 (AP).—The latest fistic importation from Europe, Cleto Locatelli, of Italy, will be unveiled in Madison Square Garden this week, with Tony Canzoneri, erstwhile champion of the lightweights, joining in the ceremonies.

Victor by knockouts over Kid Chocolate and Cecil Payne in his last two starts, Canzoneri will discover what, if any, fistic qualifications Locatelli may have when they square off in a 10-rounder on Friday night. Locatelli, European lightweight title-holder, is seeking a match with Barney Ross for world laurels and probably will get it if he succeeds in getting past Canzoneri. Tony, however, is campaigning for a third match with Ross to whom he lost the lightweight crown and from whom he failed to regain it in a sizzling 15-round match here in September.

New York boxing fans will be entertained also by another first-rate show on Tuesday night when Billy Petrolle, Duluth, welterweight, meets the veteran Chilean, Stanislaus Loayza, in a 10-rounder.

Rudy Dusek Signed to Meet "Masked Marvel" in Benefit

Opposes Matman Who Has Beaten Sonnenberg; Post Toy and Doll Fund to Get Generous Percentage of Friday Proceeds.

WHEN looking over the Christmas shopping list today, don't forget to scribble on it a reminder to see the rassle show at the Auditorium Friday night. The buying of tickets for the coming matfest is the same as adding the names of several needy kiddies to your Xmas list, for Promoter Joe Turner has promised a generous percentage of the gross receipts to The Post's Toy and Doll Fund.

But, just because the rassling impresario is doing his bit toward helping make Christmas a cheery one for youngsters who might otherwise be forgotten by Santa Claus, it does not mean that he is forgetting the demands of rassle addicts for a first-class show. Topping the card will be Jim Browning, one of the three claimants to the world title, who takes on Tiny Roebuck, while four other good bouts will be offered.

Rudy Dusek Signed.

Last night Turner announced that Rough Rudy Dusek had been signed to further his comeback campaign in the semifinal against an unknown —Masked Marvel, No. 59. There are masked marvels and masked marvels, but the one who shows here Friday is said to be the best of 'em all.

This hooded man of mystery appeared in Boston sometime ago and rocked the rassle world by beating former Champion Gus Sonnenberg. Since then, he has been taking on all comers and knocking them off with clock like regularity. In order that his identity may be kept secret, even his manager travels masked, his press agent declares, although no explanation is given as to how he gets any matches if no one knows either him or his representative.

Be that as it may, Turner managed to get in touch with him in some manner and is authority for the statement that the masked marvel really is good and that he has heard he is an experienced first-fighter who wants to add a little novelty to his performance—even if this masked marvel stuff is slightly aged.

On Way Up Again.

"Mr. X" surely is not picking any soft spot in taking on Rough Rudy. Since deserting the Londos-White league, the elder Dusek has come out of virtual retirement and is on his way back to a title chance. He has downed two good men here of late in George Manich and Scotty McDougal and, if he can beat the man who beat Sonnenberg, in the coming bout, he will be in line to tackle Browning and avenge the family honor, for it was this same head of the Curley rassle herd who trounced Brother Ernie here recently.

Despite the championship aspect of the card, women presenting paying escorts at the door will be admitted free.

D. C. Court Officials List "Exams" Monday

The meeting of the Approved Board of Basket Ball Officials scheduled for tonight has been postponed until next Monday night, it was announced yesterday. All applicants for jobs as referees and umpires of District basket ball games and those in the vicinity will be examined at that time by members of the board.

Wintry Blasts Cause Delay in Golf Programs

World Slump Blamed on Gold By Radio Priest

Detroit, Dec. 10 (AP).—Assailing what he said was a gold-standard capitalism's grip on industry, the Rev. Father Charles E. Coughlin today charged the effort to maintain the gold standard was responsible for the depression begun in 1929.

The industrialists, Father Coughlin asserted, are at the mercy of gold-standard capitalists. He added money had become "not the medium of exchange, but the medium of control."

Father Coughlin's address was broadcast over an independent radio hook-up.

The crusading priest only once mentioned the name of J. P. Morgan, reiterating previous charges of financial control reaching into billions of dollars. He praised a recent resolution by the National Association of Manufacturers as significant, he said, of the support industrialists, as opposed to gold-standard capitalists, are according President Roosevelt in his monetary program.

Before financial independence can come, he said, there must be a complete divorcement of capitalism and industrialism, with capital entitled only to interest on its investment.

Father Coughlin asserted that in its efforts to maintain the gold standard, capitalism had seen wages go down and dividends go up for many years.

Walt Mason Himself

The Noble Experiment.

The eighteenth amendment lies cold in the shade; men said that its end meant revival in trade. The unemployed toilers will have, without doubt, fresh soup in their boilers, abundance of kraut. The makers of cases, the makers of glass, will speed up their places and step on the gas. The busy distillers will hump night and day, and they'll be the pillars of commerce, men say. They'll buy up the barley, the corn and the rye, and Tom, Dick and Charley will profit thereby. Their goods they'll be shipping to far away grads, and railways, now slipping will take in the scads. The woe-begone coopers, the makers of kegs, will soon be joy-whoopers, and dance on their legs. John Barleycorn's coming his throne to resume, and things will be humming where now there is gloom. The diligent brewers will ship beer by freight, and they'll be renewers of faith in the state. Our troubles are fading abolished by booze; we'll soon be parading in new hats and shoes; the vision is gaudy, inspiring the dope, the bright tints embody all manner of hope. But over in Britain distilleries ran, all cylinders hittin, since commerce began. The brewers are brewing their porter and beer, distillers are doing their blamedest each year. Yet Britain is trembling and sick in the soul, her people assembling to draw from the dole. She ought to be able to shake off her gloom, with booze on the table and beer in each room.

World Cruise Will Be Given In Travel Talk

The sixth of The Washington Post series of 20 illustrated travel talks will be presented at the Masonic Auditorium, Thirteenth street at New York avenue northwest, tomorrow night by Martin DeMuth who has just returned from one of his many cruises around the world.

Mr. DeMuth entitles his lecture "Around the World in 90 Minutes" and within the space of an hour and a half will transport his audience to the 33 ports of call of one of the world's most luxurious cruise ships. Motion pictures and stereopticon views in color will supplement his descriptions of Madeira, Gibraltar, Algiers, Naples, Cairo, Jerusalem, Bombay and many other colorful cities of the Eastern and Western Hemispheres.

The series of lectures is under the direction of The Washington Travel Guild which is cooperating with The Washington Post to give a comprehensive background to the news of the world which is presented every day in The Post.

A small admission charge of 25 cents has proved necessary to partly defray expenses of the project, which is conducted by the Travel Guild upon a nonprofit basis. It is also possible to reserve seats for each of the remaining lectures at the cost of $3.75 for the series. Tickets are obtainable at the Masonic Auditorium box office on lecture evenings.

Construction Rise Credited to PWA

Contracts Show 11 Per Cent Gain in November.

The Public Works Administration is credited with causing a sharp rise in construction contracts awarded during November in a special survey by the F. W. Dodge Corporation, according to the Associated Press.

The Once Over.

By H. I. Phillips.

It Seems Only Yesterday.

* * * *

When judges were being asked to give men and women from five to ten years for possessing whisky.

When few people disputed the man who sagely remarked that it would be a generation before enough States would go wet to bring about National repeal.

When private yachts were fired on and searched every Sunday on suspicion of having a couple of quarts aboard.

* * *

When the Republican politicians were afraid to come out openly for repeal and the Democrats were rather doubtful about the results, too.

When the busiest institutions in America were the "alky" cutting plants.

When those "Repeal Prohibition" automobile plates first came out and people were cautious about displaying them for fear of what people would think.

* * *

When it was said the Government could never do anything about Al Capone and "Waxey" Gordon.

When it seemed as if government of the racketeers, by the racketeers and for the racketeers would never perish from the earth.

What! No Soup?

"I had breakfast with Senator Long. I said, 'Senator, what will you have? He said, 'well, I want a dozen and a half of oysters, a sirloin steak, French-fried potatoes and a plate of vanilla ice cream.' That was the Sunday breakfast the Senator ordered with me."—From the testimony of Charles S. McCain of the Chase Bank.

Radio Waves and Ripples

It's no fault of his, of course, but his voice sounds very much like a woman's over the phone. He didn't mind so much when people outside the office, who didn't know, sometimes called him Miss or Mrs. So and So. But the other day some masher tried to make a date. That made him pretty desperate. He called WJSV's Harry Butcher and applied for the lady announcer job. Butcher gave him an audition, but he won't do. His voice sounds neither like a man's nor a woman's.

That was the last straw. The man's back at the Veterans' bureau, working harder than ever; but he intends to go without his overcoat the next cold day we have in the hope of catching something like tonsillitis.

While still on the subject of lady announcers, you may like to know that the finalists in the job race—June Day, who is also Mrs. Somebody, and Helen Ault both had experience which gave them an edge over the other contestants. Miss Day worked in radio before. Miss Ault had a not-too-minor part in "Three's a Crowd." Both sing, each is attractive, which made choosing between them rather tough on WJSV minds. Their being comely is something the minds had not counted on. They were heard behind drawn curtains, through which no one is supposed to have taken so much as a peek.

With all this talk about changing our money, increasing our pay, shortening our hours and encouraging pigs to have smaller families it was reassuring to hear one of the minds explain the lady announcer idea by saying:

It proves to us that things aren't going to be so fundamentally different after all.

Whitecaps.

WRC — Metropolitan Tenor Richard Crooks, "My Wild Irish Rose," "Tell Me Tonight," "My Darling," "The Flower Song," 8:30 p. m.; Tenor Frank Parker and Gypsies, Parker singing "Velia" from Lehar's "Merry Widow," 9 p. m.; Egbert Van Alstyne, veteran song writer, appearing on a program of his hits, "In the Shade of the Old Apple Tree," "I'm Afraid to Go Home in the Dark," "Memories," 10 p. m.

WMAL—Radio Guild playing Anita Loos' and John Emerson's farce, "The Whole Town's Talking," 3 p. m.; Tom Corwine, animal imitator, Noahs Ark and "Waiting for the Robert E. Lee" sound effects; Morin Sisters and the King's Jesters, 8 p. m.; Labor Secretary Frances Perkins in "Planned Recovery" talk, 10:45 p. m.

WJSV—Bing Crosby interrupts a Palm Springs vacation to interpret "The Last Roundup," 8:30 p. m.; Rachmaninoff's Concerto No. 2, in C minor, Philadelphia Orchestra, 9 p. m.; Alexander Woollcott delves into his supply of blood-curdling stories, 9:15 p. m.

* * * *

When it seemed that a speaker at the banquet for Mgr. John A. Ryan was going to talk indefinitely regardless of the fact that several addresses following his were scheduled to go on the air, a WMAL engineer picked up his microphone and equipment and dashed into another room, where Announcer Stanley Bell could make an explanation without the man who was talking being heard. He had everything set up when the man stopped, 10 seconds before broadcast time.

Bell grabbed the microphone and ran, reaching the banquet hall just in time to introduce Labor Secretary Frances Perkins.

The Department of Commerce aquarium owns a new variety of fighting fish which Aquarium Director Fred Orsinger will tell about on a Greater National Capital Committee broadcast from WMAL tomorrow night at 9.

If there are any WOL broadcasters who will not appear in programs with which the LeRoy Mark station will observe its ninth anniversary tonight, it's because they had their telephones taken out during the depression. Gus and Hercules, Irving Chandler, the Bijoux quartet, Reginald Newton, Jack Mulane, the Carolina Stump Jumper, Eldridge Keedy and Fay (Fliedner) Allen are only a few of them.

And this is as good a place as any to report that Fay (Fliedner) Allen sings on WJSV's Woman's Hour Friday morning, only this time she'll call herself Fay Duncan to keep listeners from confusing her with WJSV's own Dolly Allen. The girls sing somewhat alike, they both came from Baltimore, and their theme songs are the same.
